For councillors Monday, the number of available firefighters or suppression personnel was their major concern as they grilled Barron on the department's overtime costs, promotion strategy, and the increasing number of daytime 'brown-outs.'

According to Barron's records, Rescue One at headquarters has been shut down 227 days since July 1st; Ladder 2 in Wollaston was down 190 days in the same period and Engine 8 in Germantown has been pulled off service for 84 days.

"The current practice of brown-outs will have to continue," said Barron.

Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest questioned the department's response time in relation to the high number of daytime 'brown-outs' at the Germantown station.

Barron said that response time averages five minutes which meets the national goal of four minutes response and one minute 'turn-out.' He, also, explained that that average includes lengthier response time for non-essential calls and faster response for others.

"I continue to be concerned about the continuing decline of suppression personnel," said Councillor Joseph Finn while Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro recalled Barron telling the council during budget discussions, "There would be no promotions."

Barron recently promoted five officers, including three who had been demoted due to budget tightening.

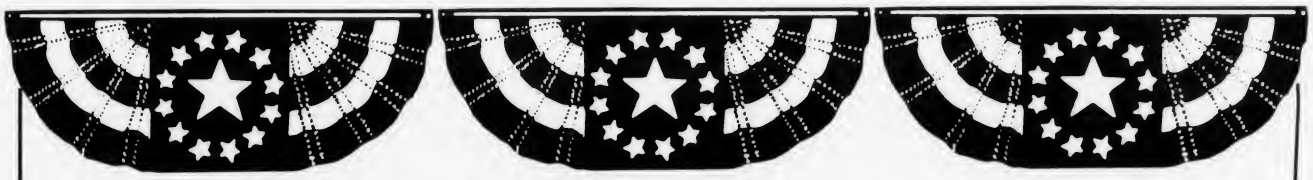
"We are at barebones staff," Barron told councillors as he described the need for officers and the reinstatement of demoted personnel. "It's vital to the department. I wouldn't be doing my job."

Barron said that recent promotions were essential to the department's operation and cited several unfilled positions. As an example, the budget covers 14 captains and the department only has 11 are in place.

"It's challenging to try to operate and stay within the budget," said Barron.

Gutro asked why Barron promoted a fire prevention officer to fill a vacancy when the suppression numbers are so low while Finn sought details on the selection of a deputy chief.

Barron said the fire prevention officer actually saves the department by preventing fires and that is "money well spent."



As for the deputy chief selection, Barron said there were three candidates eligible through Civil Service and he interviewed and promoted the candidate with the highest score.

Barron said the department is at 54% of its overtime budget, roughly halfway through the fiscal year, attributing some of those costs to unanticipated retirements and injuries of ranking officers.

At this time, there are eight officers out due to injuries and those positions are filled, when needed, through overtime.

"These injuries are legitimate, unexpected and out of the ordinary," said Barron who also recounted unforeseen and impromptu

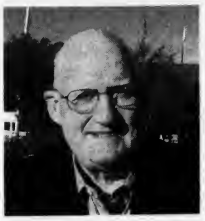
The Operative Word Is TEMPORARY

A Coalition Is A Temporary Alliance To Solve A Problem

The Quincy Sun this week introduces a new feature on Impact Quincy.

The column will highlight some of the projects and endeavors that Impact Quincy is involved in to create more community awareness of its programs and initatives.



The first column which appears here was written by Arthur Keough, community chairman for Impact Quincy.

By ARTHUR KEOUGH

Almost twenty-two years ago a very intrepid band of people got together to do something about substance abuse; and they called themselves a COALITION.

Some were there because their lives were personally touched by the problem; others were there because their work brought them "up close and personal" with the problem. The police were there; and the city hospital was there; the assisting agencies were there; and they called themselves a COALITION.

In the beginning, the problem, which the group determined, was alcohol; and their goal was to create strategies to deal with that problem on a City-wide level. Out of the hours of discussion and debate, IMPACT QUINCY was born. It would be the grassroots organization to bring awareness to the community.

ARTHUR KEOUGH

If the COALITION were asked then whether of not they knew what they were doing, a resounding answer would have been "NO!" No one was a community organizer. The coalition was made up of individual policemen, hospital workers, teachers, agency directors, and concerned parents. None of them really understood grassroots organizing. But as the weeks and the months and the years rolled by, significant headway was accomplished. The community awareness was achieved. Teenage drinking did decline; and IMPACT QUINCY became a recognized success.

Now flash forward to the present. We see another intrepid band of people getting together to do something about the problem of substance abuse; and they call themselves a COALITION.

The problem of today is hard drug addiction – heroin to be precise. More young people are becoming addicted and more overdoses are being recorded. It is difficult to find middle-aged addicts because most of them are dead. Today's COALITION attempts to build on the grassroots work of the past.

Reaching out to the health care first responders, training session were conducted. A month-long, public awareness, multi-media campaign on the danger of prescription drugs in the home medicine cabinet was organized. Currently, a Social Marketing Campaign with Quincy young adults is being developed.

The goal of this Campaign will be to discourage young adults from buying alcohol for minors

Finally, the Impact Quincy Peer Advocates have been formed, and they will use social media to reach their peers on issues of substance abuse. In all, the COALITION is building on its 20 plus years of existence.

The names of the individuals have changed; the participating organization are different; the problem has found a new, and more terrible face; and a temporary alliance has become something of a permanent fixture in the community. The COALITION continues because of the dedication and commitment of the individual members.

Nothing could be accomplished without them. They are all true heroes.

Impact Quincy:

A Community-Based Coalition

Impact Quincy (IQ), a program of Bay State Community Services, founded in 1991, is a community-based coalition consisting of educational, health, law enforcement, religious, professional and business organizations dedicated to fostering an environment which strengthens communications and relationships within the community.

Impact Quincy provides opportunities for the creation and support of community collaborations which promote and sustain a drug-free community and healthy living. This collaboration with key members of the Quincy community is invaluable to IQ's efforts.

IQ is currently working on three initiatives. First, a substance abuse prevention program to educate the Quincy community about responsible choices regarding underage drinking.

The second initiative is promoting a social marketing campaign to educate students and parents of middle school in Quincy to promote and reinforce healthy behaviors. The third initiative addresses the issue of opioid overdose in the City of Quincy.

IQ is funded by the Massachusetts Department of Public Health, Bureau of Substance Abuse Services, and by the Office of National Drug Control Policy, Drug-Free Community Program.

Wreath, Memories Mark Pearl Harbor 'Day Of Infamy'

President of the Vietnam Veterans of Quincy, Norton reflected on the dwindling numbers of veterans of the second World War and the bond he shares with veterans of all wars the United States has fought in.

"They're my brothers and sisters," said Norton. "I was wounded in Vietnam fighting communist insurgence. I feel a real bond with them."

The surprise Japanese attack at Pearl Harbor was devastating to the fleet of ships docked in Hawaii. Waves of 183 and then 170 planes, under the command of Admiral Isoroku Ymamoto, pummeled the anchored fleet and resulted in the United States going to war in the Pacific.

The casualties of Dec. 7, 1941 were staggering. The death toll reached 2,350, which included 68 civilians. So severely was the U.S.S. Arizona damaged that it split and sunk in a matter of minutes, killing 1,177 soldiers. By the end of the attack, nine U.S. ships were sunk and 21 were severely damaged. The airfields of Ford Island and other military installations were also attacked.

Norton said Quincy's remembrance of those who died at Pearl Harbor would continue long after the veterans of World War II pass away.

"It's something we're not going to let go," Norton said. "As long as there are a few of us to do this it will go on."

Norton called Quincy a very "patriotic city" and pointed out that Quincy veterans who gave their lives in both World War II and Vietnam were well above the national average.

The casualty number during World War II reached 240 while 48 soldiers gave their lives in Vietnam. Norton said the veterans should be thanked for the liberties we sometimes take for granted in this country.

"We can vote and we can say what's on our mind without worrying about going to jail, " Norton said. "People don't know how lucky they are here in America."

The bitter cold wind failed to deter the group of about 50 who gathered for the ceremony. "When they were at Pearl Harbor they couldn't pick the weather," said Tom Stansbury, Quincy's Director of Veterans Services. "We couldn't pick the weather today either."

Norton gave a description of the attack on American soil at Pearl Harbor and jumped ahead to the terrorist attacks on Sept.. 11, 2001 on the World Trade Towers.

"This attack took America by complete surprise," Norton said. "Let's pray to God this never happens again."

Moe Morant sang a rousing rendition of "America The Beautiful" while the North Quincy High ROTC Color Guard, led by Sergeant John DiLorenzo, stood tall holding the American flag.

Chaplain Richard Keene read the opening prayer to start the ceremony. "We give you thanks for all the comrades who have laid down their lives for our country," he said.

Senator-elect John Keenan said the number of World War II veterans in the United States is dropping every day and both Pearl Harbor and the veterans should be remembered.

"It's a long time since 1941," Keenan said. "This is very important to gather on days like today and remember them."

In his closing prayer, Keene asked that the current soldiers overseas return safely after serving their country proudly.

"We ask that you will strengthen and protect our armed forces," said Keene.

retirements, such as a recent one when the officer notified him of his retirement ten minutes before the end of his last shift."

"These decisions, while deeply personal, affect our planning," said Barron who said he does not use overtime during the daytime.

Laforest asked why demoted captains could not be temporarily reinstated during personnel shortages in an effort to save the overtime funds.

Barron said that has not been the practice of the department although that is the practice in other municipalities.

In addressing future concerns, Finn asked whether the staff from Quincy Center developer Street-Works had met with Barron regarding the renewal plan.

Finn pointed out that the department would someday be dealing with considerable change, new costs and possibly 20-story buildings.

As the meeting concluded, Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee requested a future meeting and a detailed report from Barron.

McNamee asked that the report list all personnel employed by the department, along with their salary and title, and, also, provide an "optimal profile" of the department staffing.

"I don't have any idea how far apart they are," said McNamee, referring to current staffing versus proper staffing.

During the discussions, each of the councillors commended firefighters for their dedication and Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci cited firefighters' outstanding work during the floods of last March.

Palmucci recalled witnessing "first-hand how professional and how competent and deeply concerned" firefighters were as they rescued, by boat, at-risk residents stranded in the floods.

Sun Citizen Of The Year Honor Renamed

Nominations Coming In For Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award

Nominations are coming in for The Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award – formerly The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year award.

The award – which has been presented annually by The Quincy Sun since 1985 – was renamed in memory of Mr. Bosworth, this newspaper's longtime publisher and founder.

A panel of judges selected Mr. Bosworth to receive the award posthumously last year. He passed away in February, 2009.

Mr. Bosworth was honored for dedicating much of his life to the city he loved and for supporting innumerable community, charitable and civic causes both personally and through the pages of this newspaper for more than 40 years.

Quincy Sun readers are again invited to nominate an individual they believe is most deserving of the award. As in past years, the award recognizes an individual for outstanding community service or a special achievement.

A nomination ballot to help the selection process appears below on this page of The Quincy Sun.

The ballot will be printed in each issue of The Sun until nominations close on Friday, Dec. 31. After Dec. 31, a judging panel will be selected to make the final choice from the nominations submitted.

If you know someone you would like to see recognized with the 2010 award, fill out the ballot and mail it to:

The Quincy Sun
Attn: Henry Bosworth Award
1372 Hancock St.
Quincy, MA 02169

Ballots can also be dropped off at The Sun office at the above address in Quincy Center by Dec. 31.

Those submitting nominations should identify themselves. Those submitting nominations are also encouraged to attach to the ballot a letter detailing the reason for their nomination.

Nominees can be past or present public officials, a member of an appointed board, a clergy member, a teacher or school administrator, a police or firefighter, someone in the business community, a sports figure, or an "unsung" neighbor, friend or community activist who has given freely or his or her time to a worthy project or cause.

Those nominated in the past are eligible to be nominated again. Since this is not a popularity contest, each nominee has an equal chance of being selected regardless of the number of nominations received. Anyone nominated just once has the same chance of being the award recipient.

The name of the winner will be announced in The Quincy Sun early next year.

Today From 9 A.M. To 4 P.M. Outside City Hall

24 More Community Leaders To Ring Bell For Salvation Army

The Salvation Army Community Leader Kettle will be set up again today (Thursday) outside Quincy City Hall in an effort to help raise money for the less fortunate this holliday season.

Twenty-four leaders representing a cross-section of the community will ring the bell beginning at 9 a.m. The last shift ends at 4 p.m.

They join the other 20 community leaders who volunteered to man the Salvation Army kettle last Thursday, Dec. 2.

All donations will benefit local families served by the Quincy Temple Corps of the Salvation Army located on Baxter Street.

The kettle drive is, and always has been, one of The Salvation Army's largest fundraising campaigns throughout the year, said Major Doug Burr of the Quincy Temple Corps.

"The red kettles are almost synonymous with Christmas and the monies raised during that time of year goes to support our work all year 'round. Without the public's generosity, we would be hard pressed to meet the needs of so many families as we do," said Major Doug Burr of the Salvation Army Quincy Corps.

Those scheduled to ring the bell today (Thursday) are:

• 9 a.m. – Mayor Tom Koch; Councillor Mike McFarland, Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro.

• 11 a.m. – Norfolk County District Attorney and Cong.-Elect William Keating; Don Uvanitte, Salvation Army Advisory Board member; Donna Mavromates, director of Marketing, Quincy Chamber of Commerce; Maralin Manning, director of Business Development, Quincy Chamber of Commerce.

• Noon – Marybeth Curran, president, Quincy Rotary Club; Bonnie Schwerin, president, Quincy Kiwanis Club, assistant vice president and branch manager, S-Bank; and Quincy School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro.

• 1 p.m. – Marion Fantucchio, Quincy assessor, Salvation Army Advisory Board; Patrick McDermott, Norfolk County Register of Probate; State Rep. Bruce Ayers; Thomas Crane Library Director Ann McLaughlin.

• 2 p.m. – Isobel Bertman, Rogers Jewelry, and Salvation Army Advisory Board member; John Farmer, Salvation Army Advisory Board member; Councillor Joseph Finn.

• 3 p.m. – Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee; School Committeewoman Emily Lebo; Mark O'Neill, Chief Financial Officer, Quincy Medical Center; John Yazwinski, president and CEO, Father Bill's & MainSpring.

Eastern Nazarene College Ranked Among 'Best Regional Colleges'

Eastern Nazarene College (ENC) in Quincy was recently ranked in the top tier of U.S. News & World Report's "Best Regional Colleges (North)" category for the magazine's nationwide report of the "Best Colleges of 2011."

The Quincy-based Christian liberal arts college ranked 31stoverall among the Tier 1 colleges in the North region. Among these top-tier regional colleges, ENC ranked 2nd in "Highest Proportion of Classes under 20 (Students)," 8th in campus "Ethnic Diversity," 11th in "Amount of Need-Based Aid Awarded" and 23rd in "Economic Diversity."

The Carnegie Classification of Institutions of Higher Education classifies institutions as "Regional Colleges" based on a primary focus on undergraduate studies, a wide range of liberal arts offerings and the number of graduate degrees offered.

"Since its founding more than a century ago, ENC has never wavered in its commitment to provide a high-quality liberal arts undergraduate education, where students enjoy unprecedented access to top-notch faculty within a spiritually enriching environment," said Dr. Timothy T. Wooster, provost and academic dean of Eastern Nazarene College.

"While rankings in general provide a snapshot of an institution at a given point in time, it's very gratifying for Eastern Nazarene College to be recognized among the top tier of regional colleges in the north."

To determine its rankings, U.S. News & World Report takes into consideration a variety of factors, including peer assessment, average freshman retention rate, average graduation rate, and the percentage of classes with fewer than 20 students and more than 50 students.

Other factors considered include a college's student/faculty ratio, percentage of full-time faculty, student SAT scores, the number of freshmen who graduated in the top 25 percent of their high school class, acceptance rate and average alumni giving rate.

Kemp's-Ridleys Stranded On Cape Cod Beaches

Quincy Animal Care Center Nursing Endangered Turtles Back To Health

By JOE REARDON

New England Aquarium marine biologists, working at the new holding aquarium on the Fore River Shipyard site, have been following a highly detailed process to bring the Kemp's-Ridley Sea Turtles back to health.

The turtles, the most endangered in the world, strand themselves on lower Cape Cod beaches from Dennis to Truro during the fall months while following the Northwest winds.

The chances, though, of the turtles beaching themselves in the Quincy area is extremely rare because they normally become stranded on the Eastern side of Cape Cod Bay.

The overwhelming majority of the turtles wound up on the lower Cape. The chances of a turtle being found even in Bourne are extremely slim.

Last year, three of the turtles made it as far as the South Shore. Two were found dead in Hingham, while one on Duxbury Beach survived.

In the five-day period from Thanksgiving to the following Monday, 41 Kemp's-Ridleys were collected and taken to a holding facility in Wellfleet. From there, they were transferred to the 240 by 100-foot restored structure at the shipyard that houses state-of-the-art equipment pertaining to caring for sea life.

The $3.7 million facility includes high tech filters, pumps and water tanks that can hold dozens of various types of sea life. About $1.5 million more is expected to go towards more work needed in the aquarium. More than 750 species of sea life could ultimately spend time at the holding facility

When the animals arrive, the workers must first determine whether the turtles are still alive, a process that sometimes proves harder than it sounds because of the reptiles' extremely low metabolism.

"A turtle can be alive with its body temperature in the low 40s and one heartbeat per minute," said Tony LaCasse of the New England Aquarium. "It's hard to determine if they're dead or alive."

The turtles tend to be suffering from hypothermia, caused by severe dehydration from using their own body fat for warmth. The turtles are then methodically warmed with saline and glucose at a rate of 5 degrees per day as not to shock their system.

They are kept in different temperature tanks so they can transition from 54-degree water to their natural habitat of 73-degrees without harm. Eventually, they will be returned to the warmer waters in the Gulf of Mexico.

After being cleaned up, blood is drawn to determine how many white and red cells the animals have. A health profile is put together on each individual turtle. "It gives us an idea how to proceed," LaCasse said.

Because the turtles haven't moved for a long period of time, they run the risk of developing bacteria. If the turtles are warmed too quickly, the bacteria multiply exponentially. To avoid complications, antibiotics and antifungal medicines are administered to the turtles.

Many turtles that have been at the aquarium for much of the fall have been transported to various other aquariums in Georgia, Virginia, Maryland and Maine.

Aquarium officials looked at different locations within Boston before heading south and securing a 20-year lease from shipyard owner Jay Cashman, of the Cashman Co., for the holding area to be on the grounds of the shipyard.

The facility will eventually include between 20-30 tanks, the largest being 30-feet in diameter and 6-feet deep. The facility also includes loading and work zones and exam rooms. It became operational in the summer and expanded this fall.

The animals will be collected from various locations in the U.S.

The marine animal rescue team rescues and rehabilitates stranded, injured and diseased marine animals from along the Massachusetts and New Hampshire coast. The animals include whales, dolphins, porpoises and seals, among others.

vation project at City Hall. During that preservation project, workers identified a letter personally written by President John Quincy Adams regarding the Adams family burial details.

Perdios explained that the state's preservation fund benefits from a tax on every real estate transaction in the state. However, fewer than half of the state's cities and towns get a portion of those funds. Quincy is one of only 140 of the 351 state's cities and towns who have adopted the preservation program.

Councillors commended Perdios for his work for the environment and as chairman of the CPC.

City Council President Kevin Coughlin sited Perdios' work for passage of the CPA in Quincy and in the years since.

"You were the architect of this art as far as passage in this city," said Coughlin.

This year, Quincy's preservation funds total over $1.6 million, which must be allocated to open space, historic restoration, affordable house and the creations of parks.

Perdios said that $905,200 of the $1.6 million will cover bond payments for the 2007 purchase of lands at Faxon Park (3 ½ acres), Sea Street (3 ½ acres) and the Joyce Parcel.

Perdios also provided charts that show the average property owner ($330,755 home) will pay on $30.51 for preservation projects and that certain seniors and low-income residents can apply for exemptions.

Quincy Point Community Christmas Celebration Sunday

A Quincy Point Community Christmas Celebration will be held Sunday, Dec. 12 at 4:30 p.m. in the auditorium at 1000 Southern Artery.

The public is invited to hear many different musical ensembles from the Point community. There will also be a Christmas Carol Sing-A-Long and refreshments.

The celebration will feature the Quincy Point Congregational Church Chancel Choir, the Point Handbell Ringers, faculty and students from the Quincy Point Music Academy, and members of the St. Joseph's Catholic Church Music Ministry.

Bank Of Canton Hires Jane Connolly As Vice President Commercial Lending

JANE CONNOLLY

Jane Connolly has joined the Bank of Canton's Brookline branch as Vice President of Commercial Lending, announces Bank President and CEO Stephen Costello.

With over 21 years experience in the banking industry, Connolly's primary duties include managing a commercial loan portfolio and developing and maintaining successful relationships with contacts throughout the Greater Boston business community.

"We are very pleased to welcome Jane to the Bank of Canton family," Costello said. "Her professionalism, commercial banking experience, and business development skills will be a huge asset to the Bank and our customers. We're confident her expertise will pay dividends for our commercial lending team."

Prior to joining Bank of Canton, Connolly served as a market leader within the Business Lending Products Division at Bank of America, managing a business loan underwriting group. She has also held several commercial lending and leadership roles within Bank of America and its predecessor banks, including 10 years of experience as a commercial loan officer serving privately-held companies and small businesses.

Connolly graduated with a Bachelor of Arts degree from Brown University in Providence, RI and went on to earn her MBA from Babson College in Wellesley, MA. She live in Wellesley with her husband Kevin. They are the proud parents of two children, Meredith and Patrick.

Besides Brookline, the Bank of Canton has branches in Quincy, Canton, Randolph and Hyannis.

Neil McCole Candidate For Ward 5 Councillor

NEIL McCOLE

Neil McCole announces he will run for the Ward 5 City Council seat being vacated by incumbent Doug Gutro next fall.

McCole, who will be making his first run for elective office, says he has been active in various community initiatives throughout the city.

He is known mostly for his commitments to two major community groups in Quincy: The Friends of Wollaston Beach and The Ward 5 Community Association. McCole is the current president of FWB coming up on his fourth year as the non-profit's president.

During his tenure FWB has acquired close to $100,000 in grants and awards for capital improvements and family events to rejuvenate the Wollaston waterfront.

He is also the longtime vice-president of The Ward 5 Community Association. The W5CA has presented several scholarships for NQHS and QHS grads and held several family and senior events in recent years.

More recently, McCole has coached in Quincy Youth Soccer and Sacred Heart Basketball League.

"I've always enjoyed working in the community, something I learned many years ago from my parents who cared for the elderly owning a nursing home. Giving back is an important part of my life".

McCole moved to Quincy in 2000 and is married with four children. His wife, Cheryl Devin-McCole, is a lifelong Ward 5 resident. Her parents, Michael and Patricia Devin, still reside in Ward 5.

McCole's children range from a NQHS grad, now a student at Quincy College. to a student at Beechwood Knoll School.

"I feel Quincy Public Schools are very strong with excellent leadership from teachers, to administrators, to the School Committee. As adults, we need to be sure every young student has the opportunity to be successful."

He works for New England College of Business and Finance in Boston where he leads the Corporate Partnership Team to provide educational opportunities for working adults.

"I believe education is a lifelong process and I thoroughly enjoy meeting with corporate leaders and employees to help working adults achieve their educational goals. Education can have a major impact on an individual's career and a family's finances," he said.

McCole received a BSBA with his undergraduate work at Eastern Nazarene College and Bentley University. He has MBA course work and is currently finalizing a Master's of Science in Finance degree from NECB.

McCole said his experience in his career complements his community outreach and education. He has worked in various leadership roles in large corporations, with Blue Cross Blue Shield of MA and University of Phoenix. He has also been heavily involved in small business via three different family owned and operated businesses.

"I understand the challenges our small business owners face every day, so I am prepared to work with them in any way possible. They are a critical component to economic growth locally, statewide, and nationally," McCole said.

In discussing his decision to run, he said, "I feel public service is a calling. The time is right for me to move into a greater role of service for our wonderful community. I am excited about the future of Ward 5 and the City as a whole. Ward 5 needs to continue to have the strong representation that was so evident under Councillor Gutro. I feel my experiences and passion will continue that tradition".

McCole will continue to serve as president of FWB and vice president of Ward 5 Community Association until the appropriate time comes to step aside. "We've had great success over the past few years as individual groups and in collaboration. There are great initiatives in the works for both groups and I plan to stay committed to helping those organizations and the many wonderful people who volunteer in those groups."

A Job Well Done

On Thursday, Thanksgiving, Nov. 25, 2010, at approximately 4:15 p.m., Officers' M.J. O'Brien, Jamie Curran and Tim Simmons were dispatched to the area of the Hancock Parking Area (50 Revere Rd.) on a report of two suspicious males looking into cars and hanging behind rear doors of various businesses.

LT. DAN MINTON

Dispatchers then tuned the cameras located in the Square towards where the suspects were and observed the suspects trying the rear doors to several businesses. As the suspects entered the construction site (Derenzo Site) and headed up towards Hancock Street, Quincy Control lost site of the suspects but were able to provide clothing descriptions of the suspects, with one carrying a black backpack. The officers located the two suspects on Hancock Street directly across from Brother's Roast Beef.

After a brief conversation, it was determined that the two 15 year-old suspects resided in Dorchester and came to Quincy to visit a friend. When asked their friend's name and where he lived, neither of them responded, instead they just stared at each other.

After several moments of looking at each other, suspect #1 said, "His name is Tim and he lives down there," pointing south on Hancock Street with his finger. The Officers believed that the suspect's story was untruthful and this just enhanced their focus on what the suspects were up to. (Officer O'Brien and Dispatcher Roger White conferred to determine what evidence they had collectively.)

Officer White said that he received a "911" hang up call from the pay phone located at 1431 Hancock St. The caller said that the two males were acting suspiciously, then hung up. Officer White immediately maneuvered the camera so that they could view the area from Quincy Control. Officer White stated that they observed the two suspects in the area of the pay phone, ducking into doorways along Hancock Street. It should be noted that the majority of the businesses in Quincy Center were closed due to the Thanksgiving holiday.

Officer White stated that he observed the suspect trying several doors in the area of the Stadium Bar and Grille. The suspects then crossed Hancock Street and headed down the alley that leads to the Hancock Parking Area. Officer White observed the suspect with the green hoodie (suspect #1) trying several doors in the area of the Texas Saloon. The second suspect acted as a look out.

The suspects then walked out of range of the cameras, but were soon after stopped by the responding Officers. Warrant checks on both suspects showed a CHINS Warrant on suspect #1, but suspect #2 had no warrants. Suspect #1 was placed under arrest for the warrant. During a search incident to arrest, a pair of 14 inch bolt cutters were found in his backpack. The Officers also found 3 credit cards in the backpack belonging to another person.

The suspect blurted out, "I found those in front of my house!" Due to the fact that suspect #1 was 15 years old and has no legitimate purpose to be carrying around bolt cutters on Thanksgiving Day and the fact that he was in possession of someone else's credit cards, coupled with Officer White's observations via camera, suspect #1 was placed under arrest for Possession of Burglarious Tools, along with the warrant. I respectfully request BCI follow up with the credit card companies to determine if in fact the credit cards were stolen. Detectives will follow up on the credit cards to determine if additional charges will be forthcoming.

Nice Work!

KNOCK-OFFS AND BOGUS GOODS: Be careful, especially online, making purchases of brand names at various sites that offer the item at a significant discount that well known sites or stores can't match. An example of this is "UGGS."

A pair of tall UGGS consistently sells for $180.00 at stores locally, but online at unknown/qustionable sites, the UGGS are selling at $125.00. The sites appear to be legitimate, in that you will get your boots, but there is a good chance that they will be "knock-offs" – a product that appears to be the actual product, supported by that particular company's logo, but is an inferior product. Look for actual physical addresses at the online site. Look for telephone numbers and see where it is regis-

Spreading Happiness To Poor Children Half A World Away

Quincy's Katie Turowski Sews Dresses For Little Girls, Infants In Central Africa

By JOE REARDON

Katie Turowski has made it her mission to bring a little happiness, no matter how small, to children living in horrendous poverty half a world away.

The pretty blond with the infectious smile started last summer and has immersed herself into sewing bright, colorful dresses for little girls and infants in poverty-stricken countries in central Africa.

The Christian-based organization, Little Dresses For Africa, ships the dresses to the small country of Malawi where they are distributed through orphanages, churches and schools. To date, more than 120,000 dresses have been shipped to 16 countries.

Turkowski makes it a point to send the dresses anonymously.

"I'm not doing it for the attention," she said. "I know where the dresses are going. It shows the girls in Africa that they're worthy people. These little kids really need it."

Turowski, who graduated from North Quincy High in 1977, has taken extra steps, though, when sewing the dresses. Because they are washed outdoors in rivers or ponds, she makes it a point to double stitch the waist and neck areas so the colorful dresses don't come apart.

"They're made to stand up because I know what they're headed for," said Turowski.

Turowski also doesn't add any sort of buttons on the dresses that may come off during washings. She does, however, sew in a small pocket, which comfortably fits the small stuffed Teddy Bears she also sends along with the dresses.

"Teddy Bears are universal," she said with a smile. "All kids love Teddy Bears."

Turowski does the bulk of her sewing in the evening after she comes home from work from the Quincy Medical Center, where she works in the radiology department. She cooks dinner for herself and her husband, Paul, a Quincy Police Officer, does a load or two of laundry and then dives into the dressmaking.

Ironically, Turowski took up sewing 10 years ago because she didn't like the scrubs she wore at work. She bought a sewing machine and material, and made her own scrubs.

"I decided I really didn't like them and that I was going to make my own," Turowski said.

Once she begins working on the dresses, Turowski gets what she calls "in the zone" and sews for up to four hours at a time while listening to her audio books. "When I get in the zone I can't stop," she said. "I feel like it's my time then."

Turowski has sewn so many dresses she's at the point where it takes her just 30 minutes to complete one. Paul has backed her 100 percent in her efforts and is always very interested to see the finished products.

"He's so proud of this, I'm amazed," Turowski said. "I keep going because of my passion but also because of the look on Paul's face when he sees the dresses."

Paul has always been proud of his wife and he's not surprised that she has taken on the project with a vengeance. "The pocket and the Teddy Bears, that's something she came up with," he said. "Anything she goes after I support her 1,000 percent. She's probably on her third sewing machine now. No matter what she puts out, it has a certain flair to it.

"She enjoys it. We both enjoy life. We try to contribute when we can, what we can, where we can."

Turowski has every intention to continue sewing dresses and would encourage anyone to do the same. "If you put a dress together for a little girl who has nothing, I guarantee you'll make as many as you're able," she said. "I'll sew my fingers to the bone making these dresses. I haven't lost my passion for making the dresses."

A FLOWERED AND STRIPED dress, and a smaller dress for an infant are two of the patterns Katie Turowski used when sewing 100 dresses for children in Africa.

KATIE TUROWSKI holds a panda bear dress and a light green polka dot sundress that will eventually clothe African girls who are living in horrendous poverty.

CHRISTMAS ON CHRISTMAS ISLAND – This 25-foot blue spruce – decorated with holiday lights – adorns the traffic island on Hancock Street in Quincy Center which has been known for years as Christmas Island. The island was dedicated some years ago in memory of George Fay, the longtime director of the Quincy Christmas Festival Parade. Mr. Fay, who was active in many civic and charitable causes, died April 7, 1981. This tree is not permanent – it was one of two trees cut down at the entrance of Sacred Heart School because they were overgrown. The other tree was lighted and stands at Gilbert Park in Squantum. "This will help spread some of the Christmas spirit downtown," said Mayor Tom Koch who came up with the idea to temporarily relocate the trees after they were cut down. Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Bosworth

Holiday 'Heart To Heart' Tree At Quincy Community United Methodist

The Quincy Community United Methodist Church 40 Beale St. invites the public to participate in the Heart to Heart Tree on the second floor of the church outside the sanctuary through Dec. 24.

For a donation of $2, the church will place a spun glass heart ornament on its "Heart to Heart" tree. The ornaments can let someone express their thoughts and feelings this time of year.

"Originally, the heart ornaments were meant to be given to people who are experiencing a difficult holiday season, as a way of letting them know someone cares," said Rev. Dr. Susan F. Jarek-Glidden, pastor of Quincy Community United Methodist Church, who invented the concept of the Heart to Heart Tree.

The idea, however, grew from that original concept.

"Although most of the hearts are still given to people who are hurting, some individuals have given them to people who have made a difference in their lives, such as mentors, friends, family members, and neighbors," Rev. Dr. Jarek-Glidden said. "It's a way of expressing feelings, a way of saying 'Thank you' as well as 'I care.'"

For more information about Quincy Community United Methodist Church's Heart to Heart Tree or about the church itself, call the church office at 617-773-3319.

SPOTLIGHT on HEALTH and FITNESS

Quincy Lions Club, QMC Free Health Screenings Dec. 11, 12

The Quincy Lions Club and Quincy Medical Center are joining forces to offer free community health screenings to local residents at local Walgreens drug stores on Saturday, Dec. 11 and Sunday, Dec. 12.

That weekend, the Lions District 33K Eyemobile will be stationed from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Walgreens drug stores at 324 Hancock St. (Dec. 11) and 418 Quincy Ave. (Dec. 12) to provide free vision and hearing screenings to local residents.

Quincy Medical Center staff will also be on hand to provide free blood sugar and blood pressure screenings.

"This is a great opportunity for people to take a few moments out of their holiday shopping to receive some valuable free health screenings," Quincy Lions Club President Loretta McTiernan said. "As people rush around during the holidays, it's important to remember that good health is one of the greatest gifts of all."

"We are pleased to work together with the Quincy Lions Club and Walgreens pharmacy to help make it easier for people in our community to access these important health screenings," said Lola Tom, manager of community outreach and Asian services at Quincy Medical Center.

In 2011, the Quincy Lions Club will celebrate its 70th anniversary of serving the local community. Through such events as its annual Halloween Pancake Breakfast, Holiday Wine Tasting and 5K Run/Walk for Sight, the Quincy Lions Club raises funds to support eye research and to provide free eyeglasses, eye exams, college scholarships and other assistance to local residents.

For more information, visit www.quincylionsclub.org.

QUINCY LIONS CLUB and Quincy Medical Center will offer free community health screenings to local residents at local Walgreens drug stores on Saturday, Dec. 11 and Sunday, Dec. 12. The Lions Eyemobil will be stationed from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Walgreens at 324 Hancock St. Dec. 11 and at 418 Qincy Ave. Dec. 12.

Dr. Georgina Nouaime New Medical Director Of QMC Hospitalist Program

Quincy Medical Center (QMC) announces Georgina Nouaime, MD, has joined its medical staff and will serve as Medical Director for the QMC hospitalist program.

"Dr. Nouaime comes to us heralded for her level of commitment, dedication, and positive energy," said Apurv Gupta, MD, Chief Medical Officer. "We look forward to her leadership as we continue building an exceptional Hospitalist Program."

Dr. Nouaime is board certified in internal medicine and has extensive experience in primary care and hospitalist medicine. Most recently, she practiced at Bellevue Medical Center in Mansourieh, Lebanon, where she established a hospitalist program following the American hospitalist program standards. Previously, she was a hospitalist at Falmouth Hospital in Falmouth, MA, and had her own primary care practice in Bourne.

DR. GEORGINA NOUAIME

Dr. Nouaime earned her medical degree at Saint Joseph University Medical School, Beirut, Lebanon and completed her internal medicine internship and residency at Jacobi Hospital, the teaching Hospital of the Albert Einstein College of Medicine, Bronx, NY. She is a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society and the American College of Physician Executives.

Natural Remedies For Cold And Flu Season

(NAPSA)-Parents of young children know that colds and allergies are nothing to sneeze at. And when the flu strikes a household, they know that every member of the family is at risk of getting it. For years, families have turned to traditional children's cold products to help ward away illness, but with the recent spate of recalls of these products in the news, concerned parents should be aware that there are many drug-free alternatives for treating their child's cold, allergy and flu symptoms.

While a parent's first step should always be to consult a doctor when a child is sick, there are other natural ways to ward off germs and ease the symptoms associated with cold and flu season.

First, always remind your youngsters to wash their hands or use an all-natural hand sanitizer after using the bathroom and before and after eating. Hands should always be washed in warm, soapy water (for as long as it takes to sing the "Happy Birthday" song twice). Remember, parents, the more you practice at home, the more your children will keep it in mind when they're at school and under someone else's supervision.

If a member of your family becomes ill, a study has shown that soup can ease the symptoms of upper respiratory tract infections that include nasal congestion, sore throat and coughing. The study, which was published in the publication Chest, showed scientists have discovered that soup contains an anti-inflammatory mechanism, and that warm liquid can be very effective at alleviating symptoms.

Nasal irrigation is also a popular technique that is extremely effective at naturally eliminating the sources of nasal discomfort caused by colds, allergies and sinus congestion. Parents who use neti pots know that they are used by pouring a salt water solution into one nostril while tilting the head and letting it run out through the other nostril, using gravity as an aid. But parents also know that, while helpful, the neti pot can be awkward and especially uncomfortable for young children.

Simply Saline(r) offers a line of nasal products made from purified water and salt that share the same benefits as a neti pot, but come in portable cans and offer easy-to-use application nozzles to eliminate any awkwardness or discomfort. The nasal products (from the makers of Arm & Hammer(r)) include Baby Simply Saline(r) Sterile Saline Nasal Mist and Simply Saline(r) Children's Allergy & Sinus Relief Sterile Nasal Mist. Since the products are made from naturally derived ingredients, they can be used as frequently as needed, have no known side effects and won't damage an infant's delicate nasal tissue.

Another popular homemade remedy uses buckwheat honey to help alleviate coughs. Archives of Pediatrics and Adolescent Medicine recommends half a teaspoon of the honey for children 2 to 5 years old, a teaspoon for children 6 to 11 years old and two teaspoons for children over 12. Honey should not be given to children under 1 year of age as it is associated with infant botulism.

Quincy's Aaron Lee Helps 'Kick Cancer'

Aaron Lee, 18, of Quincy, helped "Kick Cancer" at the New England Patriots/Indianapolis Colts game Nov. 21 at Gillette Stadium.

Lee was one of 20 pediatric cancer patients being treated at Dana-Farber/Children's Hospital Cancer Care who kicked a football down the field at halftime.

The ceremony was part of the New England Patriots Charitable Foundation's season-long initiative, "Kick Cancer," to increase cancer awareness among Patriots fans.

Taking Three To Heart: Know The Cholesterol Three

(NAPSA)-Some important health issues also come in threes. Cholesterol, for instance.

Cholesterol is a type of fatty substance, also known as a lipid. Your body makes cholesterol, but it also comes from some foods you eat. Your body needs some cholesterol to function, but the wrong amounts of cholesterol can put you at risk for heart disease, heart attack or stroke. Here are the facts:

HDL (high-density lipoprotein) is "good" cholesterol because it carries cholesterol from the arteries to the liver, where it's removed from the body. While having low levels of HDL may increase your risk for heart disease, high levels of HDL seem to protect against heart disease. You can help increase your HDL levels through lifestyle changes such as getting more physical activity and choosing healthier fats like those that are found in olive oil, nuts and fish.

LDL (low-density lipoprotein) is considered the "bad" cholesterol. If too much LDL is in the blood, it can build up in your arteries. Together with other substances, LDL forms plaque that can restrict blood flow to your heart and brain. Having high levels of LDL in your blood can lead to heart disease, heart attack or stroke.

Triglycerides, often called "trigs," are the third main part of cholesterol. Trigs are produced in the liver and also come from foods that you eat. Like LDL, high levels of trigs may contribute to the narrowing and hardening of arteries, making it hard for blood to flow. And, in fact, many people with a high triglyceride level often have high bad cholesterol and low good cholesterol.

"It's important to address the three main types of lipid levels. You need to pay attention to high LDL and triglyceride levels, and low HDL levels," says Dr. Peter Alagona, associate professor of medicine and radiology at Penn State College of Medicine and Program Director, General Cardiology at Penn State Heart and Vascular Institute.

Try these practical tips to raise your HDL and lower LDL and trigs:

1. Cook low fat: bake, broil, grill, steam, poach or boil.
2. Exercise: It's okay to break it into three 10-minute segments.
3. Don't skip meals: It can make you hungry and lead you to overeat.
4. Read nutrition labels to avoid harmful saturated fats and trans-fat.
5. If your doctor has prescribed medication, set the alarm of your cell phone as a reminder of when it's time to take it.

"A heart-healthy diet, moderate exercise and, for some people, medications are the keys to managing and maintaining your lipid levels," says Dr. Alagona.

BACK-BREAKING WORK

For older, out-of-shape individuals, shoveling snow may be a potentially dangerous endeavor. This stark warning is intended to dissuade non-exercising people in poor physical shape from thinking that they can tackle a job as strenuous as shoveling snow. Those unprepared for the stress of shoveling snow are at increased risk of sustaining pulled muscles, sprains, and back injuries. Thus, men and women who are over the age of 45 and are not physically active should not shovel snow. On the other hand, those prepared to tackle shoveling the white stuff should warm up first (by jogging in place and stretching), use an ergonomically correct shovel, and lift the snow by bending at the knees and lifting with their legs.

Gutter Extension Didn't Solve Basement Leak

Q: Six months ago, I had the gutters rerouted to drain to the backyard in order to solve a problem of water leaking into the basement. I also had the gutters cleaned a month ago. However, when we had a big rain two weeks ago, water leaked into the basement on the left side of the house -- the side I did the gutter extension on. What's happening? Will a new gutter system solve the problem? -- Mary B., Chicago

A: A gutter extension is an inexpensive way to direct rainwater away from the side and foundation of the house. And a twice-yearly gutter cleaning also helps keep gutters from overflowing where debris dams up.

If your gutters are in good condition -- not cracked, broken, filled with debris or leaking extensively -- then a new gutter system is probably not the solution.

During the next rain, look at how the water drains away in your backyard. Does it drain back toward the house? In the area that the gutter extension drains, which direction does it drain? If the ground slopes back toward the house, no extension is going to stop that water flow.

Next, inspect the foundation on the outside of the house and in the basement. A visual inspection is all that's necessary. Do you notice any big cracks or damage outside or inside? Do you notice water pooling around the foundation?

Finally, whether you see damage or pooling -- or not -- contact a foundation specialist to look at the problem. Foundation or yard drainage repairs can be expensive, but the damage that continual water seepage can do to your home is even more expensive. Additionally, contact the company that installed the gutter extension. If your drainage problem hasn't been resolved, have them look at the problem as well. A simpler fix, like adjusting the gutter extension or improving the drainage area, might be all it takes.

HOME TIP: Keep your home's foundation free of debris and foliage growth by trimming shrubs and grass a foot back, to reduce the risk of water seepage.

NFPA Urges Caution When Decorating, Entertaining This Season

Holidays Are Fraught With Fire Hazards

While it may seem Scrooge-like to think about fire hazards during the holidays, many of the activities people engage in – cooking, entertaining, and decorating – all present increased fire risks.

According to the nonprofit National Fire Protection Association (NFPA), candles and Christmas trees play a role in these incidents.

Fortunately, the vast majority of holiday fires are preventable, notes Lorraine Carli, NFPA's vice president of communications.

"Certainly, no one needs to abandon their holiday traditions and activities," says Carli. "But by understanding where potential hazards exist, and making some minor adjustments, people can greatly increase their homes' and loved ones' safety, and enjoy the season as planned."

NFPA offers the following information and advice to ensure a festive and safe holiday season:

Cooking: Cooking equipment fires are the leading cause of U.S. home fires and fire injuries, and the third leading cause of home fire deaths. In 2008, relative to an average day, the number of home cooking equipment fires was 55% higher on Christmas Eve and 68% higher on Christmas Day.

Stay in the kitchen while you're frying, grilling or broiling food. Most cooking fires involve the stovetop. Keep anything that can catch fire away from it, and turn off the stove when you leave the kitchen, even if it's for a short period of time.

If you're simmering, boiling, baking or roasting food, check it regularly and use a timer to remind you that you're cooking. For homes with children, create a "kid-free zone" of at least three feet around the stove and areas where hot food and drinks are prepared or carried.

Christmas Trees: U.S. fire departments annually respond to roughly 260 home structure fires that began with Christmas trees. One third of them are caused by electrical problems, and one in five resulted from a heat source that's too close to the tree.

If you have an artificial tree, be sure it's labeled, certified or identified by the manufacturer as fire-retardant. If you choose a fresh tree, make sure the green needles don't fall off when touched; before placing it in the stand, cut 1-2" from the base of the trunk. Add water to the tree stand, and be sure to water it daily.

Make sure the tree is not blocking an exit, and is at least three feet away from any heat source, like fireplaces, radiators, candles and heat vents or lights. Use lights that have the label of an independent testing laboratory, and make sure you know whether they are designed for indoor or outdoor use.

Replace any string of lights with worn or broken cords, or loose bulb connections. Connect no more than three strands of mini-string sets and a maximum of 50 bulbs for screw-in bulbs. Never use lit candles to decorate the tree.

Read the manufacturer's instructions for the number of LED strands to connect. Always turn off Christmas tree lights before leaving the room or going to bed.

After Christmas, get rid of the tree. Dried-out trees are a fire hazard and should not be left in the home or garage, or placed outside the home. Bring outdoor electrical lights inside after the holidays to prevent hazards and make them last longer.

Candles: December is the peak month for home candle fires, with Christmas Eve and Christmas Day representing two of the five top days for associated fires. NFPA statistics show that more than half of all candle fires start when placing them too close to things that can burn.

Consider using flameless candles, which look and smell like real candles. If you do use traditional candles, keep them at least 12" away from anything that can burn, and remember to blow them out when you leave the room or go to bed.

Use candle holders that are sturdy, won't tip over and are placed on uncluttered surfaces. Avoid using candles in the bedroom where two of five U.S. candle fires begin or other areas where people may fall asleep.

Never leave a child alone in a room with a burning candle. For additional resources and information about holiday fire safety, including audio clips, videos and safety sheets, visit NFPA's website at http://www.nfpa.org/holiday.

The Quincy-based National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) is a worldwide leader in providing fire, electrical, building, and life safety to the public since 1896. The mission of the international nonprofit organization is to reduce the worldwide burden of fire and other hazards on the quality of life by providing and advocating consensus codes and standards, research, training, and education. Get A Big Bang For Your Energy-Efficient Dollar

(NAPSA)-There's a vast array of energy-saving "to dos." These helpful tips can guide you:

Start with the Right Caulk-Silicone: The Long-Lasting Weatherization Solution. According to the U.S. Department of Energy, you can save 10 percent or more on your energy bill by air sealing. However, not all caulk provides energy savings over time. One hundred percent silicone caulk does. Leaks frequently occur in and around homes in places where extreme temperature fluctuations, moisture, humidity and damaging UV rays take their toll. Unlike acrylic caulk, which is vulnerable to these elements and can break down over time, silicone remains permanently flexible, shrinkproof, crack-proof and waterproof. In fact, 100 percent silicone remains unaffected by all weather and temperature conditions, so it helps prevent gaps and cracks, through which energy dollars can pass, from reforming. Look for GE Silicone II Window & Door or GE Silicone II W/D Supreme. If you need to paint the area, try new Groov by GE, which performs and lasts like a silicone and is easy to apply and paint like an acrylic.

Install Programmable Thermostats in the Proper Location. According to energystar.gov, you can save about $180 a year by properly setting and maintaining programmable thermostat units. But be sure the unit is mounted on an interior wall away from heating or cooling vents or other sources of heat or drafts. A false reading as a result of cool drafts or excessive warm air can lead to unnecessary energy consumption.

CFLs: Today's New Styles Are Brighter. The average CFL lightbulb will save you about $30 over its lifetime and pay for itself in about six months, according to energystar.gov. Want to be more energy efficient but find that the light is too dim? Try a brighter bulb-CFL equivalencies are based on the overall light output of the bulbs. Because CFL light appears diffuse, however, the same output isn't always enough.

Property Protection Tips For Winter Weather

With this year's winter season settling upon the U.S., the Institute for Business & Home Safety (IBHS) is offering guidance on how business and home owners can protect their property from winter weather-related perils.

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) predicts "extreme weather patterns for different regions of the country this winter." NOAA's forecast calls for the Pacific Northwest to have a colder and wetter than average winter, while the South may be warmer and drier than usual.

Winter storms cost $770 million in 2009, according to insurance industry data. "Last year we saw just how dangerous and damaging winter weather can be," said Julie Rochman, CEO and president of the IBHS. "Taking steps to prepare your home or business to resist the effects of winter storms will help you avoid costly losses."

Ice Dams

An ice dam is an accumulation of ice at the lower edge of a sloped roof, usually at the gutter. When interior heat melts the snow on the roof, the water will run down and refreeze at the roof's edge, where temperatures are much cooler. The ice builds up and blocks water from draining off of the roof, forcing the water under the roof covering and into the attic or down the inside walls of the house. This two-step approach decreases the likelihood that ice dams will form or, at least, reduces their size:

- Keep the attic well ventilated. The colder the attic, the less melting and refreezing on the roof.
- Keep the attic floor well insulated to minimize the amount of heat rising through the attic from within the house.
- As an extra precaution against roof leaks in case ice dams do form, when reroofing install a water-repellent membrane under your roof covering that extends inward 2-feet beyond the exterior walls of the heated portion of the building.

Freezing Pipes

Frozen water in pipes can cause water pressure buildup between the ice blockage and the closed faucet at the end of a pipe, which leads to pipes bursting at their weakest point. Pipes in attics, crawl spaces and outside walls are particularly vulnerable to freezing in extremely cold weather. Frozen pipes can also occur when pipes are near holes in your house's outside wall including where television, cable or telephone lines enter the house. To keep water in pipes from freezing, take the following steps:

- Fit exposed pipes with insulation sleeves or wrapping to slow the heat transfer. The more insulation the better.
- Seal cracks and holes in outside walls and foundations near water pipes with caulking.
- Keep cabinet doors open during cold spells to allow warm air to circulate around pipes (particularly in the kitchen and bathroom).
- Keep a slow drip of water flowing through faucets connected to pipes that run through an unheated or unprotected space. Or drain the water system, especially if your house will be unattended during cold periods.

Is Your Roof Strong Enough?

The snow load risk of a roof depends in large part on the age of the structure. Older roofs can suffer from corrosion of members and connections which can reduce the ability to resist high snow loads. In addition, buildings with lightweight roofs, such as metal buildings, typically have less capacity to handle a high snow load. For flat roofs, the step-down area between roof sections presents a problem due to the tendency for ice and snow collection.

The best source for determining how much snow load a building can handle is the original design plan. Most roof designs can support at least 20 pounds per square foot. However, design loads can range from 10 pounds to 20 pounds per square foot in Mid-Atlantic states, and between 40 pounds and 70 pounds per square foot in New England.

Guidelines to Estimate Snow Weight

- 10 inches-12 inches of fresh/new snow equals about five pounds per square foot of roof space.
- Three to five inches of old/packed snow equals about five pounds per square foot of roof space.
- Ice is much heavier, with one inch equaling about one foot of fresh snow.

Snow and Ice Removal from Roofs

IBHS recommends that property owners not attempt to climb on their roof to remove snow. A safer alternative is to use a snow rake while standing at ground level. Check your local hardware store or online stores to find snow rakes.

Visit the IBHS Severe Winter Weather page on disastersafety.org to learn more about how to protect your home or business against roof collapse and other winter weather-related perils.

Trains at the Cyr-Farrell Boxing Gym in Quincy

Amanda Pavone: Fighting Her Way To The Top

By SEAN BRENNAN

If someone sat you down and told you that a local fighter is quickly becoming known on the boxing circuit for their tenacious style, hard-punching attack, and their ability to dole out and accept punishment, how many of you would guess someone named Rocky or Mickey or Manny?

How about Amanda?

Over the past year-and-a-half, Amanda Pavone, 25, of Quincy, by way of Burlington, has exploded onto the amateur boxing scene, becoming a major force to be reckoned with inside the ropes.

Pavone, who trains six days a week at the Cyr-Farrell Boxing Gym in Quincy Center, started her career back in June of 2009 under the tutelage of boxing guru Jimmy Farrell, and she has already made an impression on the veteran trainer by compiling a 9-0 record, which includes four knockouts and first-place finishes in such prestigious events as the 2009 Lowell Golden Gloves (novice division), the New England Tournament of Champions in Lowell, the Police Athletic League (PAL) Tournament in Fall River, the Rocky Marciano Tournament in Watertown, and the New England ABF Championships in Portland, Maine.

That's quite a start, according to Farrell, for a fighter who hadn't trained, or fought, in the big, bad world of boxing until she was 23.

"She is very, very aggressive when she fights," said Farrell an accomplished trainer of 28 National Champions. "She goes forward and does not stop throwing punches and the degree of pain that she can inflict is tremendous. The pain of boxing is the fatigue, but Amanda is persistent and all over you. She is incredible."

"The thing about her is that she doesn't look like the average fighter; no facial hair, no mustache," Farrell continued. "She is going to be exciting moving forward. You are not watching a chess match when she is in the ring. Amanda is bringing it every time out."

The evolution of Pavone as a legitimate pugilist; someone who has the skill and toughness to give and take a beating, began, no kidding, in a small, make-shift room at the back of a bar. This setting may not have had the bright lights and raucous crowds of a Madison Square Garden Saturday Night Fight, but what it did offer Pavone was a glimpse of what boxing could do for her psyche.

All it took was one fight. She was hooked from the opening bell.

"I was always interested in boxing but never did it because things were so expensive," she said last week during a break from training. "My first fight was in that make-shift room. I went there once and I fell in love with it. I have been with Jimmy ever since."

AMANDA "BILLION DOLLAR BABY" PAVONE, 25, of Quincy and Burlington, has burst onto the national amateur boxing scene, racking up an impressive 9-0 record in the early stages of her career. Pavone, who trains six days a week at the Cyr-Farrell Boxing Gym in Quincy Center, will fight next on Jan. 15 in the Regional Finals of the United States Championships at Foxwoods Casino.

For Pavone, the first leg of her boxing voyage has given her a mental image of what it is going to take to make that jump from amateur status to the professional level. Her earlier fights, the ones in which she dominated using unbridled energy and aggressiveness, have given her confidence, but at the same time Pavone is aware, that her fighting style, the take-no-prisoners approach, is going to have to technically evolve.

"So far once I get in there and I see I can dominate the person I am fighting I just get going," she said. "I just go nuts. I can't really control it, but that won't work eventually.

"I have the will and the power but I don't have the technical stuff. So, when I get in there with someone who really knows how to box it won't be the same situation."

After dominating the competition in the novice division at the above-mentioned tournaments, the young phenom, who has since earned the moniker Amanda "Billion Dollar Baby" Pavone, has her sights set on making her mark in the next class up, the Open Division.

This progression in divisions is not only going to present Pavone with the challenge of fighting boxers of higher stature, but, more importantly, if she produces like she and Farrell believe she can, it may open the proverbial door for a shot at competing at the professional level.

"I definitely want to go pro," Pavone stated with a subtle air of cockiness. "I am not doing this for nothing and I don't know when that will be because I need more experience. I have a lot to learn."

Between now and her next two fights, the Regional Finals of the United States Championships scheduled for January 15 at Foxwoods Casino and the Golden Gloves set for the end of January and beginning of February, Pavone plans to train, both physically and mentally, with a hardcore regimen at the Cyr-Farrell Boxing Gym.

"I am taking a little break right now but I am planning on spending the next six weeks getting ready for these tournaments," Pavone said. "I am moving from the novice to the open class, so I am going to be fighting more experienced boxers. I'll be ready."

Amanda "Billion Dollar Baby" Pavone knows as well as anyone that this is what it takes to not get knocked down (or out) in a sport that determines champions based on last man, or in this case, last woman, standing.

The Cyr-Farrell Boxing Gym, 1452 Hancock Street, Quincy, offers Kids' Classes on Sat./Sunday from 10:30 a.m. until Noon and Tuesday/Thursday from 3:30-5:30 p.m., Women's Classes on Wed. from 6-7 p.m. and Saturday from 9-10 a.m., and Private Lessons with Jimmy Farrell. 1999 Graduate of North Quincy High School

Kristen Bowes Inducted Into UMass Hall of Fame

Kristen Bowes, of Quincy, a 1999 graduate of North Quincy High School, was recently inducted into the UMass-Boston Athletic Hall of Fame.

During her four years at UMass-Boston, Bowes earned 12 varsity letters and was named team captain in women's soccer, basketball and softball, while setting 11 school records, including five standards in women's soccer, four in women's basketball and two in softball.

A 2003 graduate of UMass-Boston, Bowes is the greatest goalie to ever play for the Beacons, owning career records for matches played, minutes played, saves and save percentage; she still ranks ninth on the all-time NCAA list in total saves and saves per game.

Bowes was also a well-rounded basketball player as the Beacons point guard. She owns the school record for career assists, season assists and single game assists. She ranked among the Little East Conference's top-10 in assists per game for three seasons and ranked among the top-7 in all four seasons.

In softball, Bowes was the team's shortstop with 228 career assists, for the most in school history. She also holds the school record for steals in a game and is second all-time for career total steals. She still ranks among UMass-Boston's career leaders in batting average, total bases, runs scored, hits and doubles.

Bowes, a Quincy Police Officer, began playing sports as youngster with the Koch Club, Quincy Youth Soccer, Sacred Heart Basketball and Quincy Youth Baseball and Softball.

She graduated from NQHS in 1999 where she earned 12 letters, was selected as team captain and was recognized as an Eastern MA All-Star for her play as goalie on the girl's soccer team. During the 1998 season, Bowes finished with a .550 goals against average, allowing 13 goals all year. She finished her high school career with 22 shutouts.

To Be Conducted At 11 Gymnasiums, Dec. 18

QRD Elk's "Hoop Shoot" Free Throw Contest

The Quincy Recreation Department and Barry J. Welch, Director of Recreation, announced Tuesday that the QRD and the Quincy Lodge of Elks will once again co-sponsor the Elk's National "Hoop Shoot" Free Throw Contest.

The Quincy competition is the first step in a national contest for boys and girls age 8-13; contestants are assigned to three separate categories in both boys and girls divisions. Age groups are 8-9, 10-11, and 12-13 and the contestant's age is determined by April 1, 2011.

Each participant is awarded points for successful free throws and the boys and girls in age group 8-9 will shoot from a line four feet in front of the regulation free throw line.

The program will be supervised in neighborhood gymnasiums by the QRD leaders assigned to their regular recreation programs in the area.

This program is free and contestants may participate even if not previously enrolled in the QRD. Participants may choose any of the various times or sites to compete; however they may only compete in the Quincy qualifier.

"We are pleased that the Quincy Lodge of Elks has once again provided this program for the benefit of our participants," said Welch. "This is the 39th year of this program. Many Quincy residents in the past have enjoyed the benefits of this activity at the local, regional and state level as well as the national championships.

"Last year two Quincy residents were crowned state champions. The Elks devote a great deal of attention to youth programs. Their commitment to our children help make Quincy a better place to live. Last year over 50,000 children took part nationwide."

The Quincy Lodge "Hoop Shoot" Chairman is Ed Miller, retired Athletic Director of the Quincy Public Schools.

The first round of the Quincy contest will be offered at the following gyms at 10 a.m. on Sat., Dec. 18: Atherton Hough, Atlantic Middle, Bernazzani, Beechwood Knoll, Merrymount, Montclair, Point Webster, Snug Harbor and Squantum.

The program will be conducted at 3 p.m. on Monday, Dec. 20, at the Marshall School and Wed., Dec. 22 at 3 p.m. at the Parker School.

For additional information, call the QRD at 617-376-1394.

Matthew Goreham Commits To Northeastern

At a November 10th signing ceremony, hosted by the Catholic Memorial School Athletics Department, Quincy's Matt Goreham signed his letter of intent to play Division I baseball next year at Northeastern University.

Goreham, a senior and standout pitcher for the Knights, earned Catholic Conference All-Star honors last year (2009).

"I'm very happy for Matthew," said Catholic Memorial head baseball coach Hal Carey. "He's worked extremely hard on the field and in the classroom. Because of his efforts, he now has the chance to attend a strong academic college where he will have the opportunity to compete at the Division I level."

Matthew is the son of Russell and Elizabeth Goreham of Quincy; he is the brother of Sarah, Rebecca and Rachel.

QRD Announces Ski and Snowboard Lessons

The Quincy Recreation Department and Barry J. Welch, Director of Recreation, announced last week that the QRD will conduct registration beginning Dec. 7 at 9 a.m. for a program of ski or snowboard instruction to be conducted at the Blue Hill Ski Area (BHSA).

Registration may also be done online at QuincyRec.com and will continue at the QRD as long as openings exist; there is limited enrollment for this activity.

This program is open to Quincy youngsters age eight through high school and features a one-hour and thirty minute lesson for beginners to advanced use of the ski tow and transportation to and from the ski area.

The staff of the QRD supervises the transportation and the lesson instruction is provided by certified instructors of the Blue Hill Ski School.

This program will be conducted on Tuesdays, beginning Jan. 4, 2011 and will continue for five weekly sessions. The basic cost of this program is $170 and is payable at the time of the registration.

The Blue Hill Ski Area can provide rental equipment at an additional cost and arrangements for rental equipment will be done by the QRD at the time of registration. Five-week rental of ski/snowboards, boots and poles is $75; helmets can also be rented for $25.

The program leaves from the QRD office, One Merrymount Parkway, at 3:15 p.m. and returns at 6:30 p.m.

The BHSA is opening this year with increased snowmaking output and upgrades to its lighting systems; the always popular program should be even better with the Division of Recreation and Conservation committed to making the unique facility into a first-class ski center for the metropolitan area.

For more information, call the QRD at 617-376-1394.

QRD Announces Women's Fitness Classes

Barry J. Welch, Director of Recreation announced Tuesday that the Quincy Recreation Department in cooperation with the Mayor's Commission on Women will conduct registration for two Women's Fitness classes, which will be held at the Fore River Clubhouse.

Both programs will be held on Monday, Wednesday and Friday morning at 8:15 a.m. and 9:15 a.m. Mrs. Karen Gaughan will instruct the classes, which will include exercises to improve and strengthen flexibility, endurance and overall fitness; adaptations in the exercises allow each participant to work out at their own pace.

The classes, which began on Dec.1, will conclude on Feb. 11; registration remains on a first-come-first-serve basis and you may continue to register at the class or by contacting the Quincy Recreation Department at 617-376-1394, visiting main office at One Merrymount Parkway or by going online at QuincyRec.com.

QHS/NQHS Football Hall of Fame Welcomes New Class

By JOE REARDON

Tom Morrell Sr. remembers certain moments of his playing days as if they happened yesterday.

A 1956 graduate of Quincy High, Morrell was a talented end on the football team and recalled the Presidents setting the record for points scored in a game in 1955 with 42, and a victory over Durfee on the final play of the game the same season.

Morrell was a key component in both games, scoring the first touchdown in the first and pulling in the winning touchdown pass to defeat Durfee.

Morrell was one of 13 former players to be inducted into the Quincy-North Quincy Football Hall of Fame, last Tuesday evening at the Sons of Italy Hall.

Morrell admitted he was humbled by the prestigious induction. "It's really quite an honor to be acknowledged like that with so many great players," said Morrell. "I feel very honored."

Morrell joined Quincy High's Todd Kimmell (1989), Mark Rignini (1983), Kevin Carey (1994) and Mike Bartlett (1994) along with the North Quincy High's Jim Marinelli (1978), Mike Linnane (1993), Daniel Gilmartin (1990), Charlie Plaskasovitis (1997) and Brian Walsh (1997) as this year's hall of fame inductees. Former Quincy High coach Robert Noble and Mayor Thomas Koch were also inducted. Quincy High's Carmello "Kaiser" Oliverio (1935) was inducted posthumously.

Quincy/North Quincy Hall of Fame President Ron Ivil said the banquet was one of the best ever with 325 in attendance. He especially enjoyed seeing the mix of youngsters and those who played years ago.

"It was a nice group that went in," said Ivil. "To meet these young kids who went in is pretty impressive. The people were tremendous."

Also on hand was head coach Lou Silva and the rest of the Marshfield High football staff. The Rams currently don't have a football hall of fame, but the legendary Marshfield coach wanted to see how an induction ceremony was run.

Noble, who coached at Quincy High from 1985-2007 had attended every hall of fame dinner since his first year at Quincy and always thought how much of an honor it would be to be inducted.

Thursday was his night.

"I was extremely honored and flattered to be given the opportunity to be inducted," said Noble. "It was something if you were involved in football in the city of Quincy you'd be honored with."

Noble said he was especially moved by former Quincy High principal's

Robert Keuther's speech inducting him. Keuther, who coached alongside Noble for 10 years, asked all the players whom he had coached to stand up.

"That was very emotional to see them (players) there," Noble said.

Kimmell, a fullback and linebacker, played under Noble and feels lucky to have gone up against North Quincy in such a long, and storied rivalry on Thanksgiving Day. Never during his playing days did Kimmell ever think about some day being honored with a hall of fame induction.

"I looked at the list of prior inductees and it was quite an honor," said Kimmell. "You never truly appreciate things in life until much later. We (football team) really exemplified what a team was."

Gilmartin became the second member of his family to be inducted into the hall. His brother, Tommy Gilmartin, the team ball boy for five years, was inducted in 1991. Sadly, he died the following spring following a courageous battle with cancer. The team decided the 1992 season would be dedicated to the guy who was on the sidelines every game, cheering Dan and the rest of the Red Raiders on.

CARMELLO "KAISER" OLIVERIO's (QHS 1935) was awarded posthumously by the Quincy/North Quincy Football Hall of Fame. Pictured here are his daughter, Patricia Rodophele and her son and Oliverio's grandson, John Rodophele, who made the trip up from New York.

Gilmartin found his brother to be a great inspiration for him and the entire North Quincy High squad.

"He was always rooting me on from the sidelines," said Gilmartin. "I knew he was looking down on me at the banquet."

Gilmartin punished defenses his senior year, rushing for 14 touchdowns and 1,300 yards in just eight games after missing the early part of the season with an injury.

Gilmartin believes his instinct was his strongest trait on the gridiron. "I wasn't the fastest and I wasn't the strongest guy, but I was able to find the holes," he said.

Gilmartin found the evening especially satisfying because his two daughters, 9-year-old Abby and 8-year-old Ryleigh, were able to attend. "They were very excited and very proud of their daddy," said Gilmartin. "They were a little awestruck when I received the award.

"It was definitely an honor. There were a lot of great people who came before me and it was nice to become part of that group."

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL POSTHUMOUS INDUCTEE AWARD: The Quincy/North Quincy Football Hall of Fame awarded Carmello "Kaiser" Oliverio (QHS 1935) posthumously at their 2010 induction ceremony. From the left, Ron Ivil, Hall of Fame President; Alfredo Oliverio, brother; Larry Boisvert, son in-law; Patricia Rodophele, daughter; Linda Boisvert, daughter; Albert Oliverio, brother; John Rodophele, son in-law, and Dick Lombardi, Hall of Fame Vice President.

Ceremony Honoring Munroe MacLean To Be Held In Between Girls and Boys Games

QHS Gym and Fitness Center To Be Dedicated Friday

This Friday evening the Quincy and North Quincy girls and boys basketball teams will open their 2010-2011 seasons with a scheduled double-header starting at 5 p.m. in the new Quincy High School gymnasium.

After the girls game commences around 6:45, the new gymnasium, in a brief ceremony, will be rededicated the Munroe MacLean Gymnasium in honor of legendary QHS basketball coach Munroe MacLean; also at this time, the school's new fitness center will be rededicated as the George Burke Fitness Center.

Immediately following the dedication of the gymnasium and fitness center, the Quincy and North Quincy boys' teams will play at around 7 p.m.

This event is open to the public.

The basketball teams will have a week off before playing their second game of the winter on Dec. 17.

(Previews and schedules for the basketball teams will be printed in next week's Quincy Sun.)

Third Annual NQHS Powder Puff Game

In what proved to be as exciting as any battle between Turkey Day rivals, the Third Annual North Quincy High School Powder Puff Flag Football Game pitted the NQHS girls from the junior class of 2012 against the 2011 senior class.

The game held Nov. 22 at Veterans Memorial Stadium came down to the final play.

NQHS junior Amber Jones got the scoring started, early, with a 60-yard dash down the sidelines on the opening play from scrimmage, putting the underdog junior class up 6-0. Unfortunately for the juniors, this lead was short-lived.

Under the expert coaching of NQHS senior students Joe King, Antonio Diaz, and Joe Bertucci, the seniors would go on to dominate ball possession for much of the rest of the game.

Answering the call after Jones' score was senior Courtney Byrne. Her touchdown tied the score at 6-6. Not long after, senior Talia Hampton scored a rushing touchdown, followed by a successful two-point conversion, giving the seniors a formidable 14-6 lead.

The Class of 2011 made the lead hold up until late in the second half. At this point, junior coach Craig Hines opened up the playbook and the juniors drove down the field with seconds to go. Taylor McKay threw a 15-yard touchdown pass to Megan Leahy as time expired.

The juniors, needing the two-point conversion to force the first overtime in Powder Puff history, attempted a run, but the seniors stopped the play for the victory.

As the final whistle blew, the senior class stormed the field to the chorus of, "We are the champions," while the junior class applauded their opponents. Coach Hines philosophically stated, "I wouldn't say we lost, we just didn't win."

A special thanks to NQHS football coaches Jim Connor, Ken McPhee, Peter Chrisom, and Tom Carter for donating their time as referees, and also a thanks to NQHS Principal Earl Metzler and Superintendent Dr. Richard DeCristofaro for sponsoring such a great event.

Francesca DiBona Earns PTR Certification

Francesca DiBona of Quincy has been certified by the Professional Tennis Registry (PTR), the largest global organization of tennis teaching professionals with 14,000 members in 122 countries. PTR is dedicated to educating, certifying and servicing tennis teachers and coaches around the world in order to grow the game.

DiBona, who is employed at the Weymouth Tennis Club, was certified after finishing a comprehensive five-part examination focusing on the fundamentals of teaching group lessons, the development of biomechanically sound strokes, error detection and corrective techniques; the logistics of organizing group drills is also used to determine each PTR member's rating.

A written and on-court examination was also administered by PTR on teaching and playing skills to determine a certification rating. DiBona received the Professional rating from PTR.

QRD Saturday Gym Schedule

The Quincy Recreation Department announced last week that the department will conduct supervised recreation programs in nine school gymnasiums on Saturdays throughout the winter.

These Saturday programs are free and open to boys/girls age eight through high school. The time varies according to age groups and all programs have walk-in registration at each location and are open only to Quincy residents.

Participants many attend the location of their choice; they are not limited to their neighborhood gymnasium.

The Saturday schedule is offered at the following schools: Atherton Hough, Atlantic, Beechwood Knoll, Bernazzani, Merrymount, Montclair, Snug Harbor, Squantum, and Point Webster.

For additional information, call the QRD at 617-376-1394 or visit QuincyRec.com.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) At this time you might want to resist that otherwise admirable Aries penchant for getting to the heart of a matter quickly. Keep in mind that a delicate situation calls for patience.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your aspects favor more diplomacy and fewer direct confrontations when dealing with a relationship problem. Avoiding hurt feelings can help in your search for the truth.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Positive aspects are strong this week. Although you might still have to deal with some problems caused by a recent period of turmoil, you are making progress, and that's what counts.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A family matter could benefit from your counsel. But don't come into it unless invited, and don't stay if you feel uneasy. Just remember to reassure one and all that you'll be there for them.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) As the truth about an ongoing situation emerges, you could find that you were right to defer judgment before you had all the facts. Now would be a good time to move on to other matters.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Your plans to take control of a personal situation because you feel you are best qualified could create resentment. Best to hear what everyone else involved in the matter has to say about it.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Uncovering some surprising background facts about that ongoing personal matter could make you reconsider the extent of your involvement. A neutral family member offers advice.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Religious or spiritual themes start to dominate your aspect this week. This can serve as a counterweight to the mounting effects of the season's growing commercialization.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Taking on that recent challenge impressed a lot of important decision-makers. Meanwhile, proceed with your holiday plans, and don't forget to include you-know-who in them.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Disagreeing with an opinion you can't accept could be dicey, and your motives might be questioned. Best to wait to mount a challenge until you have support for your position.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Getting involved in helping others in this increasingly hectic period not only makes the generous Aquarian feel good, but you could also gain a more substantive benefit from your actions.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) The Piscean way of thinking clearly and objectively helps you resolve a complex situation without creating any ill will. Don't be surprised if your counsel is requested on another matter.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a way of persuading people to look at the positive possibilities that make up any choices they might face.

St. Lucia Procession At Quincy Point Congregational

This Sunday at 10 a.m. at Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St. the congregation will celebrate Poinsettia Sunday, the third Sunday of advent with a St. Lucia morning procession.

This advent's focus is "Suitable Saints for a Special Season."

Lucia was born on the island of Sicily in the third century. Her name is derived from the Latin lux which means light. Legend says she came by ship to deliver food to the hungry during a famine.

Rev Ann Suzedell's sermon is titled, "Where in the World is Jesus?" The deacon of the day will be Jack Bissett and the lay reader will be Deanna Van Schagen.

All are welcome to service and feel free to join us after in the Social Hall for coffee and light refreshments.

The Youth Group along with the Confirmation class will be taking a field trip on Sunday afternoon to help sort gifts at the City Mission Society Christmas Shop.

Rehearsal for the Sunday School Christmas Pageant is after worship and Tree of Joy gifts are due back.

The congregation is raising funds to benefit their Access Fund, to help make the church accessible to all with a new elevator. The new handicap parking lot is in the process of construction.

As a way to raise funds for the access fund the church is selling Entertainment books. To order books ($30 each) contact the church office @ 617-773-6424 or Betty DeCristofaro @ 617-472-1265.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Someone once said that "Anything is possible, if you set your mind to it... Remember this 'ole world of ours' is full of wonderful experiences... So don't keep your dream locked away for 'someday' because that 'someday' is now before you."

This saying reminds us of one such dreamer. His 'dreams' made this 'old world of ours' a happier and more fun place to be...

Throughout his life he was an avid dreamer...

As a young man, he applied for a job as a cartoonist for the Kansas City newspaper. He was rejected... He applied at other places and was rejected every time...

Finally, he got a job drawing publicity material for churches. Did he have a studio? No he did not... His 'studio' was a mice-infested garage!

Thirty years later, though, he and one of his mice became world famous! His name?... Walt Disney.

"Dreams never hurt anybody if he keeps working right behind the dream to make as much of it come real as he can."

Iron Worker, Chef

A funeral Mass for Philip W. Marotta, 61, of Weymouth, formerly of Quincy, will be celebrated Friday at 9 a.m. in St. Francis Xavier Church, South Weymouth.

Mr. Marotta died Dec. 5 at Boston Medical Center.

Raised in Quincy, he had lived in Weymouth for 40 years. He worked as an ironworker for many years before working as a chef. He was also a late member of the Weymouth Lodge of Elks, National Rifle Association and the Braintree Rifle and Pistol Club.

Husband of the late Joan M. (McGillvary) Marotta; father of Marilee (Marotta) Hearon, Diane Marotta, Brian Marotta and Ashley Marotta, all of Weymouth; grandfather of Alivia Hearon; brother of Margaret Shinnick and her husband Steven of Norwood, Connie Marotta of Quincy, John Marotta and his wife Donna of Brockton, Michelle Dixon and her husband Richard of Quincy and Teresa Porter of Weymouth.

He is also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Interment will be in Lakeview Cemetery, Weymouth.

Funeral arrangements were made by the McDonald Funeral Home, South Weymouth.

Memorial donations may be made to the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation, 5005 LBJ Freeway, Suite 250, Dallas, TX 75244.

Bethany Congregational

Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Center, will have Sunday worship and church school at 10 a.m.

The Rev. William Harding will conduct the service and preach a sermon entitled "Filled with the Holiday Spirit." A time of fellowship with light refreshments will follow the worship service.

All are welcome to attend Bethany Church worship services and its group activities. Bethany has Women Groups meeting daytime and evening, a Youth Group, a Men's Group, an Outreach Mission Group doing various charity works and a Friday morning Bible Study Class.

tered to. Check Better Business Bureau to determine if they are legitimate or have complaints against them. Look for similarities in names of the websites to well known companies. An example of this would be "Sax Fifth Street Outlet", rather than "Saks Fifth Avenue". As a rule, the high demand products do not vary much in price, as seen in store flyers, so be wary when shopping online.

INTERNET SCAM? Today, times are tough and this scam works on those who can least afford to be victimized. This offer is for people who would be interested in making some extra money as a mystery shopper. This internet request offers the opportunity to make $100 per survey, while "you shop the world!"

There are numerous options available to make additional money as a bonus, by traveling or dining out. Is this too good to be true? Yes, consider the letter itself.

Firstly, there are numerous grammatical errors.

Secondly, it is not signed by anyone nor addressed to anyone, so this "company" will take anyone. By taking, I mean they will take your money.

Once you provide pertinent personal information and sign up, you will receive a large sum check and told to cash it, then keep a portion for yourself and forward the rest to a specified electronic transfer address (wire the money).

Often, the instructions are to do this immediately in order to get additional surveys, so the victim goes to the bank, cashes the check, does not heed the warning given by the Teller that it will take up to five days for the check to clear, then proceeds to wire the money that he/she just took out of their account.

Not only have you lost your money, but by giving up so much information you may become a victim of identity fraud. There is no actual name of this company in the letter and the telephone number that begins with "+44" is the country code for the United Kingdom.

Why do these scams exist? Because there are enough victims out there to make it profitable for these scam artists!

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN

"Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful vine, splendor of heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. Oh, Star of the Sea, help me and show me, herein you are my Mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (three times). Holy Mother, I place this cause in your hands (three times). Say this prayer 3 consecutive days, and then you must publish and it will be granted to you. J.R. 12/9

N.E. Wildlife Center Receives $9,000 Donation

In this season of giving, Brett and Rob Hale of Granite Telecommunications recently presented a $9,000 check to New England Wildlife Center's CEO, Dr. Greg Mertz.

The Center is located in Weymouth. The generous donation will greatly help the nonprofit Center take care of wildlife and educate children.

The donation is made possible by Granite Telecommunications located at 100 Newport Ave Extension in Quincy. Granite Telecommunications employs 850 Massachusetts residents and has a long history of serving the community.

Granite employees determine which local charities receive donations as part of their Granite Care Jeans Day. Every two weeks, Granite's employees run a raffle for items such as ipods and sporting event tickets. This donation to the Center came from the Granite Care Jeans Day and raffle proceeds collected for Boston Celtics front row seats.

In addition to the Center, recent raffles have aided Lima's First Step, Massachusetts Soldiers Legacy and the Renaissance Learning Center.

"Granite Telecommunications is a strong supporter of South Shore charities, and we are very grateful for their support of the Center. Having families like the Hales come to the Center and become excited about getting involved is what the Center is all about," said Dr. Greg Mertz, CEO.

Rob Hale said that he and Brett visited the Center several weeks ago to donate towels from a local gym. The father and daughter were excited by the Center's animal care, education programs, green building and community feel.

Brett Hale is joining the Center's junior intern program and will be working with Dr. Mertz at the Center's Odd Pet Vet. The Odd Pet Vet is a commercial practice that treats exotic and unusual pets such as snakes, turtles, rabbits, tarantulas and more.

All funds earned from the Odd Pet Vet go to support the work of the Center.

"Companies like Granite Communications are why we are able to continue to keep our doors open," said Nina Flaherty, the Center's media spokeswoman.

Local Agencies Seeking Volunteers, Food, Clothes, Cash As Demand Climbs

Helping Hands Stepping Up For Holiday Assistance

By JOE REARDON and LAURA GRIFFIN

In the midst of the shopping, tree decorating, the singing of carols and all the goodwill that goes hand in hand with the holiday season, thousands of people in Quincy and along the South Shore are struggling through an economic recession that has crippled families and left them wondering if or when things will improve.

Many just don't have the money to buy presents for their children due to the paralyzing recession.

The good news is that there is help and plenty of it around the city. Organizations with food pantries, shelter, clothing, "Adopt a Family" programs and other necessities are busier than they've been in years. Volunteers have come out of the woodwork sorting the mountains of goods that have been donated. The organizations want to get out the message that there are places to turn.

Tax Rate Hearing Monday

The Quincy City Council will hold a public hearing Monday at 7 p.m. on the 2011 tax rate in Council Chambers, City Hall.

City officials had no preliminary information on the new rate Tuesday afternoon.

Chris Walker, spokesman for Mayor Thomas Koch, said the administration was working on the rate's details.

Tax bills with the new rate will be mailed before Dec. 31, according to Walker who said property owners may check assessments on the city's website, www.quincy.ma.gov.

The deadline for filing for abatements is Feb. 1, according to Walker.

Munroe MacLean Gym Rededicated At QHS

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL dedicated its new gym, the Munroe MacLean Gymnasium in between the girls and boys basketball games last Friday. In addition to dedicating the state-of-the-art gym after the legendary coach, QHS unveiled its new two-floor George Burke Fitness Center. Burke, a former captain of the QHS basketball team, donated $50,000 to the school for the fitness center. Pictured from the left: School Supt. Brockton Director Voted To Lead Crane Library

Koch Will Approve Trustees' Choice After 3-2 Vote

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Library Trustees voted 3-2 Monday to appoint Brockton's Library Director Harry Williams, 3rd, as the 12th Library Director for the Quincy Public Library system.

Mayor Thomas Koch must approve the appointment and a contract for the post which currently pays $90,000.

The vote followed a tumultuous public hearing during which many of the 30 observers pleaded with the Trustees to reopen the search for a new director. The Trustees' first choice, a library director in Texas, turned down the job and the second nominee couldn't garner a majority.

Once the public hearing concluded, several trustees left the meeting room and suggested the meeting was over.

However, the Trustees then reconvened in the emptied room in Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Center.

By a vote of 3-2, the Trustees voted to appoint Williams. His nomination had been tabled at the previous Trustees meeting.

Contacted Tuesday, Williams said he felt it was

School Supt. DeCristofaro Receives New 3-Year Contract

The School Committee on Wednesday night unanimously approved a new three-year contract for School Superintendent Richard DeCristofaro that will not increase his total compensation package over the course of the agreement.

DeCristofaro, a life-long Quincy resident and Superintendent for the past 10 years, will be paid $226,000 for the next three years under the contract, the same as he's currently paid.

Dr. RICHARD DeCRISTOFARO

The new contract removes compensation items such as a travel allowance and an annuity program that were budgeted separately in previous Superintendent contracts, and simply records those dollar amounts as part of his salary, school committee members said.

The contract also restricts DeCristofaro from collecting any more additional sick or vacation days that would be paid out after he retires, but he will be entitled to be paid for days he has accrued previously.

"This is a contract we believe recognizes both the extraordinary job Dr. DeCristofaro has performed on behalf of our children and the extraordinary fiscal challenges we face in protecting our school system," said Mayor Thomas Koch, School Committee chairman and a member of the committee's negotiating team together with Barbara Isola and David McCarthy

Added Isola:

"Dr. DeCristofaro's willingness to agree to a contract that will cost the City no additional money over the next three years is a testament to his lifetime of dedication to the Quincy Public Schools. We need his leadership, and I have the utmost confidence in the job he has done for the last 10 years as Superinten-

Closed Saturdays Until Mid-April; Remains Open Monday-Fridays

Dec. 18 Final Saturday DPW Rear Yard Will Be Open

The Department of Public Works announces that the rear yard will be closed on Saturdays as of Dec. 25 until mid-April next year.

The last Saturday the rear yard will be open to the public is Saturday, Dec. 18. The seasonal closing saves the city tens of thousands of dollars annually, city officials said.

The rear yard is open Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. all year round to accept yardwaste, metal, appliances, batteries and mercury products. Place yardwaste in paper bags or cardboard boxes. Plastic bags must be emptied on site. Tree branches should be cut into 3-foot lengths.

Christmas trees will be collected curbside for one week only on regular trash days from Jan. 10-14. Trees with lights or ornaments attached will not be collected. Christmas trees in plastic bags will also not be accepted. These items damage composting equipment and degrade the quality of product. The DPW rear yard will accept clean Christmas trees Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m.. to 3 p.m.

The DPW and the rear yard will be closed on Christmas Eve, Dec. 24 for the Christmas holiday. However, Friday, Dec. 24 is a regular trash day. There will be no trash delay.

The same procedure will take place Friday, Dec. 31. Although it is a holiday for the City of Quincy, New Year's Eve will be a regular trash day. The rear yard will not be open Friday, Dec. 31.

The City of Quincy Department of Public Works recycles and reuses the entire city's yardwaste diverting over 5,000 tons from the solid waste stream and saving nearly $500,000 annually. One-half acre of lawn in New England produces over three tons of grass clippings or 260 bags of grass clippings each year.

For a free brochure on home compasting, e-mail recyclequincy@quincyma.gov. Composters are available at the DPW yard for $45.

• On Dec. 26, 1606, William Shakespeare's play "King Lear" is performed at the court of King James I of England. Shakespeare's plays were not published during his lifetime. After his death, two members of his troupe collected copies of his plays and printed what is now called the First Folio (1623).

• On Dec. 24, 1809, Christopher Houston "Kit" Carson, celebrated hero of the American West, is born in Richmond, Ky. Although he spent much of his life fighting Indians, Carson apparently had great sympathy and respect for them -- in 1867 he became the Superintendent of Indian Affairs for Colorado Territory.

• On Dec. 25, 1914, just after midnight on Christmas morning, the majority of German troops engaged in World War I cease fire and commence to sing Christmas carols. The soldiers of Germany, Russia, France and Britain exchanged presents of cigarettes and plum puddings and even played a good-natured game of soccer.

• On Dec. 21, 1945, Gen. George S. Patton, commander of the U.S. 3rd Army, dies from injuries suffered not in battle, but in a freak car accident in Germany. Never diplomatic, Patton once berated and slapped a hospitalized soldier diagnosed with "shell shock," whom Patton accused of "malingering."

• On Dec. 22, 1956, a baby gorilla named Colo enters the world at the Columbus Zoo in Ohio, becoming the first-ever gorilla born in captivity. Towing Company Proposal To Lease Property At 159 Brook Rd. Community Meeting Topic Dec. 28

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci will host a community meeting Tuesday, Dec. 28 to discuss Blue Hills Towing Company's proposal to lease property at 159 Brook Rd. for their towing business.

The meeting will be held at the Cyril P. Morrisette Legion Post, 81 Liberty St., beginning at 7 p.m.

All neighbors are invited and encouraged to attend and participate.

Palmucci said the proponents of the project are seeking neighborhood input before moving their business operation from Willard Street to Brook Road. Representatives from Blue Hill Towing Company will be on hand to discuss the proposal in further detail with interested neighbors.

Residents with questions about this proposal or other community issues can contact Palmucci on his cell phone, 617-834-3945.

Fr. Bill's Memory - And Mission - Live On

Nearly 17 months have passed since the death of Rev. William McCarthy.

While time marches on, so too does his mission of ending homelessness.

FR. BILL

The beloved Father Bill and namesake for the Quincy homeless shelter is not forgotten, either. He remains an inspiration to many, especially two community leaders who worked side-by-side with the "People's Priest" for more than 20 years collectively.

John Yazwinksi, the current CEO and president of Father Bill's Place and MainSpring, worked with Father Bill for 14 years before he passed away July 24, 2009 at the age of 82. Fr. Bill would have celebrated his 84th birthday last Thursday, Dec. 9.

Joe Finn served as the executive director of Father Bill's Place for more than seven years during the 1990s. He is now the executive director of the Massachusetts Housing and Shelter Alliance as well as a city councillor.

Both men called Father Bill a dear friend. Both experienced a profound sense of loss with Father's passing. The two also remind us that Father's mission in life was to end homelessness.

That goal remains quite evident today.

YAZWINSKI

"I was honored to work closely with Father," Yazwinski says. "It was amazing to get up every day for 14 years and work together with somebody who every day tried to save people that were struggling in our community. He wasn't just a priest to me – he was one of my best friends. He married my wife and I and I'm honored to be a part of his mission and continue his mission of someday taking the sign down at Father Bill's Place."

Finn said Father Bill's concern for all people was "absolutely amazing."

FINN

"He understood the trials and things that people go through. Until we experience something ourselves we don't fully appreciate or understand whether it's somebody wrestling with an addiction or alcoholism or if people have relatives who are experiencing mental illness themselves in some days Father Bill had a deep sense of empathy and charity for everybody and I think that was his most distinguishing characteristic."

Asked if it's been difficult to move on without Father Bill, Yazwinksi said, "It's been difficult more on the personal level of knowing that you've lost a great friend and somebody that when times got tough, Father had the touch. He had a way to work with the leaders in the community, the business community, the donors and people who knew that Father was the people's priest.

"We'll never replace Father Bill but what we owe it to Father Bill is to make sure now as a community – all of our supporters – that we come together to make sure that Father's dream comes true to end homelessness."

Losing Father Bill, Finn says, represents in some regards the end of part of his own life.

"Father Bill, at first impression, wasn't someone who would necessarily impress you right away. But when you began to experience personally the level of compassion that he had and the sense of good that he had about you as well I think that's an aspect of my life that happened at a perfect time," Finn says. "At times I'll get nostalgic for that he was somebody that you could always pick up the phone and give a phone call to and always come away with a good word so to speak."

Since his passing, Father Bill's continues to address the ever-changing and challenging homelessness problem. Yazwinski said in Quincy there has been an increase in the number of 17, 18, and 19-year-olds coming to the shelter as well as high school kids trying to finish school.

"I remember during my 14 years working closely with Father that whenever we had a challenge like that he wouldn't always worry, he kind of put the cart before the horse – he wouldn't worry about where he'd find the money, he'd just take care of the person in front of him.

"I think we continually do that if it's with these young kids that are experiencing homelessness right now," Yazwinski points out. "We're trying to end their homelessness for them. Right now with this recession we're serving 140 people a night at the shelter – we're only funded by the state for 75 people – but we're not going to turn anybody away. That's what was most important about Father and that's what Father was always about: making sure nobody was going to sleep outside in our community."

Another unique attribute of Father Bill was his ability to fund raise.

"One day I got a call from Ken Tarabelli from Bay State Community Services and he said that there was a teen shelter in the South Shore for 13 to 17 year-olds and the owner was going to sell the building and the shelter was going to close," Yazwinski recalls. "I brought Father down to see the building and Ken said, 'Would you guys be able to buy this building?'

"So Father got on the phone and in a week he raised about $100,000. We put a down payment and I remember him bringing one of his philanthropists out – what I called one of his angels – and he brought out the banker and he had them all together while the kids were eating French fries at the table. Then Father says, 'Together men we need to solve this problem.'

"That was a business deal that was done and those deals don't happen anymore because Father is not around," Yazwinski reveals "But those are the stories I love to say 'look at this man here.' I remember he was worried 24 hours a day, seven days for one week that those kids would not have a home."

Father Bill's unique fundraising also had a humorous side. One police officer once joked that he should carry a gun because he was always sticking people up.

Finn recalled a favorite Father Bill story that underscored Father's penchant for raising big dollars while rallying support for the greater good.

"When we were building the addition to Father Bill's Place, we came up with this idea of having a match grant for $60,000. If we could raise $60,000, then (real estate developer and philanthropist) Tom Flatley would give us $60,000. We were successful – we raised the $60,000 and when we went to get the $60,000, no sooner had Mr. Flatley handed the check to Father Bill that Father said thanks and then looked at him and said, "You know, bricks are awfully expensive.'

"And Tom Flatley said, "Father Bill, you mean to tell me I just gave you a check for $60,000 and now you're asking me to pay for the bricks?'

"Father Bill said, 'Yes' and then Tom said, 'You got it.'

"It was just amazing what Father Bill could pull off when it came to fundraising. I think that was part of who he was. If I had tried that, I would have probably wound up losing my job," Finn says with a hearty chuckle.

"I know it was something that Tom Flatley was always amazed. I think the reason Tom Flatley always gave him money was because he knew it would always help somebody."

The legacy of Father Bill remains an unfinished chapter in an otherwise long, blessed life.

The elusive epilogue? Ending homelessness once and for all.

"Father Bill always used to say, 'I want my name taken down from (the homeless shelter). I really want that shelter closed," Finn notes. "What I think is really part of his legacy was that he had a very strong impression on me. We understand that shelter is really not the best response to poverty, it's not the best response to homelessness or mental illness or addiction or anything.

"We've been able to do so much in terms of housing and supportive housing over the last decade or so that I think he's a very big part of that legacy because he was very serious when he meant that we should be ending homelessness. I think that's part of his memory that endures."

Yazwinski adds this final thought:

"Father always told me there isn't one family in America that didn't have somebody that was close to them that didn't struggle at one point or another so let's not judge them. Let's let them come into our house and let's try to help them.

"I will always remember that because Father Bill never judged anybody. He tried to help everybody. What I've seen is just a tremendous outpouring of support throughout the community.

"Father taught us where our moral compass should be."

Scenes From Yesterday

A MEMBER OF the Quincy Women's Club that was located in this stately old house sent this postcard with a Christmas greeting in 1913 to a friend in Medford. Located at 148 President's Lane, the house – named Hillside – was built in 1840 for Jeffrey Brackett, a wealthy Boston merchant. It was built amidst an orchard and a meadow previously owned by President John Adams. The three-storied shingled building with its tower of graceful proportions was a replica of the famous Sir Walter Scott estate in Scotland. Views from the tower extended from Quincy Center to the harbor islands and beyond. For many years after the Bracketts had moved away Dr. William Everett, headmaster of the Adams Academy, rented the house until he moved to what later became the Miller Stile Inn. It was then, in 1905, that a Brackett family descendant decided to lease the house at no charge to a local organization committed to community service. In less than two weeks the Quincy Women's Club was formed to take advantage of the offer. There were 300 charter members. The club used this house as their home for over 90 years until they disbanded in the 1990's due to a dwindled membership – a fate experienced by most similar women's clubs across the country. This building is still extant although hardly recognizable; the tower is gone along with most of the other architectural details. It has been expanded some and is now home to the Presidential Condominiums. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Quincy election machinery would be supervised by a four-man bipartisan board of election commissioners, which was proposed in legislation filed with the clerk of the House of Representatives-elect Charles W. Hedges (R-Quincy).

Election duty now performed by the board of registrars, the city clerk and assessors would be transferred to the board that would be appointed by the mayor under the terms of the proposal.

After filing the measure, Hedges stated, "Many citizens of the city are convinced that the present system of supervising and directing elections, practically unchanged since 1888, is entirely inadequate to properly service a community a large as Quincy. Justice cannot be administered in the most important phases of city government, the voting privileges of citizens.

KILROY OF HALIFAX PASSES THROUGH THE CITY WITH STREET CAR

"Kilroy Was Here" – one of the best known catch phrases of World War II, was changed for a few minutes to "Kilroy Was Here In Quincy," as James J. Kilroy, 44, of Halifax, supervising the Everett to Halifax transportation of his newly won 11-ton street car, traveled through Quincy to his home in Halifax.

Kilroy, a former Boston city councillor, won the street car by writing the best letter on the origin of the phrase "Kilroy Was Here" in the contest conducted by the American Transit Company on its "Spotlight On America" broadcast.

CHRISTMAS PROMENADE DRAWS 10,000 CAROLERS TO QUINCY SQUARE

Words and music inspired by the first Christmas 1,946 years ago, echoed from every corner of Quincy Square as the voices of 10,000 people blended with the spirit of fellowship and goodwill during the fourth annual Christmas Carol Promenade.

'A Day That Will Live In Infamy'

"A day that will live in infamy."

So said President Franklin Delano Roosevelt when he addressed the nation before the United States Congress declaring a state of war against the Japanese following the early dawn surprise attack on Pearl Harbor, killing and wounding thousands of U.S. sailors as they were waking up on a Sunday morning that few vowed never to forget.

This past Thursday morning, many of my friends over in Quincy gathered together to remember the sacrifice made that day 69 years ago, which brought America into World War II. While many have forgotten the meaning of this day, Quincy veterans banded together to remember those fallen comrades. What happened in Quincy was replayed all across America.

A day that would live in infamy has been, over time, forgotten by too many Americans today. For these, it is just another day. Few take the time to reflect on what transpired 69 years ago. I had an uncle who signed up for the U.S. Navy within days of that attack. He survived World War II stationed in Puerto Rico. He was always proud of America and what the country stands for. Duty, honor and country were his motto.

Fewer members of that war are still alive today and the number keeps dwindling yearly.

However, for those still alive it will never be forgotten. It should also never be forgotten by all of us today who are here because of those sacrifices made by American soldiers and sailors and all who serve to protect us.

That is why old soldiers keep showing up to remember and why it is encumbered upon us all to stand with them in praising all the sacrifices made for America.

Says Raymondi A 'Victim'

I never thought I would see the day when a person so respected by others would be the person to stick the knife in the back of a person who was trying to protect the taxpayers of Quincy and had the guts to question certain aspects of the plan to rebuild Quincy Center.

Dan Raymondi is a victim of a mayor who is so infatuated with the people from Street-Works and their plan to change the face of Quincy forever at any cost. They tried to get rid of Danny from day one and failed. So last week the mayor took it upon his own and knowing it would get Danny kicked off the hearings he added the Town Brook improvements and the Bigalow Flood Plan to the list of preliminary requirements for the Quincy Center renewal project.

By doing this, he knowingly put Danny's home right in the development area. I don't think the mayor is smart enough to think this up by himself. Could it be he got a little help from the boys from New York?

Quincy Youths Sing In San Francisco

Brendan Murray, Matt Levine and Peter Jensen of Quincy, members of Boston College High School's International Concert Choir recently traveled to San Francisco.

The 23 young men in the choir, under the direction of Dr. Marina Rozenberg, performed at Muir Woods, at the Alcatraz Ferry, and had the opportunity to additionally perform for and sing with the University of San Francisco Choirs.

The Choir also received a special invitation from Mr. Alan Svensen, a B.C. High alumnus, class of 1984, who is now the VP/General Manager for Bloomingdales in San Francisco. Singing in a marquis location inside the store, the choir drew quite a crowd – including several B.C. High alumni – for this special pre-Thanksgiving holiday performance.

Svensen was so pleased with the performance that he has invited the choir to return every year. "It was great to have the choir in town and it was most wonderful to have them sing at my store."

While in San Francisco, Murray, Levine, Jensen and the others stayed with host families of students attending St. Ignatius School, making the trip an additionally enriching experience. The closing performance was a joint performance by the B.C. High Concert Choir and the St. Ignatius Choir in the chapel of the St. Ignatius School.

The B.C. High Concert Choir receives invitations from around the globe, having recently traveled to Rome, Dublin, Washington D.C., and Moscow over the past few years.

The public is welcome to hear the choir perform at their upcoming spring concerts on May 7th at 5 p.m. and May 25th at 5:30 p.m. at Boston College High School, Dorchester.

Yasser El-Hamoumi Awarded Scholarship

YASSER EL-HAMOUMI

North Quincy High School senior Yasser El-Hamoumi has been selected as a Posse Scholar for Union College.

Out of 1350 applicants nationwide, Yasser was one of ten selected to win a full-tuition, four-year scholarship to Union College, worth over $140,000. The Posse Foundation, established in 1989, identifies public high school students with extraordinary academic and leadership potential and awards scholarships from Posse's partnership colleges and universities.

Yasser is a member of the NQHS student council and is an active member in the school's drama club and the select choir. He has also been "Mr. Yakoo" for the last two years.

NQHS Principal Earl Metzler commended Yasser, referring to him as "one of the finest students to come through North Quincy High School and a fine example of leadership, character, and academic achievement."

'Ondine' Film Screening Tonight At Library

The 2009 Irish movie "Ondine" will be shown tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

In the film, Syracuse, a simple Irish fisherman, catches a beautiful and mysterious woman in his trawler nets. The woman seems to be dead, but then she comes alive before Syracuse's eyes, and he thinks he may be seeing things.

However, with the help of his irrepressible daughter, Annie, he comes to believe that the fantastical might be possible and that the woman (Ondine) might be a myth come true. Ondine and Syracuse fall passionately in love, but just as we think the fairy tale might go on forever, the real world intercedes.

Directed by Neil Jordan, the movie stars Alicja Bachleda and Colin Farrell.

The 103-minute film is rated PG-13 for some violence, sensuality and brief strong language.

The screening is sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Olindy's Lane Participating In Head Start 'Giving Tree'

Olindy's Lanes announces it is again participating in the Head Start "Giving Tree" program.

Every year Olindy's sets up a Christmas tree covered with paper bulbs containing gift ideas ranging from clothes to toys for local children in need. And every year the tree is picked clean, said James Mezzetti, co-owner of Olindy's along with his brother, John.

"It's incredible how caring and charitable our customers are," said James Mezzetti. "From the day the tree is put up, it seems, we have a pile of gifts left by our customers for local children. The pile grows so large we usually have to have Head Start come back 2 or 3 times just to clear space for more gifts."

Olindy's has participated in the Giving Tree program since its beginning.

"I think for many of our regular customers it has become part of their Christmas tradition," Mezzetti said. "They know once Thanksgiving is over, that the tree will be up and covered with opportunities to assist a child in need."

Olindy's has been a family-owned, family-friendly bowling center in the heart of Quincy since 1937. It moved to its current Quincy Avenue location in 1969.

Dom's Beef Hash From Leftover Stew

Most people like corned beef hash, but our family prefers beef hash and it isn't easy to find in most restaurants. You have to make it and that is what my son Dom did while in California recently. He is a great cook and enjoys it so much he did some while on vacation.

The recipe today begins with beef stew made a little different because the meat wasn't cut up

BEEF STEW & HASH

3 or 4 pounds beef
3 large carrots
3 large potatoes
1 medium onion
Oil for searing the beef and onion
2 cups beef or chicken stock
Salt and pepper to taste

First sauté the onion and sear the beef until brown. Cut the carrots and potatoes in bite size pieces. Place the beef and onions in a large Dutch oven pan or other pan with cover. Add the salt and pepper and the chicken stock, potatoes, carrots. Cook covered for about 3 or 4 hours depending of the size of the beef.

When done, the beef is so tender it's easy to cut in bite size pieces. Serve with the vegetables and juices.

Dom said he had some leftover so he mashed the stew all together and because the beef was so tender, it was easy to do. After that he sautéed the meat and vegetables until brown on both sides. And voila, beef hash!

people, a number that is not normally seen until January and February.

The shelter also takes in 87 families as well as supporting housing for 150 families from Quincy to Plymouth, making donated items all the more necessary. The families are housed nightly at Conway House in Middleboro, Stoughton's Evelyn House, 55 scattered site apartments throughout the South Shore and 145 families in hotels/motels.

Father Bill's/MainSpring also offers more than 250 units of supportive housing which includes 56 veteran units on the South Shore and 15 in Brockton. Six additional units are set to open in Hingham in the fall of 2011. Through subsidies, 76 units of family housing have been able to add units.

With winter on its way, there is a huge need for warm clothing, along with the normal priority items. Socks, razors, hand sanitizers, linens, soaps, towels, blankets and shampoo are just a small cross section of necessities at Father Bill's/MainSpring.

People have responded very positively in past years when it comes to helping out the shelter. "People are always very generous and giving this time of year," said Director of Development Lucille Cassis.

Items donated in bulk size are extremely useful, particularly food, which is stored and used in the kitchen.

Gift cards are also useful donations because they are used to help buy living necessities for those people ready to make the transition from Father Bill's to more permanent housing.

Father Bill's/MainSpring also offers work force development programs and homeless prevention. Work Express is a program that runs from six months to a year and entails four hours of morning work and four hours focused on life skills in the afternoon. The work includes landscaping, interior painting, commercial cleaning and graffiti removal.

The homeless prevention program is designed to help disabled families and individuals on the verge of homelessness. Mediation services step in to help develop corrective action. The program has been very successful with 94 percent of clients able to remain housed or moved to more appropriate housing.

Donations may be made through the Internet at FatherBillsMainspring.org or by mail to 422 Washington St., Quincy, 02169. The phone number is (617) 770-3314.

Quincy Community Action Program

The program's food center is in desperate need of monetary donations with a goal of $70,000, one third of the total budget. "Frankly, that's our main concern," said program director Beth Ann Strollo.

BETTYANNE LANG, Interfaith Social Services' Manager of Material Assistance, with some of this year's toy donations.

The food center is one of the busiest in the South Shore and stays open five days a week.

The QCAP has received generous gift donations over the past month, which will go towards providing for 500 families. The HeadStart program runs a "Secret Santa" for Christmas. Donors are given the age and gender of a child and they buy a gift for the boy or girl.

QCAP, like most charities, is busiest during the winter months with its emergency food center and providing fuel assistance for families in the city. Payless has also stepped to the plate, making available 200 coupons so children will have warm shoes and boots for the winter.

Helping Hands Stepping Up For Holiday Assistance

est it's ever been across the agency," said Strollo. "We couldn't raise as much as we wanted to last year."

Because of the poor economy, money donations were down last year and have remained below the average amount. The program's volunteers send out letters to the community and various companies in the hopes of generating funds. QCAP largely relies on direct mail to get its word out, sending thousands of letters.

The demand for fuel has been high with 4,100 applications for assistance filed as of Nov. 30. Over the past two years the number of applicants has increase 35 percent. The fuel assistance is federally funded, but not nearly enough to fit the QCAP's needs with $515 per family for an entire winter.

The increase in applicants has gone hand in hand with the economic situation according to Strollo. "That's really a function of the terrible economy," she said.

QCAP has three locations in Quincy: 1509 Hancock St., (617) 479-8181; 1 Copeland St., (617) 471-0796 and 9 Bicknell St., (617) 773-1222.

DOVE
(617) 770-4065

These are the two busiest holiday weeks for DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended) with its Adopt A Family program in high gear. The program is DOVE's major holiday endeavor on top of the other services it provides year round.

Now in its fifth year, clients of the agency put together wish lists of items they are in need of, including toys for the children. Donors then buy the items on the individual wish lists.

Coats and other clothing, toys and various bathroom body products are often listed while grocery store gift cards are also very practical and useful. "We always need those to give back to our shelter clients," said Melissa Parks, DOVE's developmental coordinator.

Parks said the community was very receptive to the program and as of Dec. 9, 67 lists had been filled out with more expected.

For more information, contact Fiona McGarry at (617) 770-4065 ext. 10. DOVE can also be reached (617) 471-1234 and (888) 314-3683 or visit www.doveinc.info.

Quincy Crisis Center
(617) 847-6967

December 18 looks to be the busiest day of the year for the QCC when between 100-150 volunteers deliver more than 300 turkey and ham dinners, along with 3-5 days supply of food, throughout the city and local South Shore towns. The center continues its "Help for the Holidays" deliveries from Dec. 20-24.

The Esther Sanger Center for Compassion, a partner of the QCC, needs certain foods for deliveries including hams, gravy, broth, canned corn or green beans, spaghetti sauce, peanut butter, cake and brownie mixes, pie filling, pudding and jello.

The center helps those who are on food stamps, disabled or have any other hardships that require a helping hand. "We try to ask as few questions as possible to keep it simple," said executive director Dave Wooster. "There aren't too many who ask for help that don't need it."

Ten years ago, Wooster said, the center did half that number of food deliveries at Christmas time but the increased need has caused it to rise.

The center is still looking for volunteers this holiday season, which has rarely been a problem. In the course of a year, 400-600 people volunteer their time somewhere along the line. "We recruit them, we train them and we thank them," said Wooster.

The center coordinates its efforts with other human service organizations locally that include Interfaith, QCAP, the Salvation Army and several church groups. "We work together to make sure everyone gets the help they need," he said.

Gifts for children 16-and-under are in demand this time of year as well. Books, toys, clothing, outfits, hats and mittens are just some of the gifts that will be delivered during the holidays.

For more information or to volunteer, call (617) 847-6967. Donations can be dropped off at 282 Billings Road, Monday-Friday from 9am to 6pm.

Interfaith Social Services
105 Adams St.
617-773-6203

The numbers tell the story for Interfaith Social Services (ISS) whose volunteers are struggling to meet an unprecedented surge in requests this year, not just for the holidays but year-round.

"This year, we've seen a demand higher than we've ever seen in our 60 years," said Executive Director Rick Doane, citing the need that's multiplying year-round.

Doane said that 50 families a day come in looking for help in the ten communities served by ISS and 65% of the clients are from Quincy.

It's especially painful during the Christmas season when ISS sponsors the Adopt-A-Family program.

"We have more and more families that we can't adopt out," said Doane.

Just two years ago, ISS served 163 families through its Christmas Adopt-A-Family Program and in 2009, there were 227 families.

"We anticipate serving over 300 households," Doane said last week, adding, "We serve families right up to Dec. 23."

"A lot of these people are new," said Doane, describing them as "the working poor" who often register on their lunch break in hospital scrubs, uniforms, and work clothes. There will be no Christmas in their homes without help.

"We're helping the middle class hurt so badly by this recession," said Doane, explaining that often spouses have lost their jobs, hours have been cut, and second part-time jobs have become the only income for many.

Seeking help is new to these families, according to Doane who said there are generally two volunteers on duty at ISS for intake work. During the initial interview, applicants provide information which is then reviewed.

Doane said the agency coordinates with other agencies and the South Shore Hunger Network, "We talk with all of them to make sure nobody's double-dipping."

ISS which serves ten South Shore communities is funded by contributions and staffed only by volunteers at 105 Adams Street near Quincy Center. More than 60% of its clients and 500 volunteers are from Quincy.

"We rely on the community," said Doane who said that new warm clothes, scarves, mittens and hats, new toys and clothes for babies, toddlers and young children are always welcome. Doane said they prefer not to receive stuffed animals.

Often, the forgotten ones are the pre-teens and teens, ages 11 to 16 years old. They still believe in the magic of Christmas, but stymie the gift-giver.

Many donated gifts are not age-appropriate for teens and pre-teens, according to Doane who acknowledged the difficulty of finding the right gift for teens who likely will welcome a gift certificate, an iTunes card or anything related to Justin Bieber.

Jewelry, such as earrings and accessories, will please a young girl while sports items, such as baseballs, basketballs or footballs or anything to do with the Celtics, the Patriots or the Red Sox will likely make a young boy smile.

Doane said interested persons can call ISS to Adopt-A-Family, send a check or donate to the agency's food bank or thrift shop which operates year-round at its Adams Street headquarters.

The ISS also provides help for homelessness prevention and a 'career closet' for clients needing a business wardrobe.

Donations of clean, used clothing and small household items are always welcome at the center's thrift shop.

St. Vincent
DePaul Society
St. John's Church
21 Gay St.
617-472-4908

The "Giving Tree" tradition started years ago with the volunteers of the St. Vincent DePaul Society of St. John's Church.

At the time, the Society's members decorated a tree in the church with the little white wish tags. Each tag had the first name (or an alias) of a person in need, their age and their Christmas wish. Parishioners worked hard to fulfill every Christmas wish and they still do.

After the Society's volunteers started the tradition, those "Giving Trees" began blooming in dozens of other churches as well. Today, the tradition continues to spread.

At St. John's Church, the volunteers will be delivering those special gifts beginning today (Thursday) but there's still plenty of opportunity to help, according to Joyce Lawless who volunteers for the Society with her husband, Bill, president.

Like every other agency helping those in need, St. Vincent de Paul is struggling to answer the many calls for help from St. John's parish, according to Lawless who said 90 families are being helped this year.

The St. Vincent de Paul Society at St. John's not only helps families and individuals, but also reaches out to the mothers and newborns at the The Home for the Unborn located in the parish.

There's always a need for bathrobes and slippers, hats

Councillors Appear Ready To Approve Center Bond, Plan

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Barring unforeseen changes, City Councillors appear ready to approve the Quincy Center Redevelopment plan through a series of votes at Monday's meeting.

Council approval will entail simple majority votes on the required $289 million bond authorization, the Land Disposition Agreement (the LDA or contract between the City and the redeveloper), the approval of the Urban Renewal Plan Amendment 11, and a Home Rule petition asking state legislators to approve minor amendments to the state's Chapter 121A.

Those votes will conclude the council's scrutiny of the plan which began in late October and will end this evening (Thursday) with votes by the Finance and Downtown Committees which will recommend official action by the City Council.

As of Dec. 9, councillors appeared pleased that officials from Street-Works, the redeveloper, and the city's team apparently have resolved their concerns, including protections for the city, and union labor and the council's authority.

"There are significant changes," said City Council President Kevin Coughlin of the agreement while Attorney Thomas Kiley, a member of the mayor's advisory team, said, "No issues have been raised that have not been raised at the table."

Councillors expect to receive a final version of the LDA this week and review the changes at Thursday's meeting. To date, the councillors have discussed such issues as plans for daylighting Town Brook, the potential removal of hazardous waste, traffic routes, anticipated parking fees, and plans for a hotel and big box store.

The redevelopment is planned in phases with Step One possibly completed by 2014 and the balance ten to 15 years later.

Richard Heapes, Co-founder and Partner of Street-Works LLC, White Plans, NY, many times described the various components of the plan which will include condominiums, apartments, business buildings, as well as retail.

"This is not a shopping center, " Heapes said recently, noting that retail establishments will occupy less than 20 % of the new construction.

Once approved, the LDA will be sent to the Attorney General's office for review. The LDA agreement will be finalized between the city and Hancock Adams Associates, LLC.

"They have agreed to be of assistance to the mayor," Kiley said of the Attorney General's staff.

"These agreements appear to be bullet-proof," Attorney James Shea told councillors at their Dec. 9 meeting.

Shea, a partner at Boston's Choate, Hall and Stewart LLP, hired by the council to conduct an independent legal review, specializes in real estate law with a focus on large urban development such as the South Boston waterfront project.

"It's not an easy agreement, but it's not an easy deal," Shea said describing the Land Disposition Agreement, the proposed contract between the city and the redeveloper.

"This is an opportunity.... It won't happen again," Shea said, later noting, "I think it's a rare opportunity."

Shea described the changes he required in the LDA, particularly a "Reverter" clause which is designed to protecting the city's interest in Ross Parking Lot if the development does not materialize.

The LDA allows the city to sell the Ross Parking Lot to the redeveloper for $1.4 million.

"If the developer does not perform, it reverts back to the city, " said Shea, noting that the city's interest will have priority over any bankruptcy claim or mortgage.

Reporting System For Suspected Bullying For Parents; Training For Non-Academic Employees

City Implementing New Anti-Bullying Initiatives

By JOE REARDON

Quincy is furthering its anti-bullying prevention with several new initiatives that have been put into motion on the heels of Governor Deval Patrick's new Anti-Bullying Law that passed in May.

The city's director of Student Support Services, Maura Tenaglia, has been working on implementing new features into the current plan since the beginning of the school year.

A reporting system for suspected bullying for parents, students, teachers and non-academic employees has been put into place and the non-academic employees, which include custodians, bus drivers and lunch ladies have all been through training to recognize and react to bullying situations.

A new bullying incident report form was implemented on Sept. 7 for students, parents and staff.

The comprehensive form has a section to add the names of any witnesses who saw the incident or have information pertaining to it, as well as a summary form to be used after all involved have been interviewed it.

"We're looking at prevention and want people to have an immediate response," said Tenaglia. "I think what we have going for us is that we have had anti-bullying for years.

"Parents, students and staff are as always encouraged to report any concerns around bullying to principals, assistant principals, deans and guidance staff and this can be done verbally as well as using the report form. All staff members are trained to receive reports and use the proper protocols to address student concerns."

A questionnaire for parents to fill out with their concerns and thoughts on the various ways to get a grip on bullying within the schools is also available. Tenaglia said the feedback from parents is essential in making further changes if needed.

Under the new law, students will be provided with age-appropriate curriculum concerning anti-bullying. Quincy has been ahead of most school systems in the Commonwealth when it comes to tackling anti-bullying issues.

"Quincy Public Schools is sensitive to the issue of bullying and have been proactively addressing this issue for several years," Tenaglia wrote, describing the initiatives.

The Quincy Public Schools have been working closely with the Massachusetts Aggression Reduction Center (MARC) out of Bridgewater State University by making use of its resources for parents and educators alike.

One area that is covered is cyber-bullying through the Internet and how to respond to it if it has already happened.

There are several bullet points including encouraging the child to spend less time online, review the hosting site's policy. Actions that can then be taken are sending the site a copy and wait for feedback before considering legal action. If the child who posted on the Internet is under the age of 13, the Children's Online Privacy Protection Act (COPPA), the host is required by law to remove the site immediately.

Most importantly, it's essential for every parent or guardian to monitor the sites that their child uses and those of any friends and what they are posting.

SPOTLIGHT on HEALTH and FITNESS

THIS SUMMER, 27 Quincy residents raised $129,230.00 for cancer research and treatment at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute by riding up to 190 miles in the Pan-Massachusetts Challenge. Their effort helped the PMC raise $33 million and bring the organization's 31-year total Jimmy Fund contribution to $303 million. Part Of $33 Million Donation To Jimmy Fund

27 Quincy Residents Raise Nearly $130,000 For Dana-Farber Cancer Institute

The Pan-Massachusetts Challenge recently presented a check for $33 million to Dana-Farber Cancer Institute. The 2010 fundraising total was $2.6 million, or 8.6 percent, more than the organization gave in 2009.

The $33 million includes nearly $130,000 raised by 27 Quincy residents who participated in this year's Pan-Mass. Challenge.

On Aug. 7 and 8, 5,000 cyclists from 34 states and six countries rode up to 190 miles over one or two days on 10 different routes. With the support of friends, neighbors, family members, and colleagues, the riders enabled the PMC to make the largest single contribution to the Jimmy Fund in 2010. The funds raised by the cyclists in the 2010 PMC brought the organization's 31-year Jimmy Fund giving total to $303 million.

The PMC had set the fundraising goal at $31 million and exceeded it by $2 million.

The check was presented to Dana-Farber President Edward J. Benz, Jr., MD, at a Fenway Park event which nearly 500 PMC cyclists and volunteers attended. The contribution represented 100 percent of every rider-raised dollar, a charity pass-through rate that is nearly unparalleled within the $3 billion athletic fundraising event industry. Approximately 3,150 volunteers worked throughout the year on behalf of the PMC.

Founded in 1980 when 36 cyclists rode across Massachusetts and raised $10,200 for the Jimmy Fund, the PMC is known today as the "gold standard" of athletic fundraising events, due to the unprecedented sums it raises and its consistently efficient charity pass-through rate. The PMC raises and contributes more money to charity than any other athletic fundraising event in the country.

Winter Weather And Your Health

Many people aren't used to the physical stress of outdoor activities and don't know the dangers of being outdoors in cold weather. While anyone who is outdoors in cold weather should avoid sudden exertion such as lifting a heavy shovel full of snow, it's even more important for people with cardiovascular disease. Even walking through heavy, wet snow or snowdrifts can strain a person's heart.

Winter sports enthusiasts who don't take precautions can suffer from hypothermia. Hypothermia occurs when your body can't produce enough energy to keep your internal temperature warm enough, and it falls below 95 degrees Fahrenheit. It can kill you. Heart failure causes most deaths among hypothermia victims. Symptoms include:

- Lack of coordination
- Mental confusion
- Slowed reactions
- Shivering
- Sleepiness.

Cold-weather months usually bring more cases of the flu, which is more common among people with cardiovascular disease than any other chronic condition. Heart patients are encouraged to get vaccinated as soon as possible. Even if they can't get shots early in the flu season, it's important to remember that flu shots can be beneficial as late as January. Flu season often lasts well into March.

HEART PATIENTS are encouraged to get vaccinated for the flu.

Many people use a decongestant when fighting off a cold or the flu. People with high blood pressure should be aware that decongestants may raise blood pressure or interfere with the effectiveness of prescribed blood pressure medications. Many over-the-counter cold and flu preparations contain decongestants such as:

- Ephedrine
- Levmetamfetamine
- Naphazoline
- Oxymetazoline
- Phenylephrine
- Phenylpropanolamine
- Propylhexedrine
- Pseudoephedrine
- Synephrine
- Tetrahydrozoline.

Always read the labels on all OTC medications, especially if you have blood pressure of 120/80 mm Hg or greater. If you have high blood pressure-and especially if you are on prescription medication-consult your health care professional before taking any over-the-counter medications or supplements.

For more information about cardiovascular disease and cold weather, visit www.heart.org/ coldweather. For more information on high blood pressure, visit www.heart.org/hbp. Follow the American Heart Association on Facebook (HB-Pescapees) or Twitter (@ AMHeartHighBP).

Inspiring Kids To Stay Fit

Kids can also get moving and build self-esteem by participating in activities that help to make their own communities a better place.

A first step can be as simple as tapping into a hobby, sport or local charity that sparks personal interest and imagination. Here are a few tips that can help your family get more active:

- Incorporate physical activities into family gatherings, birthday parties and when your kids' friends come over to play.
- Learn which sports and activities your kids enjoy doing and locate lessons or clubs.
- Involve your children in jobs or community service activities that they enjoy and that get them moving, such as planting trees and helping neighbors with cleaning.
- Plan family outings and vacations that involve walking, swimming, bicycling or paddling.
- Turn on music to get the whole family moving while indoors and even to liven up household chores.
- Choose activity-oriented gifts such as a jump rope, hiking shoes or a fitness club membership.

INFLAMMATORY SITUATION

Not only does the buildup of the sticky, bacteria-laden material known as "plaque" increase the incidence of decayed tooth enamel, it also promotes "gingivitis" (inflammation of the gums). When these sticky deposits of bacteria, mucus, food particles, and other irritants accumulate around the base of the teeth, they exert a toxic effect that causes the gums to become irritated, red, and swollen, and to bleed more easily. These symptoms are all signs of gum disease. Left untreated, gingivitis can develop into the more serious condition called "periodontitis," inflammation of the membranes around the base of the teeth, which can lead to erosion of the bone holding teeth in place and resultant tooth loss. To avert these potential problems, brush and floss daily.

Early treatment of gum disease is very important. The goals of treatment are to prevent gum disease from permanently damaging tissues, control infection, and prevent tooth loss. We invite your questions about the health of your gums and teeth. We have the friendliest, warmest staff and environment. We are caring, compassionate, highly skilled professionals who are dedicated to providing you with high-quality dentistry and service. We are located at 44 Greenleaf Street. Please call 617-479-6220 to make an appointment for your next oral health appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Because plaque collects on teeth on a daily basis, it is necessary to brush and floss at least twice daily to rid teeth of this potentially harmful material.

THE WAY THE BALL BOUNCES?

A disturbing trend is developing among young basketball players. According to government data collected from a national sample of U.S. hospitals, nearly 400,000 U.S. children and teens visit emergency rooms annually for basketball-related injuries. Equally alarming is that the number of hoop-related concussions and brain injuries is rising. While traumatic brain injuries (including concussions and skull fractures) account for less than three percent of all children's and teens' basketball-related injuries, their incidence has nearly doubled during the recent ten-year period. Although no one is quite sure why there has been such an increase (other than raised awareness and diagnosis of concussions), parents, coaches, and kids should be aware of the potential to suffer such injuries on a basketball court.

Do you have basketball players in your life? At the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we are dedicated to helping you achieve your wellness objectives -- combining skill and expertise that spans the entire chiropractic wellness spectrum. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy, where our mission is to provide a safe, comfortable, and friendly environment where your body can heal without the use of traditional medication. Brockton Director Voted To Lead Crane Library

"premature" to discuss his appointment as the Trustees' choice is, actually, a recommendation to the mayor and he has not met the mayor or discussed a contract.

"I do feel it's premature," said Williams of a local news story naming him as director.

"It's awkward for me," said Williams, noting that while the trustees recommend their choice, "The mayor actually has to make the appointment."

A vote for director was not listed on the Trustees' agenda which included this statement "Library Director Search. The board reviews the process to date and decides how to proceed."

If Williams appointment is finalized and he accepts the position, he will replace Library Director Ann McLaughlin who is retiring in February after 17 years leading the system and 40 years as a librarian.

McLaughlin was the only other person present when Trustees voted Monday morning. Several trustees had indicated that their meeting was over after the public hearing concluded.

Sandra McCauley, Chairwoman of the Trustees; and Trustees Lawrence Falvey and Mary Reed voted to appoint Williams while Trustees Harold Crowley and Janet DiTullio opposed the motion.

"Until the phone call, I had the impression, there would be a new search," said Williams.

While Mayor Thomas Koch has not met Williams yet, his spokesman Chris Walker said that Koch will quickly approve the Trustees' choice.

Williams himself expected the Trustees to reopen the search.

"When I got the call, I was surprised," said Williams who said he'd been following the Trustees' meeting minutes in the past month, and expected them to reopen their search.

However, Williams indicated that he is very interested in the potential challenges of leading Quincy's system which speakers at Monday's public hearing called one of the best in the state, if not the country.

When contacted by the Sun, Williams was also asked about the shortened hours of the Brockton library system which now open 38 hours a week in contrast to Quincy's 64 hours.

Dealing with budget cuts is one of the challenges of operating a library system today, according to Williams who said such cuts become necessary when budgets are slashed and he would "work together" with the staff.

Only the Trustees and McLaughlin were present when the Trustees revisited the choice of a new director. Williams' nomination had been tabled at a previous meeting.

The scene was quite different earlier when residents, staff members, and Friends of the Library offered their views on the Trustees' search. McCauley used a kitchen timer to allow each speaker three minutes.

At that public hearing, emotions ran high and voices got loud and the majority of speakers repeatedly urged the Trustees to reopen the search for a new leader.

Many challenged the limited search as well as the screening process during which candidates were asked prepared questions and one was interviewed by telephone.

Several questioned why the Trustees did not request references from candidates before the votes.

To date, the Trustees have interviewed eight candidates (one by telephone) for the roughly $90,000 position. On Nov. 15, the Trustees voted 3-2 to offer the position to a Texas library director Kathleen Cockcroft, a native of Massachusetts. Cockcroft turned the job down.

The Board subsequently rejected by a 3-2 vote, their second choice Quincy's Assistant Library Director Megan Allen.

In addition, a majority of speakers blasted the Trustee's original format, citing a lack of community input, the failure to properly rank candidates and to research their backgrounds and references.

McCauley and Trustees Falvey and Reed voted for the Texas library director Kathleen Cockcroft and, later, against Megan Allen, Quincy's Assistant Library Director. Trustees Crowley and DiTullio opposed Cockcroft and supported Allen. The breakdown remained the same in the vote for Williams.

"Everything was going fine until Miss McLaughlin's hand-picked successor was not picked," said Falvey, referring to Allen.

"I believe we followed a fair and open process," said Reed who also opposed naming Allen.

Fair or not, one speaker Bill Griffin, a retired school principal, said the current search had been so damaged and the atmosphere so toxic that no candidate could surmount the problems if offered the job.

Under the circumstances, Griffin believed that a new search is essential.

"At this moment, the process is flawed," said Crowley who with DiTullio, also, sought a new search. Both had voted to appoint Allen.

"Whoever comes in, is going to have their hands full," said Crowley who fears the system could go backwards with the wrong leadership.

"I believe the process should be reopened," said DiTullio.

From the first speaker to the last speaker, the majority urged the Trustees to begin anew.

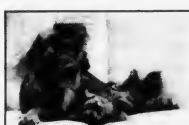
"This library deserves a first-rate director, not a second choice, " said Linda Beeler, Head of the Library's Reference Department.

"We need a director who will help us stay on track, go forward in tough times," said Beeler who noted that Brockton's library is only open 38 hours a week and fears that could happen here with the wrong leader, "We're open 64 hours a week."

Betty Molloy, President of the Friends of the Library, outlined the major support contributed by the Friends' 625 members and feared that the wrong choice could damage their support.

Just last year's the Friends sponsored 700 special programs which drew 19,000 citizens to movies, concerts, speakers, and presentations.

"Our success depends on the support of the library director," said Molloy who questioned why the majority was "reluctant to consider someone who's been almost trained for the job,"



Molloy supported Allen's candidacy, as did former employee and a Friend of the Library Kathy McCormick and former Trustee Alicia Coletti who said, "The library would be fortunate to have her as a director."

Coletti also challenged the previous search, stating, "You asked for references after (the vote and the selection)."

"This is a major part of this city," said Peg Mahoney, a resident who said the Quincy library's reputation is known everywhere for its excellence.

Mahoney described the numerous programs, such as the genealogy course, offered at the library and called the system "a central part of what Quincy is."

The library serves young children, students, senior citizens and "The people who do not have jobs depend on the library computers," said Mahoney.

A Job Well Done

On Sunday, Dec. 5, at approximately 1:38 a.m., Officers Robert Kelly and Patrick Folan were dispatched to Elm Street on a report of a male "beating a female." Upon arrival, Officer Folan, with the assistance of Officer Brian Flaherty, located a large male, 6'2 and 270 pounds, wearing sweat pants and a shirt in the driveway.

After a brief interview, the officers learned that the male had an argument with his girlfriend, who he said attacked him by punching him in the face. He described her as "crazy." Officers noted that the male had reddened blood shot eyes and they detected a strong odor of alcoholic beverage coming from his breath. The male said he was not injured and there were no signs of an assault against him.

Officers went into the building to speak with the male's girlfriend and located her standing in the doorway. The female, about 5'1 and 110 pounds, was crying and shaking. When asked to tell what happened, the female victim stated, "I can't - he is going to kill me!" The officers told her that she was safe and other officers were with her boyfriend. They then went into the apartment where the Officers observed clothes scattered all over the bedroom floor and several empty beer bottles in the living room and kitchen.

When asked again what occurred, the female, still crying and shaking, stated, "I don't want to get him in trouble. I just want to get my stuff and leave." She said that she and the male suspect, her boyfriend of six months, have been living together but she was not on the lease. The victim said that her mother was on the way from Winthrop to pick her up. The victim was clearly upset and scared. She was urged to tell what happened.

After continuing to cry and gather her belongings, she eventually stated that they had been out this evening and he had consumed a large amount of alcohol. When asked how much, she responded, "About $300 worth." She said they argued on the way home and when they arrived home, she went into the bathroom to take a shower "to avoid him and hope that he would pass out." While in the shower, the suspect kicked open the bathroom door, which was locked, then grabbed her by her hair. The victim said she started screaming, but the suspect put his hand over her mouth to stop her.

After eventually letting her up, the victim managed to grab a towel and flee the apartment. She went down to the laundry room where she was able to get clothes. The victim did not show any signs of injury but stated that her back and arm were "sore" from being thrown down. The victim said that the suspect has hit her in the past but she did not call the police. Officer Kelly observed the broken door jam to the bathroom and was directed to the back door, which was also broken. The door would close but was unable to lock due to a past incident where the suspect forced the door open after the victim locked him out to prevent being assaulted.

The victim denied assaulting her boyfriend. Based on the statements of both parties, Officer Kelly determined that the suspect had assaulted the victim, so Officers Folan and Flaherty placed him under arrest after a brief struggle. As the victim gathered her belongings, Officer Kelly asked her if she wanted a restraining order and she stated, "I don't want him arrested, I just want to leave." The victim refused any departmental assistance, including an abuse protection pamphlet, which ultimately, was left in the apartment.

Officer Kelly knocked on several doors in the building but was unable to locate any witnesses. The suspect, a 25 year old Quincy resident, was charged with "Assault and Battery/Domestic Violence." Nice Work!

In this case, hopefully the victim will cut ties with her boyfriend, especially since she refused any assistance legally or through counseling. The Police Department will pursue the criminal case against the suspect regardless. The victim was urged to get a restraining order against her boyfriend and there will be follow-up by court advocates to review legal options to help provide for her safety.

Entries in the Quincy Police Hot Spots are compiled and submitted by the Quincy Police Department. They are published by The Quincy Sun as a public service to make local residents more aware of any crime activity in their neighborhood. Questions concerning the Hot Spots list should be directed to Crime Prevention Officer Lt. Dan Minton, 617-745-5719.

Sun Citizen Of The Year Honor Renamed - Dec. 31 Last Day To Submit Nominations

Nominations For Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Citizenship Award

Nominations are coming in for The Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award – formerly The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year award.

The award – which has been presented annually by The Quincy Sun since 1985 – was renamed in memory of Mr. Bosworth, this newspaper's longtime publisher and founder.

A panel of judges selected Mr. Bosworth to receive the award posthumously last year. He passed away in February, 2009.

Mr. Bosworth was honored for dedicating much of his life to the city he loved and for supporting innumerable community, charitable and civic causes both personally and through the pages of this newspaper for more than 40 years.

Quincy Sun readers are again invited to nominate an individual they believe is most deserving of the award. As in past years, the award recognizes an individual for outstanding community service or a special achievement.

Other past recipients include former Quincy Christmas Festival director George White, the late Fr. William McCarthy, environmentalist P.J. Foley, Edward Keohane of the Quincy Partnership, former Mayor Frank McCauley, and community activists Bob and Gloria Noble.

The ballot will be printed in each issue of The Sun until nominations close on Friday, Dec. 31. After Dec. 31, a judging panel will be selected to make the final choice from the nominations submitted.

If you know someone you would like to see recognized with the 2010 award, fill out the ballot and mail it to:

The Quincy Sun
Quincy, MA 02169

Ballots can also be dropped off at The Sun office at the above address in Quincy Center by Dec. 31.

Those submitting nominations should identify themselves. Those submitting nominations are also encouraged to attach to the ballot a letter detailing the reason for their nomination.

Nominees can be past or present public officials, a member of an appointed board, a clergy member, a teacher or school administrator, a police or firefighter, someone in the business community, a sports figure, or an "unsung" neighbor, friend or community activist who has given freely or his or her time to a worthy project or cause.

Those nominated in the past are eligible to be nominated again. Since this is not a popularity contest, each nominee has an equal chance of being selected regardless of the number of nominations received. Anyone nominated just once has the same chance of being the award recipient.

The name of the winner will be announced in The Quincy Sun early next year.

FOR ALL ETERNITY

Special events and occasions are often marked with the gift of an eternity ring that symbolically celebrates love with an unbroken circle of gemstones. "Full" eternity rings may commemorate the birth of a child, an anniversary, or for no other reason than as an expression of love. Rings of this type display gemstones set around their entire circumference, which necessitates careful sizing. If an easier-to-size, simpler design is desired, half eternity rings are available, which limit the placement of gemstones to the face of the band. The preferred gemstone for eternity rings of each type is diamond, which is often a square or rectangular shape that is easier to set end to end around the band.

The range of diamond jewelry today is extensive—from eternity rings to single- gemstone pendants to sparkling earrings. Do you have something to say this holiday season? You are sure to find the voice to your feelings among our displays. When there is a diamond in your future, we hope you'll come see us and let us show you our selection of this most popular, coveted gemstone. We have a dazzling array of fine jewelry of all kinds at 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center, with pieces that are sure to please any taste and every pocketbook. PH: 617-773-3636.

Insulation, Appliances, Faucets And More

'Tis The Season For Home Efficiency

(ARA) - As the cold weather and holidays approach, homeowners are preparing to spend more time indoors. Winter utility bills can get expensive, and in an economic climate as biting as the frost, consumers are watching every penny. From insulation, to appliances, to faucets, these upcoming months are an opportune time for homeowners to make their homes more efficient, reducing costs and the family's carbon footprint.

Aside from the more obvious advice, such as unplugging electronics when not in use to avoid phantom draws, many long-term solutions will help you save energy and water every day without any added effort.

"Homeowners are very aware of their responsibility to use less water and energy each month, both for environmental and cost-saving reasons," says Paul Patton, senior product development manager at Delta Faucet Company. "But as the weather gets colder, few are willing to give up their long, hot showers."

Patton adds that while changing habits and behaviors is worthwhile, homeowners should also consider products that are engineered to offer comparable experiences with built-in efficiencies.

Here are five easy home improvement tips to help make your home more comfortable and efficient this winter:

Replace your windows: Energy-efficient windows can save families a lot of money in the long run and although replacing them can be a significant investment, fall is the perfect time to replace old windows before the freezing temperatures blow through. Some replacement windows can be built to meet or exceed Energy Star standards in all climate zones, making your home more comfortable and efficient.

Install ceiling fans: You might think that ceiling fans are only for the summer months but in the winter, a ceiling fan can push heat down from your ceilings, circulating warmer air around the room. Your heating system won't have to work as hard, cutting heating costs.

Install a water-saving showerhead that doesn't sacrifice the experience: Warming up in a hot shower on a cold morning doesn't have to feel like a guilty pleasure. Delta Faucet offers water-efficient H2Okinetic Technology (R) that blankets the body in a warm spray while using up to 36 percent less water than the industry standard of 2.5 gallons per minute. The technology manages droplet size, velocity, spray pattern and thermal dynamics, which ultimately covers the bather in larger water droplets that retain their heat longer. More than 50 percent of Delta bath suites feature showerheads and handshowers that meet the latest specification introduced by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's WaterSense (R) program.

Dodge the draft: Check for drafts and potential air leakages around doors and windows, in the attic and basement, and throughout the home. To locate drafts, aim a fan at the cracks outside of doors and windows. On the inside, have someone hold a lit candle. If it flickers, you have a draft that you'll need to treat by sealing with caulk, spray foam or weather stripping. Or have a professional conduct an air leakage test using diagnostic equipment. They can make specific recommendations to improve the energy efficiency of your home.

Install a water-efficient faucet: Often we let our faucets run longer than needed, wasting water and running up our monthly utility bills. The Linden (TM) pull-out kitchen faucet can help reduce the amount of water homeowners use in the kitchen with a water-saving default flow rate of 1.5 gallons per minute. For bigger tasks such as filling a pot, a simple toggle on the wand will increase the flow to a high-performance setting.

Is Your Roof Ready For Santa?

(NAPSA)-By following a few simple steps, you can help prepare your roof for Santa's arrival and the harsh weather that may follow.

Roof maintenance begins on both the inside and outside of your home, and taking a few moments before winter hits can save headaches later.

• Clean rain gutters: Clean water and debris from the gutters. Clogs could force rainwater or melting ice under the eaves of your roof, leading to extensive damage.

• Check the metal flashing fitted to the roof intersections around your chimney. Incorrectly fitted flashing can lead to leaks. Check all other metal areas for warps and holes and, if found, repair.

• Apply waterproofing products to help protect your roof from water and preserve and condition your roof as well. Standing water, melting ice and snow can lead to a wide range of issues.

• Proper attic ventilation can extend the life of your shingles, so consider adding attic vents to help prevent ice damming if you don't already have them, or clean out the vents you already have to reduce heat and moisture buildup in the attic that can cause damage to your roof.

Roof Replacement

Finally, if your roof is getting up in years, you may want to consider replacing your shingles. This may be an appropriate time to speak with a general contractor about a new roof installation.

With each passing winter on an aged roof, the chance for greater structural damage increases. Roof repairs are not something to delay as they can ultimately lead to more expensive home repairs. And with continuing increases in the price of building materials, waiting could mean paying more later. Asphalt shingles are still the most economical and popular roofing material, covering nearly 85 percent of U.S. homes.

You may want to consider a premium asphalt shingle, which typically comes with a longer warranty that could save money in the future.

To Aid Small Animals Exposed To Smoke

Pet Oxygen Mask Donated To Quincy Fire Department

By JOE REARDON

The Quincy Fire Department improved its chances exponentially in saving dogs and cats, thanks to a new piece of equipment donated to the department.

Meg Connelly, a veterinarian at the Willard Veterinary Clinic, 176 Willard St., Quincy, recently presented Quincy Deputy Chief Joseph Jackson with an oxygen mask designed for animals. The masks were donated to veterinary clinics in the Commonwealth by the Massachusetts Veterinary Medical Association. Connelly plans to deliver a second mask to the Braintree Fire Department.

"They're (MVMA) trying to get one in every town," said Connelly.

The masks are similar to the ones firefighters use for people with the main difference being they are cone shaped to fit the snout of a dog. The mask gives a more comfortable fit for the animals as compared to the ones fire departments generally use. They can be used for dogs and cats, even rabbits and guinea pigs.

Known as SurgiVet Pet Oxygen Masks, they are designed to add supplemental oxygen to animals that are suffering from respiratory distress, smoke inhalation, or for anesthesia. The masks are used on animals by general and specialty veterinary facilities, emergency referral clinics, and fire and rescue departments.

Jackson said the masks would be very useful in aiding animals exposed to smoke. "It's not incredibly unusual at all for us to come across dogs and cats at a fire," said Jackson. "It's definitely a piece of equipment worth having."

Connelly, who has used the mask at her clinic for several years putting animals under anesthesia, used her 14-1/2-year-old Standard Poodle "Delilah" to demonstrate how the masks are worn. The friendly Poodle felt completely at ease wearing the light apparatus.

Connelly said that firemen oftentimes rescue all types of animals from blazes and that the mask gives the animals a better chance of survival. "Firemen help whoever they come across," she said. "You don't just not give oxygen because you don't have the right equipment.

"Once you have an emergency, you realize you need the right piece of equipment."

The masks became more common after the Katrina flooding where many people stayed with their pets and wound up drowning.

"After Katrina, people realized there were others who wouldn't leave their dog behind," Connelly said.

VETERINARIAN MEG CONNELLY and Quincy Deputy Chief Joseph Jackson demonstrate on Connelly's Standard Poodle "Delilah" how the animal oxygen mask is used. Connelly donated masks to both the Quincy and Braintree Fire Departments.

DeCristofaro has spent his entire 35-year career in the Quincy Public Schools, starting as an elementary school teacher and working his way through the ranks as an assistant principal and later principal of Snug Harbor Elementary School. He earned his doctorate in 1993 from the University of Massachusetts, and became Assistant Superintendent in the same year, a position he held until his appointment as Superintendent in 2001.

DeCristofaro said he was "grateful for the confidence" shown by the School Committee, and the work that went into his evaluation and contract negotiations, adding he was optimistic about the next three years and the future of the Quincy Public Schools.

"I am looking forward to the next three years – I still have the passion for educational excellence, I still have the understanding of the vital role our teachers play in the classroom and I know on the administrative end we are going to continue to need strong leadership," he said.

McCarthy praised DeCristofaro as a "solid leader" on both the academic side and as a manager of the largest City department.

"Next year will be my eighth on the Committee, and there has not been a time when we've started a school year and Dr. DeCristofaro hasn't improved our schools at every level – elementary, middle, and the high schools," he said. "He is a just a remarkably well-rounded leader, which is so important for a City and school system the size of ours."

WHAT DO THEY DO?

A podiatric surgeon performs surgery on the feet, ankles and sometimes the lower leg. Graduation from podiatric medical school is followed by a residency in podiatric surgery. Some continue further and take a fellowship to learn advanced surgical techniques. Podiatric surgeons generally work in hospitals and clinics. They perform repairs, reconstructions, and corrections on the feet and ankles, addressing conditions like severe bunions and feet that are badly broken and require surgery for stabilization. Podiatric surgeons may specialize in areas such as sports injuries or pediatric medical issues. They ensure that patients can be provided with high-quality surgical care from a professional who is trained both as a surgeon and as a podiatrist.

If surgery is the recommended course of action to deal with your particular foot problem, you'll be glad to know that today's techniques make the process easier and faster, and recovery is quite a bit more comfortable than even just a few years ago. At our state-of-the-art footcare facilities, I offer relief from the painful condition of hyperpronation through HyProCure™, a surgical stabilizing procedure that eliminates the discomfort of excessive motion of the foot and ankle. Please call 781-986-3668 for an appointment. Our office is located at QUINCY MEDICAL CENTER. Office hours are also available at 999 North Main St., in the Randolph Medical Building, and Milton Medical Building in Suite 221.

Quincy Lions Club Hosts Holiday Luncheon For The Blind

Donates $1,000 To South Shore Center For Visually Impaired

The Quincy Lions Club hosted its annual holiday luncheon for the blind and visually impaired December 3, treating members of the South Shore Center for the Visually Impaired to a holiday dinner and an afternoon of music and holiday singing.

Organized by longtime Quincy Lion Ed O'Leary, the annual luncheon included musical performances by Ginny Connelly, piano selections by Lions Club Secretary Sean Glennon and holiday favorites sung by South Shore Center member Virginia Gibson. O'Leary helped guests get in the holiday spirit by leading attendees in a sing-along of holiday favorites, including "Jingle Bells," "White Christmas," and "Walkin' in a Winter Wonderland."

A special highlight of the event was the announcement of a $1,000 donation from the Quincy Lions Club to support the center's activities. Center Director Peggy O'Connor thanked the Lions for the support the club has shown over the years for the South Shore Center for the Visually Impaired. She noted that one of the members' favorite activities is knitting handmade afghans, which the center then donates to local veterans, new babies and children being treated for cancer at the Dana Farber Cancer Institute.

The Lions holiday luncheon also included an induction ceremony, as Paula Rowe and Paul Mauriello were installed as Lions.

In 2011, the Quincy Lions Club will celebrate its 70th anniversary of serving the local community.

Through such popular annual events as its Halloween Pancake Breakfast, Holiday Wine Tasting and 5K Run/Walk for Sight, the Quincy Lions Club raises money to support eye research, provide free eye glasses and eye exams to local residents, college scholarships to local students and more.

hats and gloves as well as outfits and snowsuits for babies from newborn to a year old. In addition, the Society provides a Food Pantry year-round and always welcomes food and donations of checks and gift cards.

Lawless said they're grateful for the generous help of parishioners and noted that employees of the Stop & Shop, Southern Artery, conducted a successful food drive once again this season.

Donations can be made at the church or by calling the Society's number, 617-472-4908.

St. John's St. Vincent de Paul Society originated with eight couples who volunteered to help the church aid parishioners in need. The group has changed slightly as several founding members have been sick but Joyce said new volunteers had stepped in to help.

Salvation Army
617-472-2345

The bells are ringing for the Salvation Army's Annual Kettle Drive and those funds maintain the Army's good works throughout the year from its outreach to families and individuals to special programs for children and senior citizens.

Major Douglas Burr said the Army has a full time social worker as well as a food pantry year-round at its Quincy headquarters.

Those programs, as well as its outreach and community projects, are expanded during the holiday season. Major Burr and his wife, Major Debbie Burr are commanders of the Quincy Salvation Army Corps.

Every Christmas season, the Quincy Salvation Army, sponsors several programs that brighten the holidays for local residents in need, such as a its Angel Tree and food gifts.

"We have a Christmas voucher program," Major Burr said, noting that eligible individuals and families are given vouchers which can be used at Stop & Shop for all items except tobacco and alcohol. Once a voucher has been used, the Salvation Army covers the cost with Stop & Shop.

And every year, the Quincy Salvation Army raises its "Angel Tree."

The Angel Tree provides an opportunity to fill an individual's or family's special request with special personal gifts of clothing, toys or gift cards, according to Major Burr.

Major Burr said not only local residents but also local corporations, such as B.J's, Stop & Shop and J.C. Penney's employees and customers act as angels each season.

Gifts for this year's Angel Tree are already being sorted ready for delivery, but there's still a need for food items and toys and donations, according to Major Burr who said gifts may be dropped off at headquarters or mailed.

New warm clothing, food and donations are always needed.

Germantown
Neighborhood Center

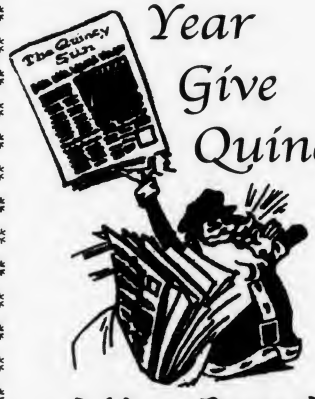
"Last year, we were able to serve 1,400 disadvantaged families in Quincy, with the help of individuals and local business. This year, we will need to assist many more," said Germantown Neighborhood Center Director Kathy Quigley. "The tragic effects of the economy have rallied many of us over the last few months to reach into our pockets and help many families. This economy still affects all of us, and many of our local citizens will feel its effects this winter with the sharp rise in fuel and heating costs. I am seeing it already in our own community in Quincy. This is why as we approach the holidays we're preparing for a year of unprecedented need."

For example, Quigley said in October a mother of three was referred to the Center through her health center.

"As I sat with her, she told me about her son who had been hospitalized for the past two months, and expressed her fear of not being able to pay the rent. This woman was faced with the decision of whether to buy gas, heat her home, visit her son, or pay the rent. Her choice was to travel 20 miles every day to be by her son's side. Because of this decision she fell behind on her rent. Yet her biggest fear was not having gifts for her children in the holiday season. I assured her that the Germantown Neighborhood Center would provide. I also put her in touch with our family assistance program and we were able to assist her with her rent.

"This is just one of many stories that come to the center on a regular basis. The people we serve are well-screened and very much in need. I get all choked up each year during the food and toy drive by the generosity of people I don't know. Many times during the year, I make many visit's with families throughout Quincy and have seen the devastation that they live with. I never forget when I was visiting a new family that had three children and no beds for anyone and they been living in there apartment for three months and only had blankets and pillows.



"The Center has developed into a decentralized model of family support and outreach, particularly during these crucial months when families are experiencing significant stresses in their lives due to poverty," Quigley continued. "Residents are encouraged to participate in the holiday program by volunteering some of their time. This has proven to be very effective for many families, especially because their direct involvement in preparing for the holidays enhances their self esteem. More often than not, these families remain involved with the Center after the holiday season and learn life skills that are invaluable to the family. The Center has been recognized as a vital resource for many residents in Quincy and we would like to continue to provide services for all those who apply for assistance. However without the generosity and support from area businesses and others, the Center cannot serve all of the families in need.

"Our largest outreach program is the Holiday Gift Giving Program which provides the highest volume of Holiday assistance to Quincy residents and homeless families. The purpose of the Holiday Program is to assist families of low to moderate income who are in need of food, clothing, household items and toys. Families are referred to the Center by many organizations.

"Last holiday season, the Center served a record breaking 6,000 people living in the City of Quincy and it is expected that requests for assistance during the 2010 season will easily surpass last years numbers. Every child receives a winter coat, one outfit and pajamas along with the gifts from their wish list. A key component to this program is providing a week's worth of groceries, which is crucial because the children are on school vacation for a week and will not receive breakfast and lunch at school."

Quigley said the Germantown Neighborhood Holiday Program has a direct impact on the community. "Through the combined efforts to generous individuals and businesses we are able to continue to provide this much needed service," she added.

Joseph Hewlett Graduates Army ROTC Course

Joseph B. Hewlett III recently graduated from the Army ROTC (Reserve Officer Training Corps) Leader Development and Assessment Course, also known as "Operation Warrior Forge" at Fort Lewis, Tacoma, Wash.

The cadle is a student at Norwich University in Northfield, VT.

Hewlett is the son of Donna B. Hewlett of East Squantum Street, Quincy.

During the 32 days of training, cadets learn aspects of military life, administration and logistical support.

Cadets in their junior and senior year of college must complete the leadership development course.. Upon successful completion of the course, the ROTC program, and graduation from college, cadets are commissioned as second lieutenants in the U.S. Army, National Guard, or Reserve.

George Burke Fitness Center Opened

QHS Rededicates Munroe MacLean Gymnasium

By SEAN BRENNAN

On the parquet court of the brand new state-of-the-art Quincy High School Gymnasium, two Quincy legends were honored, celebrated and remembered for their contributions to the high school community by school administrators, students, parents and fans.

The gym, which hosted the first of many Quincy/North Quincy basketball games that night, was rededicated in honor of legendary QHS coach Munroe MacLean.

MacLean, who passed away in 1969, first made a name for himself as an all-star football player at QHS between 1924-1926 and after attending Westchester State College, he returned to his high school and became the head football coach for the Presidents in 1938.

After taking leave to serve his country as a Lt. Commander in the United States Army during World War II (1943-1945), MacLean returned to QHS as a coach, taking over the school's basketball and track teams.

As the basketball coach, he took nine teams to the Eastern Massachusetts Tech Tournament, and his 1951 team became the one, and still to this day, only Quincy team to capture a state final.

MacLean served as the Quincy Public School Athletic Director from 1959-1969.

QHS Principal Frank Santoro, the emcee of the dedication ceremony, spoke eloquently about the late Munroe MacLean, saying, in part:

"Mr. MacLean was an outstanding football player at Quincy High School in 1924, 1925 and 1926... In 1938, Mr. MacLean became the head football coach at QHS. (He) left in 1943 to 1945 to serve as Lt. Commander in the Navy during World War II. In 1946 he returned to QHS as a coach and added coaching basketball and track to his accomplishments and in 1959 until his death in 1969 served as Quincy Public School's Athletic Director.

"Mr. MacLean will always be remembered by hundreds of his players for his competitiveness and gentle manner. Through his soft-spoken manner he could inspire a young player to exceptional accomplishments.

Serious about soccer — then get serious about training

Constantly rehearse it, experience it, and play it. That is how soccer technique and skills are learned. AFC skills clinic fees are low so players can acquire the skills they need through repetitive practice and play without their parents having to pay a small fortune.

The clinic provides players with intensive individual skills development. Skills developed include fast footwork and agility, feign development, general ball work, passing and receiving, movement off the ball, shooting and finishing, and individual defending.

To enroll, look to the chart below, locate your age and gender group, then go online to our website and sign up. All training sessions are run out of local Quincy schools.

Julie Tomer's Clutch Free Throws Were the Difference

Quincy Outlasts North Quincy, 43-41, In Season Opener

By SEAN BRENNAN

It was an evening of high basketball drama at Quincy High School last Friday.

The night tipped off with a thrilling game between the Lady Presidents and Lady Red Raiders; a contest that was not decided until the final seconds when Quincy's Julie Tomer stepped to the charity stripe, her team trailing 41-40, and knocked down both free throws, giving the Presidents a season-opening 43-41 victory over rival North Quincy.

"It felt like North Quincy had stolen the momentum there at the end," said QHS coach Jeff Bretsch after watching the Red Raiders reel off five straight points to go ahead 41-40 with 40 seconds left in the game. "They kept coming and they made a nice little run. But I was happy to see my kids show some mental toughness. Tomer hit those two huge free throws to go from down one to up one. That really shows the progress she has made since last year."

"I am also proud of the way we played defense at the end," Bretsch continued. "I am glad it ended the way it did. We will take it."

The 2010 opener was a back-and-forth affair throughout. Early season jitters resulted in a low scoring first quarter (8-6 Red Raiders advantage). At the halftime break, QHS had regained the momentum after scoring the final four points of the quarter to take a 20-16 lead into the locker room.

"We were a little sloppy moving the ball in the beginning," said Bretsch. "Kids always get jittery and rush things in the early games, but we settled in a little when we started pushing the ball. We got running in the second quarter and it seemed to settle us down."

In the final 16 minutes of regulation, both teams battled for bragging rights. The Red Raiders, down four points starting the third quarter, cut the deficit to 20-18 following a bucket from junior Amber Jones, an easy layup from Quincy's Kiley McDonald pushed the score to 24-18, and after North's Emily Gray (seven points) banked a shot off glass, the Presidents' Nicole Lamie (nine pts.) gave QHS its largest lead of the night with a three-point basket (27-20).

It was then that the Red Raiders went on a scoring run of their own.

Gray sank one-of-two from the line; senior Karla Fernandes scored down low drawing North to within four points (27-23), and two free throws and a layup later from sophomore Caitlin Bulger tied the score at 27-27.

After Tomer and North's Olivia Umoren traded free throws (29-29), Bulger scored again on a driving layup to give the Raiders a 31-29 lead at the end of three quarters.

Leading 31-29, North increased their advantage to 33-29 following two free throws from Umoren on the opening possession of the fourth quarter. Tomer responded with a 1-for-2 showing at the line (33-30) and senior Stella Edwards' put-back moved Quincy within one point (33-32) with five minutes to play in regulation.

Another 1-for-2 showing at the line from Umoren gave North Quincy a 34-32 lead, but Quincy responded with an 8-2 scoring run to take a 40-36 lead with 2:45 left in the game. Senior guard Kori Sorensen got the spree started by hitting an elbow jumper; she then hit one free throw followed by a layup from McDonald (37-34 QHS) and a free throw from Lamie (38-34).

North Quincy's Montana McBirney halted the Quincy run with a easy layup before McDonald pushed the lead back to four (40-36) with short jumper.

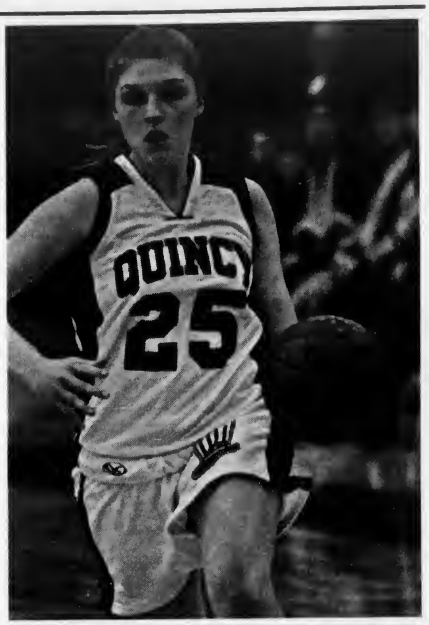
Following two successful free throws by McBirney (40-38), North's Annie Dow drew a foul call, but missed both attempts. However, a strong defensive stand by the Red Raiders got the ball back into McBirney's hands and she evened the score at 40-40 with a minute remaining.

With score tied at 40-40, North's Amber Jones stripped Tomer and raced down the court where she was fouled with 40.8 seconds left. She proceeded to hit 1-of-2 free throws, giving the Red Raiders a 41-40 advantage.

But Tomer more than made up for her turnover. After being fouled, she stepped to the line and made both attempts (42-41 QHS). A turnover by the Red Raiders put Sorensen back on the line; she hit one of two for the final points of the game.

"We climbed back into the game and took a lead," said NQHS coach Michael Jorgenson. "That got people re-excited. We started to control the boards a little better than we had and we came up with some steals and started to get some things to click.

"It is a tough loss but you'd rather be in the game than not. You don't want to start out 0-1, but we liked some things we did tonight."



One aspect of the game that wasn't to Jorgensen's liking was his team performance at the free throw line. The Red Raiders finished 16-for-36 from the stripe. A made free throw here or there and the outcome may have been different.

"It is a methodical thing," Jorgenson lamented. "Maybe we had an off night and we will work to refine that. I saw some things I really liked and there are other things we need to work on. It was a loss but there are things we can take away from it."

For the Presidents, it wasn't the prettiest of victories, but they'll take it, especially coming in front of a home crowd and playing for the first time in their brand new gymnasium.

"This gym is 30 degrees warmer than our old gym," said Bretsch. "It is top of the line and the kids feel important and it feels significant playing in such a great place. Hopefully this is the first of many wins."

Tim Liuzzo Finished With 19 Points, 13 Rebounds

Red Raiders Escape Presidents, 53-52

NORTH QUINCY'S TIM LIUZZO (19 points) drives past Quincy's Lukas McDonough for two of his 19 points. The Red Raiders ruined Quincy's home opener by coming from behind to win 53-52 in the first boys basketball game played at the new QHS gymnasium.

Tim Liuzzo and the rest of the North Quincy Red Raiders spoiled the Presidents party Friday night, knocking off the hosts in a nail-bitter, 53-52, on the court at the newly dedicated Munroe MacLean Gymnasium at Quincy High School.

North Quincy (1-0) earned this victory. The young and undersized Red Raiders used an 8-2 closing run, highlighted by four free throws and a layup from Liuzzo (19 points, 13 rebounds), to rally back from a 51-45 deficit in the final four minutes.

"Tim really stepped up for us in this game," said NQHS coach Kevin Barrett. "His offensive numbers speak for themselves but for him it all starts on the defense end.

"He is our anchor on defense. He is our Kevin Garnett. He directs traffic and is a great communicator. It is his intangibles that really stand out and because we have such a young team, he really did a great job in that role."

The Red Raiders got the early jump on the Presidents, playing in front of a packed house, in the 2010 season opener for both teams. North Quincy closed out the first quarter with a 16-12 lead, but Quincy behind the otherworldly shooting of senior forward Oliver O'Sullivan (game-high 25 points) and solid team defense held the Raiders at bay in the second quarter.

The Presidents seemed in control following a 16-3 scoring run to close out the half. What had been a four-point deficit, quickly turned into a seven-point advantage (30-23) as the teams headed into the break.

North Quincy was held without a basket in the final six-plus minutes of the second quarter. But to their credit, the Red Raiders adjusted their game plan and held on long enough to claw their way back into the game in the second half.

"We let the momentum swing their way in that second quarter," Barrett continued. "We were stuck on 21 for what seemed like forever, but give credit to my kids. We got down early but we battled back and kept fighting. This is an undersized group but we kept pursuing the basketball and kept focusing on grabbing the rebounds and boxing out.

"I can't say enough about how we responded playing a tough team on their home court. We battled through some adversity and came out on top."

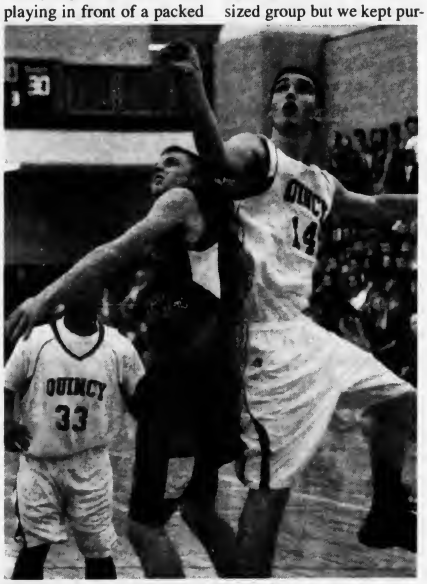
With only two seniors on the roster, Paul Gould and Jiabau Shang, Barrett got major contributions from a trio of sophomores. Guards Pat and Dan Gould and Marquis McClendon played like seasoned veterans, never allowing the environment of an opening night to rattle them. These three, along with juniors Liuzzo, Matty Costa, Ryan Evans, Paul Cunniff, Joe Brown, and Devon Simmons and freshmen Greg Clarke and Efthim Butka give Barrett a solid foundation to work from.

This victory over a senior-laden Quincy team might be just the start his Red Raiders need to have a successful season this winter.

"I played my sophomores a lot," he said. "They really responded on the big stage and hopefully we can build on that. Everyone got their feet wet and I can't say enough about how they responded to the adversity."

For North Quincy a win on opening night is exactly how they drew it up. The fact that the win was over Quincy and in a hostile building made it that much sweeter. But it is just one win, there is plenty of work left to do.

"I never put limits on what we can do as a team," said Barrett. "Collectively, this is a hard-working team. Our goal is always to make the state tournament, but saying that, it is always special beating Quincy.



"We have won seven out of the last nine games against them. But the top priority is to work to get better and hopefully we continue to improve."

Quincy will be disappointed in the final outcome of this game, but this team has the talent and athleticism to make a serious run in the Patriot League.

On top of O'Sullivan, the Presidents will rely on seniors Brian Malger (captain; guard), Ryan Schultz (guard), Lukas McDonough (forward), Kevin McDonagh (captain; forward), Mario Cace (forward), David Nhan (guard), and Chuck Butler (forward).

Juniors Alex Bottari (guard), Reggie Cesar (forward), Zerick Fadairo (forward), and Jalen Green (guard) along with sophomore Derrick Stone (guard) should also provide production for the Presidents this season.

Notes: North Quincy opened their home slate against Our Lady of Fatima High School (Rhode Island) on Tuesday... The Raiders travel to Hingham HS on Friday before traveling to Whitman-Hanson HS on Dec. 21... North plays a home tilt on Dec. 23 against Dennis-Yarmouth HS (6:30 p.m.) and will play, along with Braintree, Quincy and Weymouth on Dec. 28-29 in the John Adams Holiday Tournament at QHS... Quincy hosts Pembroke HS on Friday (6:30 p.m.), travels to Bridgewater-Raynham HS on Dec. 19 and plays at home on Dec. 21 against Hanover HS (6:30 p.m.)... The Presidents will be part of the John Adams Holiday Tournament Dec. 28-29.

QUINCY'S OLIVER O'SULLIVAN (#14) scored a game-high 25 points for the Presidents. Despite his offensive output, Quincy lost to North Quincy 53-52 last Friday evening.

NORTH'S TIM LIUZZO gets up high for two of his 19 points during the Red Raiders' 53-52-victory over Quincy last Friday at QHS.

"Tonight, we rededicate the Quincy High School Gymnasium as the Munroe MacLean Gymnasium."

Following Santoro's remarks, Munroe MacLean's daughter, Jean Ann Phinney, took the microphone and addressed the crowd, offering her thanks and appreciation to the school community, saying:

"I just asked Mr. Santoro if I could say something. I had a very busy day lined up. There were four things I was going to do, but I made it here. I spent the day with a friend of mine, probably my best friend; she is not doing very well at all.

"I would ask you, everyone, students, players, teachers, parents, visitors, that when you put your head on your pillow tonight would you say a prayer for Doris Allen. I would appreciate it.

"Now I have another word of appreciation. My father and mother would very humbly enjoy this evening. I don't need to be humble. I am delighted. I thank you very much for this. And I tell you this because as I left the nursing home tonight I said to Doris' nurse that I don't want to leave her but I have to because I have a very important engagement and I told her what it was.

"I said that QHS is naming their new gym at the new school in honor of my father. She said 'that is wonderful.' And I said he has been gone since 1969 and she said 'they remember him.' That is the key. You remember him. Thank you."

George "Trigger" Burke

George Burke, captain of the 1950 QHS basketball team, 1950 graduate of QHS, a University of Massachusetts-Amherst Basketball Hall of Famer, a well-known Quincy attorney, a former city councillor and state representative, who, over the years, has given thousands of dollars to seniors at both high schools for scholarships to UMass, was honored for his $50,000 contribution, which enabled the school to open the brand-new, two-story George Burke Fitness Center.

Burke, a member of the QHS Basketball Hall of Fame, starred at UMass where his #32 jersey hangs retired from the university's Mullins Center. Burke, as a player at UMass, set scoring records, assist records, was named to the First-Team All-East, All-New England and All-Yankee Conference Teams; he was also a member of the Second All-American Team.

Santoro said about Mr. Burke's contributions:

"What is important is Mr. Burke's philanthropic nature. He continues to give thousands of dollars to seniors at both our high schools for scholarships to UMass. It is because of Mr. Burke's devotion and contributions to making Quincy student scholar-athletes that we are able to open the George Burke Fitness Center."

Red Raiders Looking To Heat Up The Ice In 2010

By SEAN BRENNAN

The 2010 North Quincy Red Raiders look to be solid in all three phases of their game; this according to second-year NQHS head coach Matt Gibbons.

The Raiders come into the winter season looking to improve on last year's record of 6-12-2, with the ultimate goal of advancing back into the state tournament. It is not going to be an easy road, not playing, again, this year, in the competitive Patriot League, but with a roster which includes ten seniors, plus plenty of younger players who gained valuable varsity experience in 2009, North Quincy has the look of a contender.

"I have ten seniors on the roster, so we have heavy senior experience," said Gibbons. "But we are actually a little bit young, although these younger players did see some time on at the varsity level last year.

"Looking at my roster, I can tell you that we are going to be strong on the defensive end. I have three juniors and a sophomore who are going to see plenty of action and up front at the forward positions we are stocked with seniors who have been there before and should produce again this season."

On the backend, juniors Michael Adduci, Tim Marks and Nick Furey and sophomore Rudy Tryon, will lead North Quincy. These four, along with freshman James Doherty, will be asked to be the final wall of defense in front of first-year starter in net, junior James Dunn.

"I feel like our defense is going to be real strong," Gibbons said. "Those guys are young, but they have the experience to shut teams downs. And, James Dunn, who is replacing Matt Brundidge, got a couple of starts last year. We are not expecting him to fill Matt's shoes; Matt was one of the best goalies in the league last year, but James did learn from the best.

"I am not expecting James to win every game for us. He is going to be solid but if we are winning based solely on James than we are not playing our game."

Backup goaltender will be senior James McManus.

With the defense set and ready to punish opposing teams, the Red Raiders will be looking at a deep senior forward class to carry the offense and relieve some pressure off the defensemen.

The scoring punch begins and ends with North Quincy's four captains: Brendan Glynn, Jimmy Scribi, Dereck Graham, and Michael Nelson.

"We have four team captains this season," said Gibbons. "Sometimes that is not ideal, but we feel like these four really compliment each other. In Brendan Glynn, I feel like we have one of the top players in the Patriot League. He has got to score for us to be a successful team.

"Dereck is a four-year varsity player and Mike Nelson is a three-year varsity player, so these guys know what it is going to take to produce. And with Jimmy Scribi, a player who came up to varsity halfway through last year, we get some serious leadership. He gives me everything I need from a leader."

Other forwards on the roster include seniors Vinnie Cameron, Frank Mastroilli, Connor Flynn, and Joe Kowlski. Sophomores Nick McGaughey and Pat Verhault along with freshman Robbie Cameron will also see ice time this year up front for the Raiders.

This mix-and-match of young and old is going to be challenged most nights playing in the Patriot League. The league offers North Quincy zero nights off. The top-3 teams, according to Gibbons, should be Hanover, Pembroke and Scituate, but the Red Raiders will also have to deal with strong programs from Silver Lake, Whitman-Hanson, Duxbury, and, of course, rival Quincy.

"The teams near the top of the league will be Hanover and Pembroke," stated Gibbons. "Scituate is always a good team as well, but if we play like I know we can, I don't see why we shouldn't be in the top-4 in this league.

"We are going to have to find our identity. It looks like we should be able to score some goals and, like I said; our defense is going to be strong. Last year we didn't finish with the best record but all of our games were close. If we tightening up some things we should be fine."

North Quincy was fit to be tested right out of the gate in its first game, which was scheduled for Wednesday night against Hanover. The team will host Pembroke HS on Saturday at 7:50 p.m. at the Quincy Youth Arena before traveling to non-league Everett HS on Dec. 22.

Over the holiday break, the Raiders are set to play in the Danny Sullivan Tournament, along with Quincy, Milton and King Philip, on Dec. 26-27 at the QYA.

After the New Year, North Quincy will play Silver Lake HS (Jan. 5), Scituate (Jan. 8, QYA, 7:50 p.m.), and at Brockton (Jan. 12) before ending the month with a home game against Whitman-Hanson (Jan. 15), at Hanover (Jan. 19), at Pembroke (Jan. 22), and at home versus QHS (Jan. 26) and Silver Lake (Jan. 29).

The team's annual Senior Night game will be played Feb. 19 against QHS.

QRD Announces Gym and Swim Program

The Quincy Recreation Department announced Tuesday that they will host and supervise a Gym and Swim Recreation Program on Monday, Jan. 3, 2011, utilizing the facilities of the Lincoln Hancock Community School Gym and Pool.

The co-ed program for boys and girls in Grades 2-5 will be offered in two separate sessions. According to Barry J. Welch, Director of Recreation, "A.M." Gym and Swim will be conducted from 9 a.m. until 12 noon, while "P.M." Gym and Swim will be offered from 12 noon until 3 p.m.

Gym and Swim is a part of the department's Sports and More Programming. The participants will take part in supervised gym activities and organized games and will also have the optional opportunity to take part in recreational swimming that will be supervised by American Red Cross Lifeguards, who are members of the QRD staff.

The cost of the program is $15 for either session. The "A.M." and "P.M." sessions will offer the same program of activities. In order to plan for appropriate staffing levels, advanced registration is required and there will be limited enrollment.

Welch noted:

"This date is the last day of the school vacation period and we think that the timing is ideal for working parents and those who may have exhausted vacation week activities."

Registration will begin Friday, Dec. 17, 2010 and can be done online at QuincyRec.com or in person at the main office of the QRD, One Merrymount Parkway, from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. on weekdays.

For additional information, call the QRD at 617-376-1394.

Q/NQ Hockey Starts Season With 6-2 Loss To Canton

By JOE REARDON

As good as the Canton girls are on the ice and should be the rest of the winter, Quincy/North Quincy head coach Dan McLean is reading very little into Sunday night's lopsided 6-2 loss to the Bulldogs in the season opener.

With five girls out due to sickness and injury, Q/NQ was nowhere near full strength and was soundly defeated by a perennially powerful team that won 15 games last season.

McLean isn't overly concerned, not one game into a 19-game season.

At full strength, McLean doesn't expect any team in the Southeastern Massachusetts Girls Hockey League to roll past what he believes to be a squad fully capable of qualifying for the tournament and playing into March.

"The girls are a year older and a year stronger," said McLean, who is in his second year at the Q/NQ helm after coaching the Canton High girls' team for three years. "The league is more balanced this year."

The two teams were scoreless at the end of the first period, but it was Canton's depth that made the difference against the depleted Q/NQ team. The Bulldogs put up three goals in the second period for the 3-0 lead. Q/NQ did cut the lead to two, 3-1, early in the third with Presley McLaighlin's tally. Jackie Eleey also added to the scoring with a goal in the third, but that would be all the scoring it would get.

McLean is very high on his goaltending tandem of junior Erin McGinnis and senior Shannon Coleman. So good in fact is Q/NQ between the posts, McLean believes the team can get away with a few mistakes and still come out on top.

"It's (goaltending) key for any team because when you build you start at the net and work out," explained McLean. "They're both very strong players. The goaltending will pick up the slack of most mistakes the team makes."

McLean intends to platoon the two goaltenders and ultimately go with the girl with the hot hand. McLean, though, is looking towards the future too and wants to see a good deal of McGinnis in the net. He's also going to delve back into last year's records to see just which goalie played the best against certain teams – anything to put his team in the best possible position to win.

"I may give Erin more pressure situations because she'll be on her own next year and I want to get her the experience," said McLean.

McLean sees the league as being wide open. Even Canton, as good as it is, still graduated five top-notch seniors, bringing the team back to the pack. Franklin looks to be a contender and Medway is an up-and-coming team capable of scoring goals.

Q/NQ should give the competition fits in their end. Along with McLaighlin and Eleey, the team has very capable forwards in Stephanie DiPietro, Christina Walsh, Loren Miller and Jaime Shaughnessy.

Defensively, Q/NQ has two sets of twins to provide protection in front of McGinnis and Coleman. Meghan and Katie White, and Danielle and Brianna Mullaney are very physical and excel in causing turnovers.

None of it will mean much if Q/NQ has to avoid making costly mistake in its own end. The team must remain aggressive, not for spurts but for entire games, every time out. "Everyone is going to step up this year," McLean said.

True, Q/NQ only had five wins last season, but the team could have very easily had two or three more if not for some bad bounces at inopportune times. This time around, McLean believes his team is more than capable of reaching 10 wins and stamping its ticket to the tourney. And he's banking on this year's team to take advantage over the competition's mistakes.

"That's what we're shooting for," he said.

America FC Adds Coach Conrad Whyte To Staff

America FC announced last month the addition of coach Conrad Whyte to the AFC Academy training staff.

Coach Conrad brings considerable professional and international playing experience as well as coaching experience at the premiere level to AFC. He was born in St. John's Antigua, started playing soccer at age five and began playing for Empire FC, a premiere club at age 15 in the Antigua and Barbuda premiere division.

While there, he scored 158 Premiere League goals, won the Golden Boots Award four times, and was named Footballer of the Year in 1998; he also holds the all-time, single-season scoring record with 26 goals.

Whyte has represented Antigua in international play for their U13, U15, U17, U23 teams and the men's national team. In action on the men's team, he scored 20 goals and in 1993 he was recruited to John Brown University in Arkansas on a soccer scholarship. The following year, he earned Player of the Year honors in the Oklahoma/Arkansas section scoring 22 goals and 10 assists; he holds the NAIA All-American Honorable Mention Honors.

After he retired as a player, he served as head coach from 2002 to 2009 for three premiere division teams in his native Antigua including Wadadli 5p, West Ham United, and Empire FC, his former team.

Whyte is currently pursuing his USYSA "B" and National Youth coaching licenses and will train and coach the AFC high-school-age (U16-U18) boy's team during the winter and spring; he will also be one of AFC's primary skills trainers in the AFC Academy and will work primarily with all high-school-age players.

CHRISTMAS IN CHURCH

St. Nicholas (Of Myra) Visits Children Of Christ Church

The children of Christ Church, Quincy were visited recently by St. Nicholas, one of the inspirations for the Santa Claus figure of Christmas.

St. Nicholas was a 4th Century Bishop of the island of Myra noted for his faith and his charitable giving. According to one legend, he helped a poor father who had no money to provide dowrys for his three daughters by throwing three purses of gold coins in the man's window at night.

Many European countries still celebrate St. Nicholas Day, when children leave their shoes outside their bedroom doors or by the chimney on the night of Dec. 5 and wake up the next morning to find small gifts inside.

During his visit to Christ Church, St. Nicholas (portrayed by Quincy resident Stephen Marcus) told the children about his good works and how he helped inspire the legend of the modern-day St. Nick. After the service, the children, who had left their shoes in the church Memorial Room, found their shoes filled with chocolate gold coins.

Longest Night Service Dec. 21 At Quincy Community United Methodist

The Quincy Community United Methodist Church 40 Beale St. will hold its annual Service of the Longest Night, which gets its name from the Winter Solstice Tuesday, Dec. 21 at 7:30 p.m.

"It's called the most wonderful time of the year for parties and laughter and fun," said Rev. Dr. Susan F. Jarek-Glidden, pastor of the church.

"But what do you do when your heart is breaking and the very idea of a party is painful?

"For some people, the holiday season can be very stressful and sometimes, very unhappy. Facing the first Christmas without a loved one's physical presence, dealing with an imminent death, living with an illness that places a question mark over the future, coping with the loss of a job facing life after a divorce or separation, and sometimes just life in general can make holiday celebration very difficult, if not impossible," she added.

The purpose of the service is to provide a safe place for people who are dealing with grief or loss of any kind, whether that grief and loss are recent or decades old.

The service includes music, scripture lessons, readings, prayers and quiet reflection.

For more information call the church office at 617-773-3319.

'Heart To Heart' Tree At Quincy Community United Methodist

The Quincy Community United Methodist Church 40 Beale St. invites the public to participate in the Heart to Heart Tree on the second floor of the church outside the sanctuary through Dec. 24.

For a donation of $2, the church will place a spun glass heart ornament on its "Heart to Heart" tree. The ornaments can let someone express their thoughts and feelings this time of year.

"Originally, the heart ornaments were meant to be given to people who are experiencing a difficult holiday season, as a way of letting them know someone cares," said Rev. Dr. Susan F. Jarek-Glidden, pastor of Quincy Community United Methodist Church, who invented the concept of the Heart to Heart Tree.

The idea, however, grew from that original concept.

"Although most of the hearts are still given to people who are hurting, some individuals have given them to people who have made a difference in their lives, such as mentors, friends, family members, and neighbors," Rev. Dr. Jarek-Glidden said. "It's a way of expressing feelings, a way of saying 'Thank you' as well as 'I care.'"

For more information about Quincy Community United Methodist Church's Heart to Heart Tree or about the church itself, call the church office at 617-773-3319.

Committee Prepared To Hold Lay-led Service If Request Denied

Star Of Sea Friends Ask Cardinal For Christmas Mass

Friends of Star of the Sea co-Chairs Sean Glennon and Maureen Mazrimas have sent a letter to Cardinal Sean O'Malley, requesting a Mass to be held at their shuttered church on Christmas Eve. The request was hand delivered to the chancery of the archdiocese Dec. 8 – the Solemnity of the Immaculate Conception of the Blessed Virgin Mary.

The letter states, in part, "Christmas is a time when even the most disenchanted Catholics traditionally 'come home.' With the abrupt and unwarranted 're-closing' of Mary, Star of the Sea Church (Squantum) on Sept. 5, that will not be possible this year. We are gravely concerned that our faith community will not receive the spiritual nourishment they need this holiday season."

The co-Chairs cite Canon 211, which refers to the Christian faithful having the "...duty and right to work so that the divine message of salvation more and more reaches all people in every age and in every land. This is particularly true during the Christmas season."

The letter also refers to Canon 212, which states, "The Christian faithful are free to make known to the pastors of the Church their needs, especially spiritual ones, and their desires."

The Friends' letter specifically requests that the Christmas Eve Mass be celebrated at 5:30 p.m., which is much more in line with the time that families with young children used to attend Christmas Eve Mass when Star of the Sea was a parish. Glennon and Mazrimas wrote to the Cardinal, "To welcome your children home for Christmas is a perfect way to fortify the Catholics Come Home initiative."

The co-Chairs have requested a response from the Cardinal's office by this Friday, Dec. 17, so that they have time to notify their faith community of alternate liturgical options, should their request be denied. They have already begun preparations for "Plan B", which would be a lay-led celebration held at the First Church of Squantum. The alternate liturgy would consist of scripture readings, prayer, children's choir, and organ. The alternate liturgy would also offer hosts consecrated by priests in good standing, for those who wish to receive communion.

"We're going to take up a collection either way," said Glennon. "The money collected will go to The Friends of Star of the Sea to fund canon law appeals, or it will go to the fund for sick and retired priests, which is the traditional recipient of the Christmas Mass collections."

Quincy Community United Methodist

Carols, candles and Holy Communion will mark both the 7 p.m. and 11 p.m. Christmas Eve worship services at Quincy Community United Methodist Chruch.40 Beale St.

"The emphasis at both services is singing carols," said Rev. Dr. Susan F. Jarek-Glidden, pastor of the church. "What better way is there to express the joy of Christmas?"

The two services will be identical, except for the time.

"Quincy Community wants to accommodate people's different needs. Some people enjoy the earlier service because the rest of the evening may then be spent with their families. Others prefer the later service, because – let's face it – there's something special, something magical about the later pater of Christmas Eve."

For more information, call the church office at 617-773-3319.

Bethany Congregational

Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Center, will have Sunday Worship and Church School at 10 a.m. Dec. 19.

The Rev. William C. Harding will conduct the service and preach a sermon entitled "Christ Living In You."

A time of fellowship with light refreshments will follow the worship service.

The church invites the public to a "Singsparation" Sunday at 6 p.m. with singing and refreshments.

A Christmas Eve candlelight service will be held Friday, Dec. 24 at 7 p.m. Bring bells.

All are welcome to attend Bethany Church Worship Services and its group activities.

Bethany has Women Groups meeting daytime and evening, a youth group, a men's group, an Outreach Mission Group doing various charity works and a Friday morning Bible Study class.

The church office is open from 8:30 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. For updates and activities, visit www.quincybethanychurch.org.

The video ministry tapes the Sunday worship services; they are broadcast on Quincy Access Television at 6 p.m. Thursday evenings on Channel 8.

CHICKIE ABDALLAH (center) of Quincy receives the 2010 Quincy Point Community Service Award presented recently at the Quincy Point Ecumenical Thanksgiving Service. Looking on are Father Vinnie Doolan, pastor, St. Joseph Parish and Rev. Ann Suzedell, pastor, Quincy Point Congregational Church. This award is presented to individuals who have served their Church and/or neighborhood community in an admirable fashion and whose "service has made a difference in the lives of many individuals, the city and the faith community of Quincy Point."

Chickie Abdallah Receives Quincy Point Community Service Award

Chickie Abdallah recently received the 2010 Quincy Point Community Service Award.

Given annually at the Quincy Point Ecumenical Thanksgiving Service, the award is presented to individuals who have served their Church and/or neighborhood community in an admirable fashion and whose "service has made a difference in the lives of many individuals, the city and the faith community of Quincy Point."

In their presentation of the award, Father Vinnie Doolan, Pastor, St. Joseph Parish and Reverend Ann Suzedell, Pastor, Quincy Point Congregational church presented some highlights of Abdallah's extensive involvement in church and civic activities.

An active Parishioner at St. Joseph Parish for 50-plus years, Abdallah has served as: Lector, Eucharistic Minister, liturgical ministry scheduler, Secretary of the Parish Pastoral Council, Member of Board of Directors for the Ladies Sodality as well as many ad hoc committees.

She served as president of the Mothers Guild, Religious Education teacher, Cub Scout leader, and assistant coach for Girl's CYO softball teams.

In addition, Chickie has been volunteering at Interfaith Social Services for the past five years. There she has served as Executive Board member and Community Relations Chair.

Abdallah also covers the Front Desk as well at the Bureau Drawer Thrift Shop.

Abdallah expends an equal amount of energy and enthusiasm in her civic activities. These include her service as: member and Treasurer of the Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission as well as the Avalon and Mound Street Beach Committee; and the MBTA Rider oversight Committee.

Many of Abdallah's family attended this Award ceremony and Thanksgiving ecumenical gathering.

Abdallah was also recently recognized for her tireless work as a community activist by the Quincy City Council.

Abdallah was presented a proclamation by Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi that declared the next plunge into Wollaston Beach on Jan. 22, 2011 as "Chickie Abdallah Toe Dunk-Day" in the city. She has been actively involved with the Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission.

"This was something unusual because nine people voted in favor of this award," Raymondi said with a laugh, referring to his eight council colleagues.

Abdallah has worked closely with Interfaith improvements in Quincy Point and the Wollaston Beach Plunge.

Councillor Joseph Finn lauded Abdallah for her work and love of the city. "She represents family, neighborhood and community," Finn said.

"She's a testament to that."

Abdallah was moved by the award.

"Thank you for this honor," she told city councillors. "It's awesome."

Mayor Thomas Koch had declared Dec. 6 as "Chickie Abdallah Day" in the city, citing her passion for the Ward 2 Civic Association, the Wollaston Beach Plunge and her advocacy for the environment.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Someone once said that character is just the foundation stone upon which one must build to win respect. Just as no worthy building can be erected on a weak foundation, so no lasting reputation worthy of respect can be built on a weak character.

"Character grows out of an awareness of the difference between right and wrong. It develops from a desire to embrace the right and avoid the wrong. It matures in the making of deliberate choices between doing what one ought to do and what one may prefer to do, especially when the former requires some sacrifice and hardship. It enables us to resist every kind of pressure when expediency clashes with principle and when shortsighted people clamor today for something they will condemn tomorrow." – Nuggets, July 1960.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Although taking advice isn't always easy for the headstrong Sheep, you might want to consider what someone you respect says about an upcoming decision.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A new offer is tempting, but don't be bullied into a quick decision. Rely on your keen Bovine business sense to alert you to anything that might be questionable.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Your Gemini Twin nature rallies to help you deal with this week's hectic schedules, both in your personal and professional lives. One caution: Watch your diet.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Avoid rushing to make up for time lost on a stalled workplace operation. Best to set up a schedule and pace yourself. Welcome the help of colleagues.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Despite those glittering holiday distractions you love so well, be sure to keep your feline senses set on high to alert you to anything that might require fast action.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Making an effort to restore fraying relationships proves to be more successful than you dared hope. The holidays also bring new friends into your life.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Private and professional matters compete for your attention. Be honest in your assessment of which should get more of it, and for how long.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A seemingly endless list of must-do tasks is best handled by tackling them one by one, and taking energy-restoring timeouts between each job.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A vexing relationship seems destined to deteriorate no matter what each side tries to do. A third party's advice just might prove helpful.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Reach out to ease any tensions caused by home or workplace pressures before they threaten the relationship-building progress you've made.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You often go out of your way to show kindness to others. So, don't be surprised if other people want to do something nice for you this week.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) People in your life respect your Piscean wisdom, so don't hesitate to speak up about a matter that you feel isn't being handled quite the way it should be.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your personal warmth helps you make friendships, and your sense of fair play helps you keep them.

THE SANSATINI HOUSE, festively decorated for the holidays by property manager Bernie Ronan, provides supportive housing for 10 formerly homeless individuals.

Local Veteran Adds Holiday Decorations To Neighborhood Housing Services Property

'Former Homeless Veterans Deserve A Christmas, Too'

From the street, it appears to be a lovely single-family home.

The large white colonial with black shutters located at 356 Washington St. in Quincy stands out among the nearby commercial businesses, its tasteful white Christmas lights adding a festive holiday feel to the street. The home looks so warm and inviting, in fact, that few passersby would imagine that the "single-family home" is actually a supportive housing program run by Quincy-based Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore, providing bright, modern efficiency apartments for 10 formerly homeless individuals.

The holiday decorations are the work of Bernie Ronan, the property's longtime resident manager. A U.S. Army veteran, Ronan, 80, has lived on-site at the property since 1971, when he first rented a room there to be near his job at the General Dynamics Shipyard. Fifteen years ago, he became the property's manager, and when Neighborhood Housing purchased the property for supportive housing in 2006, he stayed on to manage the property.

Ronan said the holiday decorations are one way of helping to brighten the season for the property's formerly homeless tenants.

"This is their home – and they deserve to have a Christmas, too," he said. "Maybe the decorations remind them of Christmases when they were little."

Robert Corley, executive director of Neighborhood Housing, noted that the property is formally known as The Sansatini House after the Quincy brothers whose large gift to Father Bill's & MainSpring helped make the project possible. With additional funding and support from the City of Quincy, Rockland Trust, NeighborWorks America, the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Mass. Department of Housing & Community Development, Neighborhood Housing transformed the former rooming house into supportive housing for formerly homeless men, who receive case management services from Father Bill's.

"Case managers provide job counseling, financial counseling and help connect the residents with local resources," said Donna Ackerman, assistant director of Neighborhood Housing Services. "The goal is to provide a safe, stable environment that will help prevent the tenants from becoming homeless again."

Adam Gleason, Father Bill's case manager for The Sansatini House, praised Ronan for his on-site management of the property.

"Bernie does a great job of maintaining the property – it doesn't look like a typical rooming house," Gleason said. "It looks like a well-kept home, and the tenants take a real sense of pride in their home.

"Should there be any issues that need addressing with the tenants, Bernie notifies me immediately," he continued. "It's been a very successful supportive housing situation."

Corley agreed. "Bernie is very organized and completely on top of the things it takes to run that house," he said, adding that Ronan also decorates Neighborhood Housing's headquarters during the holiday season. "Each year, Bernie comes into our front office lobby and sets up a Christmas display on the mantle over the fireplace – lights, fake snow and all."

Sansatini House resident Michael Baker said the tenants appreciate Ronan's efforts to add some holiday cheer to their lives. "The decorations make it seem very homey," he said. "I love living here."

8-0 Vote For Historic 'Bold Initiative' Designed To Revitalize Quincy Center

$1.3B Downtown Plan A Done Deal

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Applause filled City Council chambers Monday after Councillors unanimously approved the fifth and final motion authorizing the proposed $1.3 billion makeover of Quincy Center.

"This is a bold initiative. This is a defining moment in the history of our city," City Council President Kevin Coughlin said before members approved the measures aimed at jump-starting the center's revitalization project.

Project planners envision a bustling future for Quincy as massive redevelopment spurs new growth and prospects for the city's center.

If completed, at least one 20-story building will offer 735 new housing units in a revitalized Quincy Center enhanced by a million square feet of new office space, a hotel, at least one major retailer, and a cinema.

The plans produced by the redeveloper, Street-Works of White Plains, NY, feature hundreds of new trees, sidewalk cafes and small retailers, mid-level and luxury condominiums and apartments and hundreds of new jobs pre and post-construction.

Coughlin saluted Mayor Thomas Koch and the mayors before him who "laid the foundation and set the table, so to speak . . ."

That foundation included construction of the Concourse, prior land-takings, zoning changes, and the development of design guidelines, noted Coughlin.

Councillor Joseph Finn then commended Planning Director Dennis Harrington for "the incredible amount of work that he's put into this."

Harrington began working on the project in 2004 when Stop & Shop executives initiated discussions and introduced Street-Works developers to Quincy.

Council OKs Mayor's Tax Recommendations

Average Residential Bill Level, Commercial Rates Rise

By LAURA GRIFFIN

City councillors Monday approved Mayor Thomas Koch's tax levy recommendations that should insure a level 2011 tax bill for owners of the average single family home now valued at $325,800.

Koch's recommendations indicate that the owner of the average single family home will pay $4,372. That sum is actually one dollar lower than this year's bill for the average single family home which was valued at $330,800 last year.

"We made a commitment to do everything in our power to protect those families, and this tax rate is a product of that commitment," Koch said in a formal statement regarding the 2011 tax rate.

Under the proposal, the actual rate per $1,000 will increase from $13.22 per $1,000 to $13.42 per $1,000.

However, this year's lower real estate valuations will keep the tax bills steady.

City councillors were just as eager to maintain level taxes and unanimously approved budget adjustments and the mayor's recommended tax levy percentages for residential and commercial classifications.

Nick Puleo, Director of Municipal Finance, introduced the two "budget adjustments needed to complete the tax rate."

Those adjustments included a reduction in the

Delahunt: 'A Wonderful Career That Began Here'

Council Honors Congressman, Staff; Will Receive Commemorative Plaque

By JOE REARDON

The City Council paid tribute Monday night to a revered native son whose career wound up coming full circle.

Seven-term Congressman William Delahunt was honored at the city council meeting, sitting in the same chair where he was sworn in as a councillor on January 5, 1972, kicking off a remarkable 40-year career in public service.

Quincy's only elected official to hold elective office at four levels of government, Delahunt announced in March he would not be seeking an eighth term as congressman.

"It's truly an honor to hear these very warm words of my public service," a very moved Delahunt said.

Delahunt and the council spoke highly of his staff, all of who were honored with certificates of appreciation from the council for their service over the past 14

"If I had any talent, it's the talent to pick talented people," said Delahunt. "This staff is exceptional. They have a passion for public service."

Delahunt went on to say that letters he received from the public, commending the work of his staff "would provoke tears."

Accepting the framed certificates were Liz Carroll, Mike Higgins, P.J. O'Sullivan and Anestis Kalaitzidis. Kim Arouca, Julianne Goodfellow and Mark Forest were unable to attend, while Kathy Melia was presented the certificate posthumously.

"I am thankful you surrounded yourself with such good and caring people," said City Council President Kevin Coughlin.

Added Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro: "They've been unsung heroes. They're good people who have helped all of us."

Mayor Thomas Koch, who was on hand, was at a loss for words. "I couldn't add another word," Koch said.

The resolution honoring Delahunt read: "Whereas: William D. (Bill) Delahunt is a lifelong Quincy resident; the son of the late Ruth and Bill Delahunt Sr., proud father of Kirsten and Kara; and granddaughter Mia; Whereas Bill Delahunt dedicated his professional life in service to the people of the City of Quincy, the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and the United States of America; and that illustrious career includes service in the Quincy City Council, Massachusetts House of Representatives, Norfolk County District Attorney's office; The United States Coast Guard Reserve, and United State Congress.

"Now therefore be it resolved that the Quincy City Council honor his life and legacy by erecting a permanent commemorative plaque within the City Council Chambers to our city, this Commonwealth and our nation; and be it further resolved that the date of any such dedication of said commemorative plaque shall be known as William D. (Bill) Delahunt Day in the City of Quincy Massachusetts."

Councillor Joe Finn stepped aside to allow Delahunt to sit in the same spot as where his illustrious career in politics started in 1971. Delahunt rebounded from a 1969 loss in a tight election to three-time incumbent Walter J. Hannon.

His next bid proved to be a different story altogether as Delahunt trounced the field for the Ward 5 seat in 1971.

"It's been a long road from this particular seat," said Delahunt. "It was here that I learned the craft of politics. It was a wonderful career and it all began here."

Delahunt cited former Massachusetts Attorney General Frank Bellotti; Quincy Park, Forestry and Cemetery Director Richard Koch, Sen. Ted Kennedy and former Mayor James McIntyre as both mentors and major influences early in his political career.

After his council term, Delahunt went on to serve as a state representative, district attorney and congressman. He is the first Quincy son since President John Quincy Adams to hold a congressional seat.

Coughlin brought with him a Delahunt for Congress sweatshirt that he has had for 14 years.

"You, congressman, are our champion," said Coughlin. "You have been the veritable pathway from problem to solution."

Gutro both welcomed Delahunt home and said farewell.

"Welcome home," said Gutro. "Tonight we're here where it all began. We say thank you and say farewell to one of the city's most beloved figures."

A resolution honoring Delahunt was presented by Gutro on behalf of the city council and a plaque recognizing his distinguished career will be a permanent fixture in council chambers.

"We will miss you there (Washington), but are certainly glad to have you back here," Coughlin said.

Delahunt was especially passionate about battling domestic violence and was a national leader in domestic violence prevention. He helped found and organize D.O.V.E (Domestic Violence Ended), and a shelter for battered women and their families is still maintained in Quincy.

Along with Gov. Deval Patrick, Delahunt helped secure $8.1 million in stimulus funds for the Quincy Center Redevelopment Project.

"Congressman Delahunt is a true partner in our efforts to effectively invest recovery dollars in Quincy and the communities throughout the 10th Congressional District," Patrick said at the time.

With the restoration project gaining momentum, Delahunt told the council it would be remembered historically. "This council, I believe tonight, will become an historic council," he said.

Marianne Peak, the superintendent of Adams Historical National Park, presented Delahunt with a bust of John Quincy Adams. Delahunt was an outspoken leader in championing the Adams legacy, the Adams National Park and the city's rich, history.

"This is a moment I will never, never forget," said Delahunt near the end of the ceremony.

Delahunt served as Norfolk County district attorney from 1975 to 1996. In the fall of 1996, Delahunt was elected U.S. representative in the 10th Congressional District, succeeding Gerry Studds who retired. He took the seat in 1997 and served on the International Relations Committee and the Judiciary Committee. The committee gained attention when he defended President Clinton during impeachment hearings.

JUST IMAGINE, FOR A MOMENT...

Nearly everyone interested in jewelry cannot help but be struck by the wondrous beauty of precious metals and minerals mined from the earth. While we're all accustomed to seeing beautifully crafted pieces beneath glass jewelry counters, imagine what it would be like to actually discover a rare and valuable gemstone in its natural setting. This is exactly what happened to 53-year-old Terry Ledford, who literally stumbled upon a nearly 65-carat emerald in a pit near a North Carolina farm in 2009. The roughly two-inch-square chunk of green beryl, pulled from a farm where treasure hunters were charged $3 per day to hunt for precious stones, has been compared with the crown jewels of Russian empress Catherine the Great. Imagine!

The next time you are treasure hunting, come see us. You'll find a dazzling collection of fine gemstones of incomparable quality, and we'd be happy to design a custom piece using any of them, from your ideas or our own. Whether you are seriously shopping for a particular piece of jewelry, or simply window shopping for the future, take some time from your busy day and enjoy a visit to 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center. WHITE WALK – A dog owner walks two dogs in Squantum Point Park Tuesday morning after a fresh coating of snow – about 2.6 inches – fell Monday night. Quincy Sun Photo/Lisa Aimola

Snow Catches Drivers Off-Guard

Monday's snowfall was barely measurable, but it caused a flurry of problems for local drivers sliding into fender benders and pedestrians' maneuvering slippery walks and stairs in dry-weather footwear.

The storm's surprise element was the major problem, according to Public Works Commissioner Larry Prendeville, who pointed out the city snowfall totaled 2.6 inches, but those inches fell on iced surfaces.

Prendeville, along with the public, expected little to no snow locally. In fact, Prendeville said AccuWeather forecast "nothing to a dusting" on Monday morning.

In contrast, Prendeville said the day offered a "long duration storm starting at around 2 p.m. and ending at 10 p.m. Because of the forecast, we started with a salting operation,"

"As the snow accumulated, we switched to a plowing operation," said Prendeville who reported "numerous accidents all over, especially on the hills."

Prendeville said he switched to contractors around 2 p.m. but the calls coincided with traffic jams, "They had a hard time reaching their destinations because of so much traffic and gridlock."

Police Captain John Dougan, also, reported a number of fender benders, but no major traffic accidents.

Like Prendeville, Dougan cited the element of surprise, noting that drivers were caught unaware. With the storm so early in the season, many drivers were not ready.

"The DPW did a great job," said Dougan.

Tsaffaras Begins College President Term Jan. 3

Peter Tsaffaras, Esq., who has 39 years of work experience in the field of higher education, has been appointed president of Quincy College.

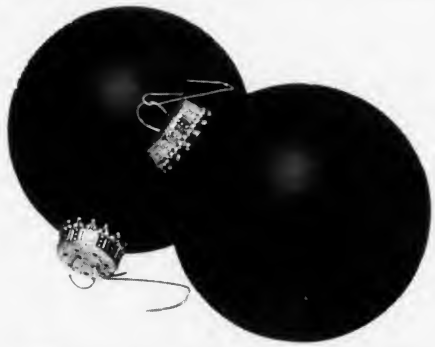
PETER TSAFFARAS

A former member of Quincy College's Board of Governors, Tsaffaras comes to the college from Massachusetts Board of Higher Education, an organization dedicated to ensuring a standard of quality in the programs and services offered by institutions of higher education in the Commonwealth. As Deputy Commissioner for Employee Relations and Acting General Counsel he was responsible for affirmative action, benefit administration, compensation management, human resources, labor relations and staffs support.

Tsaffaras' expertise in human resources and labor relations began at Bridgewater State College in 1985, where he worked as the Director of Human Resources. Transitioning to the Massachusetts Board of Higher Education in 1995 he was promoted from Deputy Director of Human Resources to Vice Chancellor for Employee Relations and Benefit Administration, and most recently, to Deputy Commissioner of Employee Relations.

Since 2005, Mr. Tsaffaras has taught at Massasoit Community College. For several years, he was the sole instructor of the Human Resources Certificate Program at Massasoit.



After earning an undergraduate degree in History at the University of Massachusetts-Lowell, Mr. Tsaffaras completed his graduate work at UMass-Boston in Education. He received a Juris Doctor degree from the New England School of Law, and maintains a general practice of law in Quincy.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Jan. 1, 45 B.C., New Year's Day is celebrated on January 1 for the first time as the Julian calendar takes effect. In designing his new calendar, Roman ruler Julius Caesar enlisted the aid of Sosigenes, an Alexandrian astronomer, who calculated a year to be 365 and 1/4 days.

• On Dec. 29, 1890, the U.S. Cavalry kills 146 Sioux at Wounded Knee in South Dakota. The cavalry surrounded a band of Ghost Dancers and demanded they surrender their weapons. A brutal massacre followed, with nearly half those killed being women and children.

• On Dec. 30, 1936, in one of the first sit-down strikes in the United States, autoworkers occupy the General Motors Fisher Body Plant in Flint, Mich. The strike lasted 44 days. GM's output went from a robust 50,000 cars in December to just 125 in February.

• On Dec. 27, 1941, the federal Office of Price Administration first begins to ration automobile tires. Only those who demonstrated need were allowed to purchase cars, metal typewriters, bicycles, stoves and rubber shoes. Butter, coffee, sugar, cooking fat, gasoline and non-rubber shoes also were rationed.

• On Jan. 2, 1962, The Weavers, who sparked the folk music revival of the 1950s and '60s, are banned from appearing on NBC when they refuse to sign an oath of political loyalty. The group saw their careers nearly destroyed during the Red Scare of the early 1950s, and they lost their recording contract over their leftist politics.

• On Dec. 28, 1973, Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn's "literary investigation" of the police-state system in the Soviet Union, "The Gulag Archipelago, 1918-1956", is published in the original Russian in Paris. On Feb. 12, 1974, Solzhenitsyn was arrested, stripped of his citizenship and deported.

A Wish List

Well, hard to believe but Christmas Day is almost here.

Where did this year go?

Seems like we just popped the cork welcoming 2010.

Now, we're down to a handful of days before Christmas is here.

And you know what that means:

Santa's coming.

And we hope his sleigh has ample room to bring presents to some folks here in the City of Presidents. Some suggestions are humorous, others a little more serious.

SANTA

So, Santa, in the spirit of Christmas, and in memory of my father who started this "wish list" column tradition, can you drop off the following:

Jobs, jobs and more jobs for the out-of-work residents who are struggling to find steady employment during these hard economic times. Some of our citizens have been jobless for quite some time. Putting people back to work is crucial to our local and state economy and would help so many get their feet back on stable ground. . . . That being said, we hope you can give MAYOR TOM KOCH continued progress as the $1.3 billion Quincy Center redevelopment enters its next stage. Now that the plan has been approved by the City Council, we need this ambitious and historic project to stay on track. Specifically, the mayor would appreciate permitting for the Town Brook, leases for tenants, passage of state legislation, formal schematic designs and a construction plan in 2011. . . . QUINCY CITY COUNCILLORS – a big pat on the back for working through the details of the $1.3 billion makeover of Quincy Center. They too deserve credit for vetting out all the details of the plan that project planners hope will precipitate new growth in the city's central business district. . . Ok, Santa, a repeat request from last year: City Clerk JOSEPH SHEA could really use brand new voting machines. It's getting more difficult to find parts for the current opti-scan ballot machines that the city's been using since 1996. They're still accurate . . . but servicing them is becoming an issue. The clerk would also like 100 percent participation in next year's city census. . . A good start for all our newly elected city officials who will begin new chapters in their public service careers in January. They include: outgoing Norfolk County District Attorney WILLIAM KEATING who will be heading to Washington as Quincy's representative in the U.S. Congress; MICHAEL MORRISSEY, the former state senator who will take over the reigns as Norfolk County district attorney; current councillor JOHN KEENAN who will be sworn in as state senator; and former legislative aide TACKEY CHAN who will become state representative in the 2nd Norfolk District. . . . State Rep. and Assistant Majority Leader RON MARIANO: a gavel. He may need it if there's another opening for Speaker of the House. . . To outgoing state treasurer and former city councillor TIM CAHILL: a grand opening ribbon cutting ceremony for his own new business if he decides to open one after his term as treasurer is wrapped up next month. Another option: a new job in the private sector without all the headaches that politics brings. . . . A happy retirement with plenty of travel for Library Director ANN MCLAUGHLIN who is stepping down as the leader of the Crane Public Library. Santa, we don't think she needs any books to read once she's retired but a smooth send-off would be nice, too. . . .Ditto for outgoing Quincy College President SUE HARRIS. She has served the college and city well. . . .To new Quincy College President PETER TSAFFARAS and the new QUINCY COLLEGE BOARD OF GOVERNORS – a harmonious relationship that will move the college forward and serve the students well. . . . A steady stream of donations all year round to the city's local service agencies including THE SALVATION ARMY, FATHER BILL'S PLACE, INTERFAITH SOCIAL SERVICES, QUINCY COMMUNITY ACTION PROGRAMS, DOMESTIC VIOLENCE ENDED (DOVE), QUINCY CRISIS CENTER, SAINT VINCENT DE PAUL SOCIETY and the GERMANTOWN NEIGHBORHOOD ASSOCIATION and many others. As the expression goes, need has no season. . . Police Chief PAUL KEENAN and Fire Chief JOSEPH BARRON and all the city's police officers and firefighters: safe shifts while protecting and serving the public. . . To outgoing State Rep. STEPHEN TOBIN: best of luck with new endeavors and steady work for his law practice . . . State Rep. BRUCE AYERS: brand new golf clubs and a lower handicap (he's been practicing real hard, Santa). . . Former Mayor WALTER HANNON: the first drive along the Quincy Center Concourse which will be opened and dedicated in his name sometime next year. . .Quincy Chamber of Commerce Co-Directors DEAN RIZZO and MARK CAREY: a robust membership drive to swell their ranks of local businesses. . . For the FAMILY OF FORMER POLICE OFFICER STEVEN BARRETT: great weather for his memorial golf tournament – and make it the most successful they've ever had, too. . . A bigger venue and capacity crowd for the KIWANIS CLUB OF QUINCY'S Junior Heroes Breakfast. Santa, these kids who are honored are just amazing. Solid students and caring citizens who are truly an inspiration to us all – just like the late Patrick Toland White whom the award is now named. This event is one of the best kept secrets in the city and deserves much more recognition than it receives. . . .Norfolk County Register of Probate PATRICK McDERMOTT, Ward 6 Councillor BRIAN McNAMEE and former Ward 6 Councillor JOE NEWTON: endorsement deals for "Weight Watchers," "Jenny Craig" and/or the Iron Man Triathlon. They are Quincy's winners to "The Biggest Loser" and we mean pounds, not votes. . . Recreation Director BARRY WELCH: a Beanpot hockey championship for his Northeastern Huskies. I know, I know Santa . . . he's a big Boston College football booster . . . but he's true to his Huntington Hounds. . . Quincy Presidents Football Coach BILL REARDON and North Quincy Red Raiders Football Coach JIM CONNOR: a berth in next year's high school Super Bowl play-offs. . . . DPW Commissioner LARRY PRENDEVILLE: no major snowstorm budget-busters to deplete the city's snow and ice budget. How about a surplus, Santa, that the city can salt away for next season? . . Funeral Director DICK SWEENEY: a speedy recovery from recent surgery and a pain-free 2011. . . . Health Commissioner DREW SCHEELE: a summer without any mosquitoes carrying EEE or West Nile Virus. . . JOHN YAZWINSKI: the day when the sign can come down at Father Bill's Place because the shelter is no longer needed. . .

And to all our faithful readers, loyal advertisers, dedicated newscarriers and fine friends who continue to support The Quincy Sun: peace, prosperity and good health in the New Year.

Merry Christmas, everyone.

Scenes From Yesterday

from QUINCY, MASS.

Largest Christmas Tree in United States.
85 feet high contributed by Retail Merchants.

CONTINUING WITH A Christmas tradition in The Quincy Sun, this is the 16th year that we have featured this postcard that was published 76 years ago in 1934. This 85-foot fabricated Christmas tree was decorated with 600 lights and two stars on top that blinked alternatively. The Merchants Division of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce erected the tree in front of the then Granite Trust Building in Quincy Square.Now a branch of The Bank of America, the building is also now the home of the new Quincy Chamber of Commerce. Merry Christmas. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Health Center For Sale

By FRANK McCAULEY

This Week
12 Years Ago

The John F. Kennedy Health Center on Hancock Street is officially up for sale. The city's long-range plan is to relocate the Health Department at the Center for Technical Education in the year 2003 when the new comprehensive Quincy High School is completed. (Editor's note: The school was finally completed and opened in September 2010.)

Presently, the Health Department is housed in the so-called Messina Quincy Fair Building, which also includes the Registry of Motor Vehicles and the city pays $4,400 a month, or about $15 a square foot to rent the space.

Two other city departments, which previously occupied the Health Center, were relocated several months ago. The Council on Aging offices are now located at Squantum Gardens and the Veterans Affairs Office is located on High School Avenue in the old Spanish-American War Veterans building.

The Health Center is valued at $1,083,600.

FOOD GIFTS FOR OVER 600 FAMILIES

More than 600 needy Quincy families with some 200 children and adult members will have "merry" in their Christmas this year thanks to seven local agencies and organizations.

Aiding the families are the Salvation Army, St. Vincent de Paul Society, Interfaith Social Services, Interfaith Sheltering Coalition, the Quincy Crisis Center, the Quincy Lodge of Elks and the Koch Club.

The help includes food certificates, food baskets, a whole week of groceries, and an open dinner at Fr. Bill's Place and food, toys and games for 50 families from the Koch Club.

Feed The Hungry Gala Raises $65,000 For Interfaith Social Services

Interfaith Social Services recently hosted its 13th Annual Feed the Hungry Gala at Lombardo's Function Facility in Randolph.

Hundreds of local residents gathered for this festive event with entertainment by Syd Slacks and His Elastic Waist Band.

Interfaith Social Services is a center for families in need. They have been serving the South Shore since 1947, programs include: The Pantry Shelf food program which distributed over 430,000 pounds of food to hungry families last year. HomeSafe, a homelessness prevention program which kept over 200 South Shore families in their homes this year. New Directions Counseling Center which has a special program that enables clients who can not afford counseling to receive the help they need.

"We are thrilled by the overwhelming response of support from the community," said Rick Doane, executive director of Interfaith Social Services. "Over 300 people danced together and kicked off the holiday season by generously supporting Interfaith Social Services. In 60 years of service here on the South Shore we have never experienced the level of demand that we are seeing right now. Thousands of local families are suffering; it is heartwarming to see the community come together at an event like this to support their neighbors in need."

"The event was a huge success," said Tom Williams, co-chairman of the event "With the charitable support from our community members and sponsors, Interfaith Social Services will receive much appreciated funding!"

Interfaith Social Services (ISS) is a private, non-profit, non-sectarian agency serving the residents of Massachusetts's South Shore. ISS' mission is to strengthen family life and offer assistance to anyone in need.

Programs include:

- Pantry Shelf, distributed over 430,000 lbs of food to impoverished families last year
- HomeSafe, serves families who find themselves at risk for homelessness due to financial hardship
- Harvest Helpers, organizes backyard gardeners and community groups who donate fresh local produce to food pantries
- New Directions Counseling Center, serves adults, children, couples and families who are dealing with a myriad of life issues. Most major insurance carriers are accepted. In addition, a special program within the center reaches out to clients who cannot afford the help that they so desperately need.

Fantastic Peanut-Butter Pudding Cake

It was my cousins Christmas party and 11 of us gathered together and enjoyed various foods brought in from each one of us.

And naturally, I always look for something different to use for this column, and this year was no exception.

Everyone ooh'd and aah'd over my cousin Ann's peanut butter pudding cake even before we tasted it. Who doesn't like peanut butter? Hope you enjoy it as much as we did.

Peanut Butter Pudding Cake

2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 ¼ cup brown sugar
½ cup milk
1/3-cup peanut butter
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
1-teaspoon vanilla
1 ½ cup hot water

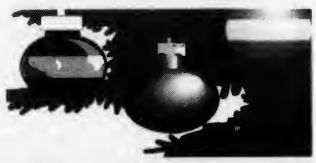
Boil the water.

Mix the flour, ¾ cup of the brown sugar, baking powder and salt. Add the milk, peanut butter, oil and the vanilla.

Spread in an 8 x 8 baking dish, and sprinkle the remaining brown sugar over the top, and pour the hot water over it all.

Bake in a 350-degree oven for 45 minutes. We served it with whipped cream or ice cream.

P.S. A little more peanut butter can be added if preferred.



Ann also gave me a great recipe for pie crust.

Pie crust

1 -1/3 cup flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1/3-cup vegetable oil
3 tablespoons milk

Mix the flour and salt together with a fork. In another bowl mix the oil and milk and add them to the dry ingredients. Mix with a fork until a ball forms. It will be moist. Roll out between two pieces of waxed paper. Bake as you would any other pie crust.

Merry Christmas!

Quincy Reception Welcomes Israel's New Consul General For New England

Israel's newly appointed consul general for New England was recognized at a recent reception in Quincy.

Consul General Shai Bazak, a former spokesperson for Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, was welcomed by Cong. William Delahunt and communications veteran George Regan at Regan's Marina Bay home.

Distinguished guests from regional academia, political and the business community gathered together to meet Consul General Bazak, including UMASS Boston Chancellor Keith Motley, Director of Combined Jewish Philanthropies Nancy Katz, state representatives Jay Kaufman and Joe Driscoll, and The Boston Celtics co-owner and managing partner Bob Epstein, who presented Consul General Bazak with an honorary Celtics jersey.

Bazak replaces Nadav Tamir, Israel's consul general for New England for the past four years.

Prior to his appointment as Consul General to New England in August, Consul General Bazak worked in both the private and public sectors. He served as media director and spokesperson for Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu during his first term in office, from 1996 to 1998. Consul General Bazak was then appointed Consul General to Florida and Puerto Rico in 1998 and served in this position for two years.

Born and raised in Jerusalem, he served in several Israel Defense Forces combat units and holds a Masters Degree in Political Science and Public Administration from Bar Ilan University.

He was one of the founders of the North American organization Nefesh B'nefesh, and also spent time as a political journalist and strategic consultant.

Calls Library Director Vote 'Appalling'

Appalling is the only word that seems appropriate after reading "Brockton Director Voted To Lead Crane Library" in the December 16, 2010, edition of The Quincy Sun.

The description of the "event" made it seem as if it were more akin to a Blake Edwards' 1960s farce than what should have been the serious matter of selecting a Director for one of the city's most treasured resources, The Thomas Crane Public Library.

Clearly, a majority of the trustees were not chagrined by what appeared to be nothing more than a charade. Put it on YouTube and there would be a million hits surrounded by raucous laughter. The scenario is mind-boggling:

A one-hour public hearing held just before the Trustees were to meet to vote on selecting a Director, although that significant action was not even listed on their agenda.

Telling everyone attending the "hearing" that the meeting is over and when they left, going ahead and holding a trustees meeting to select the new Director, a act that reeks of prejudice and stupidity. Perhaps both.

Only eight candidates for the top position in what is, by all accounts, an outstanding library suggest that something was amiss. Either the position was presented poorly or the search was ill conceived. The obvious lack of candidates should have been a red flag suggesting, "Something is amiss here."

Not asking for references until after the vote, an action that is absurd at best and, at worst, an indication of abject incompetence.

It all adds up to a tragic joke, the butt of which are the residents of the City of Quincy, who deserve better leadership—and the opportunity for Mayor Tom Koch to end the charade by stepping in and saying, "Let's do it right."

If We Build it Will They Come?

I may have been the only one in city hall chambers not celebrating the vote to seal the deal (Dec. 16) but this morning I'm looking on the bright side.

I still have gifts to buy and always try to shop locally. With the excitement of the season it would be nice to walk along a bustling Hancock Street on the weekend before Christmas. It will take many years for this downtown dream to be realized but I do hope it succeeds.

One area of contention reveals some old fashioned thinking that compromises the success of the project. Beautiful, natural resources like Town Brook, are assets that enhance the commercial base. What was once paved over in many communities now draws people to come and spend money. Look at the revival of Providence.

Other successful examples of smart growth featuring a river walk as a central point can be found across the Commonwealth. There is more money to be made in featuring and protecting the environment than the old ways.

Many residents now understand that much of this deal depends on people paying to park while they shop. There are many established shopping areas competing with the future downtown Quincy. Swan boats or Gondola rides would certainly attract patrons. Can we get creative with the plan and treat Town Brook like the valuable resource it could be? It belongs there and seeing it as an obstacle to progress is shortsighted. Rerouting the brook to run along a highway will not invite people to enjoy it. Instead they may discard their empties there as they cruise out of Quincy.

Creating jobs is an urgent priority and the good news is this project should put people to work. To ensure a lasting affect we can't just build it we have to make sure they come. If we're committed to this let's make sure we do it right.

Employee Benefit Cost budget of $4 million which triggered an adjustment to the General Fund revenues. Those funds will be reinstated after the city's Free Cash totals are approved by the DOR.

Councillor and Senator-Elect John Keenan said he was comfortable with the adjustments but the council will have to review the issues in the future, "This is a matter that will require scrutiny.... We've got a lot of work to do in the Spring to make sure this balances."

The future will require "some pretty deep cuts," said Keenan who is, also, Chairman of the Finance Committee, stating later, "The era of good fellowship is about to end."

"We certainly have some fiscal challenges ahead of us," said City Council President Kevin Coughlin.

According to state statute, neither City Council nor the mayor set the actual tax rate. However, both parties must approve the percentage of the local tax levy for each class of real and personal property and the residential factor.

The state's Department of Revenue (DOR) then uses all the data from the city and, actually, calculates the annual tax rate. Tax bills may not be mailed until after the DOR's verdict.

Chief Assessor Marion Fantucchio said Tuesday she has been in contact with DOR and anticipates approval of the new tax rate shortly, "We expect that we will hear from them tomorrow." The new bills will be mailed before Dec. 31.

While the tax bills for residential properties should remain steady in 2011, the second category, Commercial, Industrial and Personal Property, will change.

That rate will increase from $27.45 per $1000 to $27.85 per $1,000 this year when approved by the DOR.

City council voted after a public hearing on the tax rate prior at Monday's meeting. No one spoke at the public hearing but City Clerk Joseph Shea read a letter from Peter Forman, President and CEO, South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

"I want to reiterate my strong opposition to the unfair tax 'shift' imposed on commercial property owners," wrote Forman who also warned that the rate increase would not help with "jobs recovery."

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi noted the alternative to the higher commercial rate would be an $811 dollar increase for the average homeowner.

"It's shocking that the Chamber of Commerce would ask us to hit the average homeowner with an $800 bill." said Raymondi.

Raymondi also said the tax discussion should be scheduled earlier in the year and Puleo agreed, "This process will be bumped up in the next fiscal year."

Prior to discussing the tax rate, Fantucchio outlined the results of this year's citywide revaluations which indicate lower residential and commercial property valuations.

This year, the city's total residential value is $8,781,544,744 and the total Commercial, Industrial and Personal Property valuation is $1,834,766,236. The value of all properties has decreased in recent years during the struggle of the local, state and national economy.

Fantucchio said the city's valuations were already approved by the DOR and can be viewed on the web. These figures indicate a property's value as of Jan. 1, 2009.

Unfortunately, tax bills are calculated on the new valuations and delivered in January, 2011, according to Fantucchio.

Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest described one street in her ward where the valuations are down for 25 of the 30 homes and said some residents will be seeking abatements.

Fantucchio said residents may pick up abatement forms at City Hall, request one by telephone or print one off the city website.

All abatement requests must be received in the Assessor's office or before Feb. 1 and all postmarks must be on or before Feb. 1,.

Library Seeks Volunteers

The Thomas Crane Public Library is seeking volunteers to work with its international community members.

Train to be an English Conversation Group leader. Trainings will be held Tuesday mornings in January.

Downtown Done Deal

If successful, historic Quincy Center will make history again as the redevelopment's financing plan provides a radical twist. Under this plan, private developers must invest their cash first and the city will pay for infrastructure improvements only after the redevelopment grows new income.

Financing

While this specific proposal took more than five years of planning and over 12 months of negotiations, the real work begins now.

Both the city and the redeveloper must now secure millions in private and public funding and garner support of the plan from private investors and legislators, and environmentalists at both the state and federal levels.

Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro cited the magnitude of the city's undertaking and predicted there will be periodic bumps in the road ahead that can be solved "if we can come to the table" and iron out the differences.

Monday's votes were basically a formality affirming the unanimous approval by the council's Downtown Economic and Finance Committees on Dec. 16.

The eight sitting councillors unanimously approved all votes on the project last night and on the 16th. The ninth councillor, Ward 2's Daniel Raymondi who lives in the district, was forced to withdraw from all discussions due to a ruling by City Solicitor James Timmins.

The key motions cleared the Land Disposition Agreement (LDA) or contract between the city and the redeveloper, and a $289 million bond authorization for the city.

The councillors also approved two items related to Massachusetts General Law, Chapter 121A, the state's statute that covers the financing of redevelopment for distressed urban centers.

The amendment to Chapter 121A gives the city the power to oversee the redevelopment, rather than the state, and the city would have direct control over 121A payments

In their final votes, councillors approved a Home Rule Petition seeking approval of the amended Chapter 121A, and, also, approved Amendment 11 of the Urban Redevelopment Plan.

That amendment details Step 1, Step 2 and Step 3 of the redevelopment project as required by the mayor's team which includes Attorneys Robert Fishman and Thomas Kiley and financial advisor Sarah Woodworth.

Through this amendment, the massive project must be developed in phases. No new steps can begin until each previous step is satisfactorily completed and sufficient new income covers the city's investment.

As an example, the parking lots will be sold separately. The Hancock Lot will only be transferred after the successful redevelopment of the Ross Parking lot phase.

The project kicks off with Monday's votes and requires the redeveloper to pay $350,000 to the city on or about Jan. 11, with $100,000 of those funds a deposit on the purchase of Ross Garage.

The $250,000 balance creates a revolving fund for city consultants that will be replenished as needed by the redeveloper and cover not only the legal team, but future staff who will oversee the project development.

According to Woodworth's charts, the redeveloper will finalize the purchase of the Ross Parking Garage for $1.4 million between April and September, 2013.

At that time, the redeveloper must provide the city with $30 million for the Concourse bond, $10 million for community projects under control of the mayor and $740,000 in payments to the Affordable Housing Trust.

Council Review

During the past three months, councillors reviewed details of the proposed project, focusing mainly on the LDA which allows the sale of both the Ross Parking Garage and the Hancock Parking Lot to the redeveloper, Hancock Adams Associates, LLC, for $4.8 million.

The LDA spells out the obligations of the city and the redeveloper throughout the project, detailing the requirements of each party in each step.

For example, the city must raise the necessary funds and complete the Hancock Commons, the Cliveden Bridge and Town Brook projects before the redevelopment begins.

On the other hand, the redeveloper must line up the funding and have purchase and sale agreements in hand before the Ross Parking Garage sale is finalized.

During their review, councillors nailed down a labor agreement that requires the redeveloper to hire union labor and local labor when possible, and sought specific examples of the details in the 62-page document.

As a result, the LDA grew to 69 pages with 40 language changes that addressed many of the redeveloper's and the council's concerns.

Now, the LDA specifically states that the sidewalk skirt of the Ross Garage is included in the lot sale but, also, states that the developer must reimburse the city for a specific amount of lost parking revenues.

The Ross Garage last year netted just over $228,000 and the Hancock Parking Lot, just over $300,000. The redeveloper must reimburse the city for those funds after acquiring the lots.

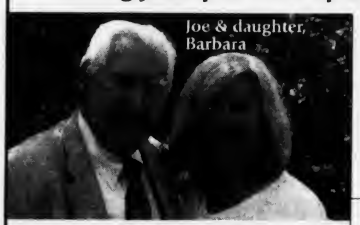
Not all the questions were answered as Gutro raised issues regarding the demolition of the Ross Garage and previous concerns regarding the day-lighting of Town Brook remain unresolved.

Finn and Coughlin both objected to the use of pre-cast concrete in construction projects, but at least one labor leader acknowledged that pre-cast concrete from Canada will likely be used.

Last week, as councillors prepared to conclude their review, Finn expressed the fears of some citizens that "This is just another shipyard."

Finn referred to failed plans to create a dynamic economic center at the Fore River Shipyard

However, Finn reasoned that this developer "has actually done something. This is just the beginning. They have to demonstrate financial viability."



In the case of the shipyard fiasco, Harrington said, "The City of Quincy became the bank. We're not acting as the bank. If they collapse, they collapse. I think this agreement protects the city. I think this is the last opportunity for the revival of our downtown."

Koch's Chief of Staff Jim Fatseas also cited the LDA's "great number of preconditions. Street-Works has to put $40 million on the table before Step 1 begins. Until that happens, the city is not obligated to take one step forward."

Coughlin noted that the Attorney General's office will review the LDA and numerous state and federal agencies must approve the plans.

However, city officials must stay alert and on top of the project, according to James Shea, the council's legal consultant who said, "This is not something you put on the shelf. You have to monitor it on a regular basis."

"Having family so close by is wonderful," says Joe.

City Planners Receive Two Awards For 'Outstanding Planning'

Mayor Thomas P. Koch and Planning Director Dennis E. Harrington announce the City of Quincy Department of Planning and Community Development recently received two "2010 Outstanding Planning" awards from the Massachusetts Chapter of the American Planning Association (APA).

The Planning Department applied for the awards in early October and were presented the awards at the APA holiday luncheon at Parris in Boston's Quincy Market. The awarded projects were chosen for their innovation, quality, transferability, implementation, and comprehensiveness.

The Planning Department has won first place awards under the categories of "Media" and "Student Project." Quincy was the only community recognized in more than one category.

The Media award was given to the documentary New Quincy Center: Past-Present-Future. Using the facilities of Quincy Access Television, the documentary was produced by Rob Stevens in the Planning and Community Development Department with assistance from Nick Verenis and Sean Glennon.

The New Quincy Center: Past-Present-Future documentary was created for the benefit of the residents of the City of Quincy. A local historian, city officials, planners, engineers, and contractors contributed their expertise to the content of the program which provided a comprehensive view on the history of Quincy Center infrastructure, its current condition, and, the steps that need to be taken to support the Street-Works redevelopment program.

Quincy Access Television will air New Quincy Center: Past-Present-Future on Channel 10 Friday, Dec. 24 at 7 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 25 and 26, at 9:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. on Channel 10.

The Student Project award was given to the Field Guide of Trees for Quincy Center Zoning Districts. The Department of Planning and Community Development undertook a Tree Census to indentify, catalogue, map, and diagnose the health of the street trees in Quincy Center. The information will play an integral part in sustainable planning for the downtown. It will be used to keep pace with development, provide a spatial framework in which to identify areas that are in need of reforestation and maintenance, and assist in making informed decisions about future plantings.

The Field Guide of Trees for Quincy Center Zoning Districts was compiled by Bachelor of Landscape Architecture student Susan Karim between July & November 2009 as part of the Boston Architectural College's concurrent academic/practice work./study curriculum. It was produced under the tutelage of Principal Planner Mary Smith, RLA and with technical assistance from Principal Planner Kristina Johnson & Assistant Planner Steve Connelly.

"I am extremely pleased with the American Planning Association's recognition of our Planning and Community Development activities," said Mayor Thomas P. Koch. "I thank Planning Director Dennis Harrington and his entire staff. These awards recognize our continued efforts to provide a better quality of life for all residents in the City of Quincy."

These APA awards represent the 14th and 15th that Quincy's Department of Planning and Community Development has won since 2004.

Holiday Gift Bags Benefit Fr. Bill's & MainSpring

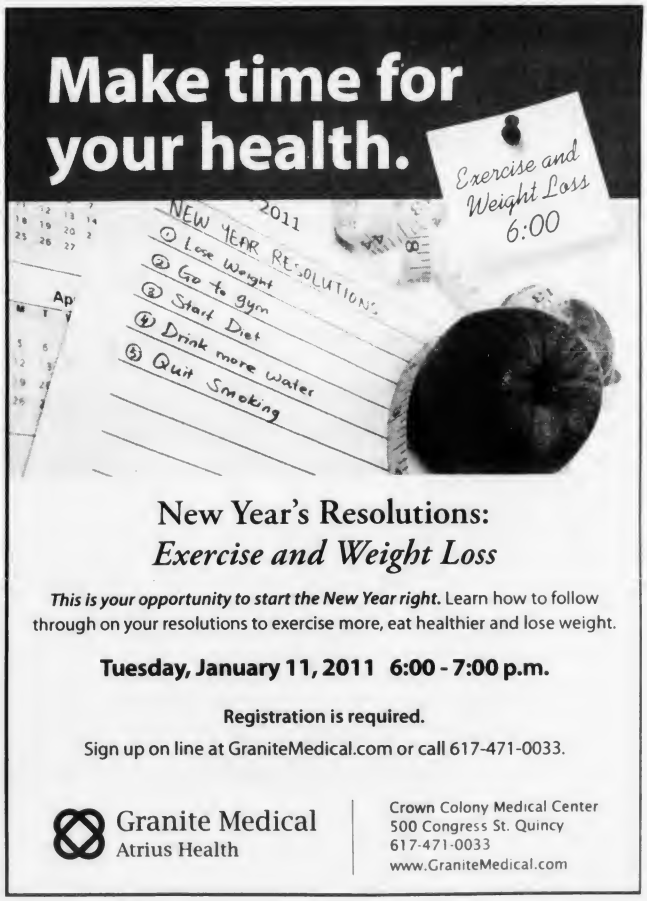
BJ's Wholesale Club in Quincy and students from the Quincy South Shore YMCA After School Enrichment Program joined forces in the spirit of giving to assemble gift bags for guests of Father Bill's & MainSpring.

Through the generosity of BJ's, hundreds of needed items such as warm hats, mittens and gloves as well as a variety of personal care items have been donated for this gift-bag project.

"BJ's in Quincy is very happy to support the important work of Father Bill's & MainSpring with this donation of essential items. We truly hope that these gifts will help guests feel more comfortable this time of year and show how many Quincy residents are thinking of them this holiday season," said Gayle Gordon, community relations specialist for BJ's Wholesale Club. "We are also most appreciative of the students from the South Shore YMCA After School Enrichment Program for helping us personalize and fill the gift bags."

For an extra festive touch, the students will personally decorate each gift bag before presenting to Father Bill's & MainSpring guests. The students filled the gift bags with the donated items last Friday, Dec. 17 at the South Shore YMCA, 79 Coddington St., Quincy

HAPPY HELPERS – Devonaire Quick, 5, Lincoln Hancock and Carlos Rodriguez, 7, Squantum, are all smiles after assisting the holiday gift bag drive.



"At the South Shore YMCA, strengthening our community is our cause. Every day, we work side by side with our neighbors to make sure that everyone has the opportunity to learn, grow and thrive. We have a shared commitment to nurture the potential of kids, fostering a sense of social responsibility all in the spirit of strengthening our community," said Laureen Browning, Executive of Youth Development for the South Shore YMCA.

Father Bill's & MainSpring President and CEO John Yazwinski noted, "It is heartwarming to see how local business and youth join hands to help those men and women in our community, many of whom are parents, who are in need of basic items, particularly in the winter months. We are so grateful to BJ's and the YMCA, who have been partners with us in serving the community, not only today, but in past years, and to the students for their community-minded service in helping our guests."

If I Could Give One Gift This Holiday Season

Fifth-grade students in Quincy's public and parochial schools were invited again this year to write the answer to one question for this special issue of The Quincy Sun.

This year's theme is: "If I Could Give One Gift This Holiday Season It Would Be..."

We enjoy sharing their young thoughts with you. Publishing their replies – from the funny to the inspiring – has become a holiday tradition that we look forward to and we are sure you do, too.

We want to thank Colleen Roberts, Director of Curriculum, for coordinating the public schools' participation and the principals and classroom teachers of those schools.

We also thank Catherine Cameron, principal of the Quincy Catholic Academy, for her assistance, too.

To all who took part, we extend warmest holiday greetings. Thank you all, most sincerely.

If I could give one gift this holiday season it would be comfort and I would give it to my friend Cindy. Her 12-year old cat died recently and I would send her a card saying how sad I was for her.

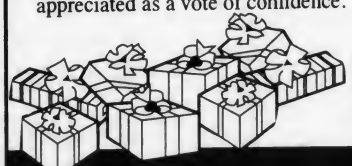
Happy Holidays To All

Jo-Ann Bragg
School Committee



Thank You from
FLAVIN & FLAVIN

Since 1925, citizens of Quincy and the surrounding cities and towns have been familiar with the Flavin & Flavin Real Estate and Insurance Company and its distinctive golden yellow real estate signs. For three generations, Flavin & Flavin has been a family-owned and family-run business.

As Flavin & Flavin celebrates its 85th holiday season, the owners and staff send a heartfelt thank you to all who have appreciated the company's attention to real estate and insurance detail and have been loyal customers and clients for many years. Flavin & Flavin looks forward to continuing long-term relationships, to serving new home sellers and buyers, and to meeting new insurance needs in the coming year.

The Flavin & Flavin Company wears two hats: real estate and insurance. Experienced, full-time Realtors take great pride in guiding home sellers and buyers through a transaction to a successful closing. On the insurance side, a knowledgeable staff has the experience and training to meet a variety of insurance needs and offers competitive discounts.

Business success is evidenced in the numerous referrals received by Flavin & Flavin from satisfied home sellers and buyers, and insurance clients. These referrals are greatly appreciated as a vote of confidence.

As 2010 comes to a close, Flavin & Flavin owners and staff are looking forward to a new year filled with good will for all. Best Wishes for a very Happy Holiday Season.

A Primer On Primers

Make Your Paint Job Look Better, Last Longer

(NAPSA)-Now that the weather's turned cooler and you're spending more time indoors, there's no better time to paint. It's one of the easiest and least expensive ways to change the look of your home. It's also a project that even the most inexperienced do-it-yourselfer can do with confidence-and with thousands of colors from which to choose, it's the perfect way to express your unique style and personality at a fraction of the cost of other home improvement projects. Yet even experienced do-it-yourselfers sometimes neglect the first and most important step in achieving the perfect paint job.

Professional painters know that the key to a beautiful paint job isn't buying the most expensive paint. They know that one coat of primer and one coat of paint will give them a better, longer-lasting paint job than two coats of paint. That's why they prime first, then paint.

Here are just some of the benefits of priming before you paint:

• Priming saves you time and money. Primers are formulated to seal the surface-and when the surface is sealed, you use less paint. No more multiple coats of paint to get an even, consistent finish if you tint with a quality primer like Zinsser Bulls Eye 1-2-3(r).

One coat of primer and one coat of paint is usually all you need for a beautiful paint job. Just ask the paint desk to tint your primer toward the color of your paint. It's that simple. And since a gallon of primer is less expensive than a gallon of paint, you'll save money, too.

• Priming makes paint colors richer. Primers hide previous colors-even the darkest blues and deepest reds-and prevent them from showing through and changing the color of your paint. Your paint colors will be more vibrant and beautiful if you prime first.

• Primers block stains. Most stains-water stains, crayon and marker, lipstick or nicotine-will bleed right through paint. This is where primers earn their reputation: They seal in stains and prevent them from ruining your paint job. New advanced-technology water-based primers such as Bulls Eye 1-2-3(r) PLUS take the guesswork out of primer selection because they seal all stains-even water stains-so you start your paint job with a clean canvas.

PRIMING MAKES paint colors richer.

• You can paint anything if you prime first. If you've ever tried to paint a slick surface like vinyl or plastic with paint alone, chances are it just didn't stick. Primers are formulated to have tenacious adhesion to all surfaces, so you can paint anything-even ceramic tile and Formica cabinets-when you use a primer as your first coat.

• Primers make your paint job last longer. Primers prevent common paint problems such as cracking, peeling and blistering and your paint will retain its original color longer, so you'll have to paint less often.

Registry Of Deeds Donates Toys For Tots

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell recently delivered to U.S. Marine Corps Reserve Sgt. Eric Morin the donations of toys received at the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds on behalf of the U.S. Marine Corps Reserve Toys for Tots Drive.

On hand to deliver the toys with Register O'Donnell were Norfolk County Commissioners John Gillis of Quincy and Peter Collins of Milton.

O'Donnell expressed his gratitude for the generosity of the Registry of Deeds employees, title examiners and fellow Norfolk County residents for contributing to the drive.

"I sincerely want to thank everyone who generously donated to the Registry's fourth annual Toys for Tots Drive. Every year people look forward to participating in our drive and we are most grateful for their contributions."

Get Your Home Ready For The New Year

(ARA) - For many, the new year means a fresh start and there is no better place to begin than inside the home. Your home is meant to last, but over time, simple wear and tear can result in inefficient systems and less-than-perfect conditions.

To keep your home looking and operating like the day you purchased it, Ace Hardware's home expert, Lou Manfredini, suggests a few easy maintenance projects that will make a big impact in the end.

Give your baseboards the protection they need

While adding a new coat of paint to your walls is always a good idea when maintaining your home, Manfredini also recommends you freshen up your baseboards, which often see the most wear and tear. Wash them down using a pine-based cleaner, a little bit of warm water and a sponge to remove dirt and grime. Then touch up your baseboards with paint to protect them and keep them looking brand new. Paint like Ace's Cabinet, Door and Trim Enamel is washable and scratch resistant so it can withstand any busy home.

Save thousands with a little bit of caulk

Over time the excessive use of a bathtub or shower can lead to cracks in your grout and caulking. These cracks are not only unsightly, but can cause greater leakage problems costing you thousands of dollars if not fixed immediately.

The good news is this problem can be resolved easily and inexpensively. Manfredini recommends using silicone-based caulk, which ensures a fast-drying, smooth surface and creates a strong seal to prevent leakage. Start by peeling away the old caulk and making sure the surface is completely dry before re-applying. One of his favorites is G.E's Silicone II Kitchen & Bath Caulk.

Become your own professional carpet cleaner

With heavy traffic, household carpeting takes a beating almost daily, collecting dirt, grime, outdoor particles and plenty of dust. Not only are these items harmful to your health, they will wear down your carpeting ... and do so quickly. While its good practice to vacuum on a weekly basis, cleaning your carpeting every 90 to 120 days will give you a cleaner home and prolong the life of your carpeting. Hiring a professional can be expensive, so Manfredini suggests you stop by your local hardware store to rent a carpet cleaning system for a fraction of the cost of having the work done professionally.

Make sure the air you breathe is the best

Anyone with allergies knows that air quality is very important. This applies inside the home as much as outside.

A great way to prevent bad air circulating in your home - and make sure your equipment is running efficiently - is by replacing the air filters in your forced-air furnace. Manfredini recommends using pleated filters because they do a better job of filtering internal air. These filters are inexpensive and take about five minutes to replace.

Keep your gutters free of clutter

Clearing your gutters is the link to a dry home and it's important to clean them out at least twice a year. There are a number of options on the market that make the job easier. The Smart Screen 5 inch Aluminum Gutter Screen is a good option because it attaches to the front of the gutter, providing a permanent barrier to keep leaves, pine needles, debris, ice and snow from clogging. Another leaf blocking option is a flexible foam insert that blocks leaves and debris.

For more home maintenance projects and tips, visit www.acehardware.com or stop by your neighborhood Ace Hardware store.

Cleaning Mold Off Stucco

Q: My South Florida house has a white stucco exterior that's in good condition, with no cracks or holes. But the base of the walls has greenish-brown streaks that I'm not sure is mold or just left by dirt and leaves (the sand splashes up during heavy rainstorms). How can I remove this? – Diego S., Deerfield Beach, Fla.

A: Some do-it-yourself instructions will tell you to use a pressure washer to clean a home's exterior, but avoid doing this with stucco or similar masonry unless you're sure the material won't crumble under a high pressure stream.

Instead, test wash a section of the wall. Rinse with a garden hose (you can use a sprayer attachment to assist) and then scrub with a nylon brush dipped in a mixture of 2 gallons warm water and 1/2 cup liquid dish soap. You can add a 1/2 cup of Borax to this if you like, but wear rubber gloves if you touch the solution at this point. Rinse the section to see if this simple wash helps.

If this doesn't work, trisodium phosphate (available at home-improvement stores near the paint section) can be tried. TSP is stronger than common household cleaners.

Once you've found a cleaning solution that works well to remove the streaks, scrub the walls starting at the top and working your way down. Rinse frequently so the cleaning solution doesn't dry on the wall.

When complete, leave the stucco alone to dry thoroughly. This can take a few days, so avoid doing any painting or stucco repairs until then.

HOME TIP: Small cracks or chips in exterior stucco can be patched using flexible concrete caulk; just overfill the crack and smooth away excess -- feathering the edges out -- let dry and paint to match.

Defeated B-R, 52-49, On Sunday Night

Presidents Finding Their Identity On The Court

By SEAN BRENNAN

It wasn't the prettiest of victories, Sunday's 52-49 decision over non-league opponent Bridgewater-Raynham HS in the final game of the 2010 Bridgewater State Holiday Jam, but, after dropping the first two games of the season against North Quincy and Pembroke, the Quincy Presidents and head coach David Parry will take it.

Quincy didn't play a perfect game. They just played well enough to get of the snide, a potential momentum builder for a team that has high expectations this season.

"We are still trying to find our identity," said Parry on Monday. "The goal is to become a multi-dimensional team. We are going to have to find some inside strength to give our outside guys some space to work with. To be honest in our first two games against North Quincy and Pembroke we relied too much on our outside game as was evident by the lack of free throws we had (14).

"But against B-R we started taking advantage of our play inside and that allowed us to have some balanced scoring. It was a sloppy game, but it was good to get a win, so I have to focus on the positive and hopefully this victory gives us some confidence moving forward."

The Presidents received solid performances from three of its more experienced players against B-R. Senior co-captains point guard Brian Malger and forward Kevin McDonagh each finished with 14 points as did senior forward Luke McDonough.

"Both teams played well defensively," added Parry. "Our defense forced them into some turnovers (31) and they did the same to us. In those first two games we played well in the first half and not so well in the second half, so it was good to see us pull it out at the end.

"We were down by four points with three minutes left and didn't give up. This team is learning how to win, which is good to see."

Although the Presidents picked up their first victory of the year, the win will not count towards their overall win total. The game, one of 22 for Quincy, was an exclusionary game, meaning that victory does not count towards the number of wins needed to advance to the state tournament next year.

Team Preview

As was evident in the Bridgewater-Raynham game, Quincy, this season, is going to rely on a number of seniors, both offensively and defensively on the parquet.

Malger, McDonagh and McDonough head a senior class, which also includes forwards Oliver O'Sullivan, Chuck Butler and Mario Cace and guards David Nahn and Ryan Schultz.

"With players like Malger and Kevin McDonagh we have guys who lead by example," said Parry. "There are times I wish that they were more vocal, and we are working on that, but they have been here before and know what it takes to win games.

"Malger is going to be the key. We are going to need him to penetrate more often. That will help open up some shooting lanes on the outside and give our inside players room to move."

Oliver O'Sullivan, a sweet shooting 6'3" forward, is an offensive highlight reel. His ability to spread defenses should open up valuable space for both the guards and forwards to find their rhythm. O'Sullivan dropped 25 points on North Quincy HS in a 53-52 defeat in the season opener.

"He is one of the more talented players on this team," Parry said. "He can shoot from anywhere on the court."

Cace, Nahn, Butler, and Schultz should also see considerable time on the court this winter for Quincy.

The junior class is in good hands as well. Forward Zerick Fadairo is one player to watch for as the season progresses. He along with Luke McDonough gives the Presidents a formidable presence down low. Factor in forwards Reggie Cesar and guards Alex Bottari and Jalen Green and sophomore guard Derrick Stone and Quincy has an athletic underclassmen core that should provide solid minutes.

"I have a lot of young guys who are still learning what it takes to play at the varsity level," said Parry. "The games are quicker, but I can already see that they are adjusting to the faster pace."

Through three games, the Presidents have an official record of 0-2, with both losses coming against Patriot League foes (North Quincy, Pembroke). It will not get any easier playing, again this year, in the Patriot League's Fisher Division.

"The league is extremely balanced," Parry noted. "I would consider Pembroke and Scituate to be the top teams in our division. Our schedule doesn't get any easier, but I always tell the kids, the season is a marathon and not a sprint."

Quincy hosted Hanover HS on Tuesday night.

John Adams Basketball Tournament

Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, December 28-29, QHS will play host to the John Adams Basketball Tournament in the newly rededicated Munroe MacLean Gymnasium.

This tourney features Quincy, North Quincy, Weymouth, and Braintree High Schools.

The Presidents drew Weymouth HS in the opening round while the Red Raiders will face Braintree.

The Championship Game is set for 7 p.m. on Dec. 29, with games starting at 7 p.m. on Dec. 28.

SENIOR LUKE McDONOUGH (#25) is one of eight seniors on the 2010 Presidents roster who will be looked upon to provide minutes this season. Quincy defeated Bridgewater-Raynham, 52-49, on Sunday night.

QRD Announces School Vacation Pool Schedule

The Quincy Recreation Department announced this week a special schedule, including daytime swimming, at the Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool during the upcoming school vacation period.

In addition to the regular night program of Recreational Swimming, the QRD will supervise Recreational Swimming from 1-3 p.m. on Tuesday, Dec. 28, Wed., Dec. 29, and Thursday, Dec. 30.

Announcing the program, Recreation Director Barry J. Welch stated that this additional six hours of Recreational Swimming is open to youth, family, adults and all children under six. An adult must accompany non-swimmers in the pool. Adults may also take advantage of the daytime program however lap lanes usually used in adult swims will not be in place.

Those participants who have pool cards may utilize these existing cards. Others may purchase guest memberships at the pool, which cost $5 per adult and $2 per child.

Although the holiday week will modify the regular weekly schedule, the Recreational Swimming Program will continue with its ongoing and regular schedule of programs conducted weeknights on Tuesday, Dec. 28, Wed., Dec. 29, and Thursday, Dec. 30.

The schedule is as follows:

6-6:50 p.m., Family Swim; 7-7:45, Senior Swim, and 7:55-8:45, Adult Swim.

Membership information and pool memberships can be obtained in the lower lobby of the Water Street entrance to the pool while Recreational Swimming Programs are scheduled. A variety of memberships from family, youth, senior and adult are available. All swims are supervised by the QRD lifeguards who are certified according to the standards of the American National Red Cross.

Additional information and the full pool schedule are available by the QRD office at 617-376-1394 or online at QuincyRec.com.

HEADACHES STEMMING FROM THE NECK

The term "cerviogenic headache" refers to headaches with pain that originates in the cervical spine, neck, and upper shoulders. In a large number of cases, headaches with these origins result from whiplash or neck injury or muscle trauma that is due to prolonged poor posture or severe stress. Once this condition is properly diagnosed, there is research to show that chiropractic treatment may help relieve the pain. According to one study that compared spinal manipulation with light massage, the former was more effective than the latter in relieving cerviogenic headaches. With this study in mind, patients experiencing chronic headaches may want to consider a visit to the chiropractor for proper diagnosis and treatment.

Patients seeking treatment for headaches with FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC are assured of receiving only the finest quality care through the use of modern chiropractic equipment and technology. We're located at the 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy, where we have a genuine concern for your well-being! Call us at 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. If you're suffering from headaches, try a safe, effective alternative: chiropractic care! We have the services you require. We offer computerized spinal scans. We are able to adjust patients sitting, standing, or lying down to accommodate any level of discomfort. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. There are over 20 muscles in the neck that can refer pain to the head.

QRD Announces Skating Registration

The Quincy Recreation Department announced this week that they will conduct their popular low-cost nine-week program of Ice Skating Lessons with two classes on Wednesday afternoons at the Quincy Youth Arena.

This traditional Learn-to-Skate Program has for more than 30 years offered boys and girls age six through 14 the opportunity to learn the fundamentals of skating in a low-cost program with quality instruction.

Walk-in registration will take place at the main office of the QRD, One Merrymount Parkway, beginning at 9 a.m. on Dec. 23 and will continue on weekdays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. as long as openings exist. Online registration may be done on QuincyRec.com.

According to Barry J. Welch, Director of Recreation, the program will have two separate classes beginning at 3:10 and 4:05 p.m. on Wednesdays starting Jan.5, 2011. Instruction will, again, be under the supervision of Mrs. Anne Eagles, a United States Figure Skating Association Professional, and will utilize the basic program of instruction designed by the USFA. Both classes offer the same levels of instruction and run for eight weeks.

The cost of the program is $76 for the nine-week session, which includes instruction and ice time; participants need to provide their own skates, which may be figure, or hockey skates with one blade.

Registration is done on a first-come-first-serve basis. Additional information may be obtained by calling the QRD at 617-376-1394 or online at QuincyRec.com.

QHS Hockey Delivers First Win Of The Season

By JOE REARDON

Talk about your satisfying weekends.

On Friday night, Quincy High hockey coach Tim Lewis' wife, Leigh, gave birth to their first child at Saint Elizabeth's Hospital, a daughter they named Gabriella Therese.

Landmark moment number two came the next day when Lewis picked up his first win behind the bench as the Presidents defeated a tough Hanover squad 2-0 at Hobomock Arena. The tough win came after Quincy finished with a 3-3 tie in its season opener on Dec. 15 against Pembroke.

After the final horn sounded against Hanover, junior Co-Captain John O'Callaghan made it a point to scoop up the puck after defeating the Indians and give it to Lewis, to some day give to his daughter.

A script for the weekend couldn't have been written better.

"They were excited for me," said Lewis. "It was very classy on their part."

The Presidents had all they could handle in trying to slow down Hanover's speedy forwards on Saturday. Quincy had little luck keeping the Indians out of their zone, but Hanover couldn't get the best of the guy between the posts.

Senior goaltender Robby Lawton proved to be the difference in the contest. Law-

North Quincy Girls Track Off To A Running Start

By JOE REARDON

Geoff Hennessy has had challenges over the years coaching cross country and track, and has welcomed the opportunities passionately.

The tests just keep on coming for Hennessy after losing a dozen girls with the recent split of the Quincy/North Quincy indoor track team – and with it, the chance for North Quincy to mount a tough challenge against the deep competition in the Patriot League. Hennessy knows it doesn't take a genius to figure out the elite teams in the league.

"It's Pembroke and Whitman-Hanson," said Hennessy. "They're the two every year. It's always the same."

What the Red Raiders will be focusing on this winter are the individual performances and the chance for the more experienced athletes to make their mark at the state level.

"We want to get more kids and get kids better," said Hennessy. "We want to show kids how to get better. We're hoping we can kick it up."

North Quincy isn't without talent this go around. Senior Erica Brady is the most experienced of the distance runners and can compete at a high level from the 1,000-meter run and up. She's coming off a cross country season where she placed a very formidable 32nd against a strong field in the Div. 1 EMass Championships. Last winter she sprinted to a 14th-place finish in the 2 mile at the Div. 1 EMass meet.

Freshman Carolyn Schwartz has already cleared 4-7 in the high jump this winter and also has a good mix of strength and speed to be competitive in the 600. Vanessa Bolden is quickly establishing herself as the team's best shot-putter. Lia Bonoli should gel nicely with Schwartz in the 600, giving North Quincy an added punch.

Rose Bennett is probably the most versatile athlete on the squad, competing in the high jump, long jump and 55-meter hurdles on the infield.

Hennessy is very happy with what he believes to be a strong coaching staff on board this winter. Tony Green will be working with the sprinters while Casey Deaguero, a former standout hurdler at Hanover High, is starting her second season as an indoor track assistant.

Hennessy also has former Quincy High miler Nicole Kasanoff working several different events.

Hancock Strikers Soccer Team Finished Successful Season

The Hancock Striker Under-13-14 girls' soccer team, anchored by a handful of Quincy residents, recently finished a successful inaugural season. The team went undefeated in their regular MASC Division posting a record of 8-0-1.

The Strikers also placed first in the 1st Division of the U14 Winchester Veterans Day Tournament with a record of 3-0-1.

The team was strong in goal with keepers Angela McDonald and Natalie O'Donovan sharing duties. This duo allowed four goals and recorded five shutouts in nine games; both players also contributed in the field playing center forward and right forward.

Sweeper Abigail Roane whose intelligence and maturity, as well as skill, allowed the coaching staff to focus on offense, led the defense. In front of her was stopper Pramila Murray and the left and right flanks were manned by Sally Loschiavo and Tori Deems.

The Strikers' midfield included center midfielders Kayla McKenney and Kelly Barros and the outside right midfielder was Delia Byrne and the team's left midfielder was Ariana Paulo.

Haley Vradenburg and Shelby Sprague shared the responsibility of playing both left forward and the outside midfield positions. Sprague was the second leading scorer on the Strikers. At the right forward position were Abigail O'Neil and Alison Coleman; O'Neil scored the first ever goal for the Hancock Strikers U14 team. Coleman shared duties with center forward Ciara Forde; Forde led the team in scoring, a resume which included a hat trick (three goals) against cross-town rival AFC.

In the Winchester Veterans Day Tournament, the Strikers were without the services of Barros, McDonald and O'Donovan, but the team was fortunate enough to have four guest players join the team for this tournament. Goalkeeper Mackenzie Palma played well in goal allowing only three scores in four games and recorded a shutout. Bridget Hobin and Jordan Bailey, who train with the Strikers contributed as well and center midfielder Marissa McGue controlled the midfield for the team and created opportunities for the forwards; McGue also scored two goals in the tournament, both game winners.

QRD Gym Programs For School Vacation Week

The Quincy Recreation Department will conduct an expanded Recreation Program of activities utilizing school gymnasiums for the upcoming school vacation period.

The QRD will supervise neighborhood school gymnasiums in nine locations for a free program for boys and girls age eight through high school.

"This traditional open gym program will be supervised by members of the Recreation staff who normally supervise our ongoing After School and Saturday Recreational Programs," said Barry J. Welch, Director of Recreation. "With many working parents we feel that these programs are both practical and provide positive use of leisure time by the participants."

The program will be conducted on Monday, Dec. 27, Tuesday, Dec. 28, Wed., Dec. 29, and Thursday, Dec. 30 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. The core of the schedule on these days is from 9-11 a.m. for boys/girls age eight through Grade 5 and from 11 a.m. until 1 p.m. for those in middle and high school Grades 6-12.

On Friday, Dec. 31, the program will be from 9-11:30 a.m. with elementary age from 9-10:30 a.m. and middle and high school from 10:30-11:30 a.m.

There may be slight changes in the core schedule at each location to accommodate different enrollment at the nine locations.

The school gym locations are as follows: Atherton Hough, Beechwood Knoll, Merrymount, Bernazzani, Atlantic, Squantum, Montclair, Snug Harbor, and Point Webster.

Participants must be Quincy residents and may attend the location of their choice. Registration will be done at the program and youth who have not previously attended the Quincy Recreation Department's After School and Saturday program are invited to attend.

A variety of gym games and activities from basketball, floor hockey, dodge ball and gym games will be played. Participants are requested to wear sneakers for these activities. In all, over 140 hours of programming in the gyms will be offered on the expanded day schedule.

Participants should also check at each location for the times and days of the continuing night programs. The Night Gym schedules will be modified die to the school vacation week and will be announced at each location.

Additional information is available at 617-376-1394 or online at QuincyRec.com.

Because of the holidays there will of course be no regular programs on Sat., Dec. 25, 2010 and Sat., Jan. 1, 2011.

HS Holiday Tournaments Set For Next Week

By SEAN BRENNAN

For the student-athletes of Quincy and North Quincy, the forthcoming Christmas break brings with it the opportunity to showcase their talents in annual holiday tournaments.

A staple of the high school scene in Massachusetts, the tournaments presents an early season playoff atmosphere, which is the case for girls and boys basketball, boys' hockey and wrestling. Beginning the Sunday after Christmas, December 26, through December 30, members of the Red Raiders and Presidents will be playing for holiday bragging rights.

SENIOR CAPTAIN DEREK MURPHY (#15) is one of nine seniors on first-year coach Tim Lewis' Quincy Presidents boys hockey team. Quincy opened the season with 3-3 tie against Pembroke HS on Dec. 15 and earned their first win of the season last Saturday with a 2-0 victory over Hanover HS. QHS will play against North Quincy this Sunday at 8:15 p.m. at the Quincy Youth Arena as part of the annual Quincy Youth Christmas Tournament.

ton turned away 43 Indian shots while Quincy, which was productive on offense with 36 shots on net themselves, got goals from senior captain Derek Murphy and senior forward Brendan Gibbons. They were able to escape with the victory.

Lewis lauded his white-hot goaltender that frustrated Hanover the entire game. "He's done everything we've asked from him and more," Lewis said.

Lawton held tough in the gritty tie against the Titans earlier in the week, rallying to put up two goals in the final two minutes to pick up a point in the standings.

Pembroke led 3-1 heading into the final two minutes - the lone tally coming from senior forward Nick Scibilio – before a ferocious surge of offense garnered the Presidents the tie.

Lewis called a timeout with just over two minutes left in the game to draw up a play. When play resumed it took Murphy just 15 seconds to pull the Presidents within one, 3-2. With a minute ago Murphy struck again, snapping home a goal for the Presidents, stunning both the Titans and their fans, 3-3.

Lewis lauded the play of Quincy's Matt Davis in the defensive zone. The freshman defenseman has been playing like a veteran so far and caught the attention of Lewis almost immediately this winter.

"He's been playing exceptional hockey, as if he's an upperclassman," said Lewis. "He's a staple on the blue line. We knew the numbers coming in and we have a lot of young players."

Lewis is pleased with the Presidents' start, but knows Quincy won't be able to allow as many shots on goal in its next tilt. Quincy faces its stiffest test of the season so far, taking on defending Div. 2 State champion Canton in a nonleague contest.

"We have to play better defense against them," Lewis bluntly said. "If we allow 43 shots, that's too much to ask of our goaltender."

Lewis is pleased with the way the team has "bought in" to his style of coaching, which includes smothering the blue line on power plays and aggressive fore checking. The captains have added responsibility as well.

"I ask for a little bit more accountability from the captains and seniors," he said. "We've already surprised a few people and I think we're going to surprise some more."

The Presidents are plenty deep throughout with forwards Peter Juinta, Scibilio, Gibbons, Chris Connelly, Danny Higgins, Myles Riddle, Shawn Grady, Murphy, John Jones, Chris Andrews, Mike Gendreau and Mike Pugsley.

Behind Lawton, the Presidents have more than serviceable goaltending in Justin Keenan and Matt Capabianco. On defense, Quincy has a strong crew with Connor Quinn, Matt Kozlowski, John McNulty, Matt Davis, Bobby Kozlowski and O'Callaghan.

Quincy Youth Arena. Quincy and North Quincy, along with King Philip and Milton High School will be battling for the tournament title. The Red Raiders and the Presidents are set to meet for the first time this season on Sunday at 8:15 p.m. at the QYA; Milton and King Philip open the tournament at 6:40 p.m.

The consolation game will be held Monday at 6:40 p.m. followed by the championship game at 8:15 p.m.

Abigail Adams Basketball Tournament

Being held at Weymouth High School, the Abigail Adams Basketball Tournament will pit Quincy, North Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth against one another for Tri-Town basketball supremacy.

The tournament tips-off on Tuesday, Dec. 28 with games being held at 5 p.m. and 7 p.m. The next day, Wed., Dec. 29, the consolation game will be played at 5 p.m. followed by the championship game at 7 p.m.

Weymouth High School is located at One Wildcat Way (off of Pleasant Street) in South Weymouth.

John Adams Basketball Tournament

The newly rededicated Munroe MacLean Gymnasium at Quincy High School will be the venue for the annual John Adams Basketball Tournament.

Quincy, North Quincy, Weymouth and Braintree are set to compete for the holiday title with games beginning on Tuesday, Dec. 28 at 5 p.m. and 7 p.m. The tourney's consolation game will be played at 5 p.m. on Wed., Dec. 29 followed with the championship game at 7 p.m.

The Presidents drew Weymouth in the opening round leaving North Quincy to match up against Braintree.

QHS Wrestling

The grapplers of Quincy High School will be competing in a Quad-Meet along with Everett, Milton and Stoughton on Thursday, Dec. 30 at 10 a.m. at QHS.

Q/NQ Girls Earn Victory Over Hingham; Boys Fall

The Quincy/North Quincy girls swimming and diving team opened the 2010-2011 season with a upset victory over Hingham High School on Dec. 16 at the Lincoln Hancock Community Pool.

Q/NQ (1-0) won the first nine events and ten of 12 overall to earn the 90-85 decision.

Three Q/NQ swimmers including senior captain Kendra Johnston, freshman McKayla Johnston and sophomore Kat O'Connor each notched a pair of individual victories while contributing to two more relay wins.

Kendra Johnston won the 200 Individual Medley with a time of 2:24.81, a time that bettered her own school record by nearly a second, then cruised to a first-place finish in the 100-yard breaststroke (1:20.24).

Her sister, McKayla Johnston, took top honors in the 200-yard freestyle with a time of 2:09.53 and won the 100-yard butterfly event in a time of 1:08.65, while O'Connor touched the wall first in the 50-yard freestyle (27.44) and the 100-yard freestyle (1:00.78), respectively.

Junior captain, defending Patriot League champion and all-state diver Taryn Urbanus' six-dive effort of 249.971 established a new school (program) record. She recorded scores of 6.5 or higher in four of her six dives while freshman Olivia Goldson won the 500-yard freestyle event with a time of 6:31.00 and then finished in second place in the 100-yard backstroke, clocking a time of 1:13.00.

The girls program was scheduled to swim and dive against Norwell High School on Tuesday at the Lincoln Hancock Community Pool.

Q/NQ Boys Swimming-Diving

Quincy-North Quincy (0-1) dropped its season opener to Hingham High School, 91-63, on Dec. 16 at the Lincoln Hancock Community Pool.

In the 200-yard Individual Medley event, freshman Elio Daci made up two body lengths in the final 25 yards to finish third, just missing second place, with a time of 2:41.82. Daci, a newcomer to the program, won his next event, the 500-yard freestyle event, in a time of 6:12.28.

Senior captain James Lee and sophomores Emmitt Harrow and Cyril Caparanga finished third, fourth and fifth in the 50-yard freestyle event with times of 28.60, 28.97, and 31.84, respectively.

A Job Well Done

On Monday, Dec. 11, at approximately 2:40 a.m., Officer Cassidy and his K-9 partner, Khiya, were on routine patrol on Bunker Hill Lane at Wampatuck Road when he observed 3 males standing in the middle of the street. This section of Bunker Hill Lane is in a secluded wooded area abutting the Blue Hills Reservation and begins a residential neighborhood.

LT. DAN MINTON

The officer observed the three males from about 40 yards away, as they peered into a bag. The three males then looked up and spotted the officer. One male suspect, wearing a black ski mask and dark clothing, fled into the woods in one direction while the other two suspects, wearing dark hooded sweatshirts fled into the woods in a different direction. Officer Cassidy was aware of the large number of motor vehicle breaks reported in the City and suspected that this crime could be occurring. The officer pulled his cruiser to the area where the parties fled into the woods and exited, then announced his presence as a Quincy Police Officer, ordering the suspects to return. Hearing the suspects fleeing deeper into the woods, Officer Cassidy, with his K-9 partner, walked into the woods, in the location where the two suspects fled, and yelled out that he was coming in with the dog.

As the officer entered the woods, he could hear the crushing of leaves and brush getting distant. With his K-9 partner attached to a 6 foot lead, the officer began his search. Once in the woods, Khiya picked up a scent and began to track. She led Officer Cassidy through some brush and quickly turned behind a large tree, making contact with one suspect. Khiya made contact with the suspect's left calf area and released him as he quickly stated, "I'm coming out - keep the dog away!" Officer John McGovern, who arrived moments earlier, led the suspect out of the woods and into a cruiser.

Officer Cassidy returned to the cruiser and asked the suspect why he ran away and he stated, "I don't know." A check of the area where the suspect was located uncovered a backpack on the ground. The bag was heavy and appeared to be a large amount of change. When asked if the backpack belonged to him, the suspect stated that it wasn't his and that he found it on Furnace Brook Parkway. Inside the backpack was a GPS system and a camera. Officer Cassidy gave the suspect his Miranda rights, then asked the suspect exactly where he found the backpack.

The suspect could not provide an answer, and when asked the names of the other suspects, he gave one full name and was unsure of the other. The suspect would not answer when asked if he broke into any cars in the area other than saying that he has a relative on the Pembroke Police Department. Officer Cassidy turned the GPS system on and then went to the home address on Furnace Brook Parkway, less than a 1/4 mile away.

The officer found a car in the driveway that was unlocked, with the glove compartment and center console open. After waking the resident, she confirmed that she parked her vehicle in the driveway earlier in the evening, with the doors locked. The victim said she owns a Garmin GPS and a backpack. These items were shown to her and she confirmed that they were hers. She also stated that inside the backpack were numerous cell phone chargers. She opened the backpack compartment and showed the Officers these items. The victim also said that she was missing loose change, which was found in the backpack. Other electronic items were found in the backpack, along with a gift card. A search of the area did not yield any other victims of car breaks at that time.

A green and black bicycle was found approximately 30 yards into the woods off of Bunker Hill Lane, covered with leaves. The suspect, a 17 year old Quincy resident, was placed under arrest and charged with "Breaking and Entering into M/V during nighttime with Intent to Commit a Felony and Receiving Stolen Property."

Nice Work!

CAR BREAKS UP EVERYWHERE!

In this case, although the victim states her vehicle was locked, in almost all breaks into passenger vehicles in Quincy, the vehicles are left unlocked. Always lock your car and remove valuables from plain view.

LATEST SCAM "MODELING": the victim, a 28 year old female, received an email offering her a "modeling shoot". The instructions were to cash a $1,700 check sent to her via UPS and then send $1,300 via Western Union to a female in North Carolina. She was told in the email that the money was needed to buy supplies. The victim sent the money and as usual, a few days later she learned that the check she cashed was bogus! So, now she is out $1,300!

Celebration In The Absence Of A Priest At First Church Of Squantum

Star Of Sea Faith Community To Hold Christmas Eve Liturgy

Friends of Star of the Sea co-Chairs Sean Glennon and Maureen Mazrimas announce a Catholic liturgy will be held at 4 p.m. on Christmas Eve Friday at the First Church of Squantum, 164 Bellevue Rd., Quincy.

The liturgy to be held is called a "Celebration in the Absence of a Priest" and has been approved by the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops (USCCB) and the Vatican for use in American dioceses.

The liturgy will include communion, using hosts consecrated by a Roman Catholic priest in good standing in the Archdiocese of Boston.

"As the number of available priests has declined, the celebration of Mass is becoming less and less available in some parishes and dioceses," said Glennon, referring to information obtained from the USCCB website regarding this particular form of liturgy. "Celebrations in the Absence of a Priest addresses this growing reality by providing the appropriate ritual to be used in the celebrating community."

The Celebrations in the Absence of a Priest guidance states, "For their part, it is the right of the lay faithful, barring a case of real impossibility, that no priest should ever refuse to celebrate Mass for the people or to have it celebrated by another priest if the people otherwise would be able to satisfy the obligation of participating at Mass on Sunday or the other days of precept."

"Having been denied the opportunity to celebrate Mass in our own church," said Glennon, "the use of the Celebration in the Absence of a Priest liturgy is a natural and perfect fit for us."

Glennon says the guidelines for the service to be held encourage the faith communities that use this liturgy to think of themselves not as a community without a priest, but rather, as an "assembly in expectation of a priest."

"The use of this liturgy is not a permanent fix, nor can it be called a Mass," said Glennon. "However, this liturgy does serve as a substitute for Mass on an interim basis, according to guidance from the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops."

Glennon, the former Director of Music Ministry at Star of the Sea, said she is very excited about the upcoming liturgy because it will be the first time in seven years that the parish's former children's choir will be involved in a Christmas liturgy in Squantum.

The Friends warmly welcome and strongly encourage every former children's choir member and any kids in the third grade or higher to join the choir for the celebration. A rehearsal will be held at 3 p.m., followed by carols to begin at 3:45 p.m.

The co-Chairs say that a collection will be taken to help support the efforts of the Friends of Star of the Sea with their ongoing Canonical appeals. A related fundraising campaign began about one week ago.

"I wish to thank our members for their great generosity in the past week," said Mazrimas. "Not only did we raise about half of what is needed for our appeals in just a week, but we were able to help families through the Interfaith Social Services 'adopt a family' program."

Mazrimas says this is what the season is all about, "giving back, and sharing with those in need. We are living the message to love one another, and to 'feed the hungry, clothe the naked, and shelter the homeless.'"

Interment was in Cedar Grove Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Dolan Funeral Home.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

The season of Christmas is sacred and is observed by Christians all over the world as commemorating the coming of the King. It is then that we devote ourselves to the joys of our friendships and to the contemplation of spiritual things. Our hearts our mellowed, our spirits are lifted, and our good will is broadened. It is the season of giving, giving not only to our loved ones but also to others who are less fortunate than we.

The message of New Year's Day is, "Think of the passing of time. The message of Easter is, "Think of immortality." The message of Thanksgiving is, "Think of your blessings." But the message of Christmas is "Think of others."

Generally, at no other time during the year are we so generous towards others as during the Christmas season. Streets are crowded with package-laden shoppers who have been spending their time and money on gifts for others. . . Yet it is possible to have Christmas all around us and still not share it with heart and mind.

When God measures a man, He puts the measuring tape around his heart. As we wrap our gifts this year, let us make sure that we put something of ourselves into each one.

Christmas joy springs from the loving and generous heart.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Handle a potentially awkward situation by warming up your confidence reserves and letting it radiate freely. Also, expect an old friend to contact you.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It's not too early for the practical Bovine to begin planning possible changes for 2011. A recent contact can offer some interesting insights.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A request for an unusual favor should be carefully checked out. Also check the motives behind it. Your generosity should be respected, not exploited.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Party time beckons, but for some Moon Children, so do some workplace challenges. Deal with the second first, then you'll be free to enjoy the fun time.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A warm response to an earlier request might be a positive indicator of what's ahead. Meanwhile, Cupid could pay a surprise visit to single Leos looking for love.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) How you respond to a proposed change in a project could affect your situation. Be prepared to show how well you would be able to deal with it.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) The revelation of a secret could cause some changes in how to deal with a workplace matter. It very likely also validates a position you have long held.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) An attempt to get too personal could upset the very private Scorpio. Make it clear that there's a line no one crosses without your permission.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) The savvy Sagittarian might be able to keep a family disagreement from spilling over by getting everyone involved to talk things out.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Be careful not to push people too hard to meet your ideas of what the holiday weekend's preparations should be. Best to make it a cooperative, not a coerced, effort.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) An unexpected request could make you rethink a position you've had for a long time. Meanwhile, plan a family get-together for the weekend.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Someone might find that it was a fluke to try to use your sympathetic nature to get you to accept a situation you're not comfortable with. Good for you.

BORN THIS WEEK: You like challenges that are both mental and physical, and you enjoy always beating your personal best.

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN

"Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful vine, splendor of heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. Oh, Star of the Sea, help me and show me, herein you are my Mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (three times). Holy Mother, I place this cause in your hands (three times). Say this prayer 3 consecutive days, and then you must publish and it will be granted to you. S.M. 12/23

ST. JUDE NOVENA

May the Sacred heart of Jesus be adored, glorified, loved and praised throughout the world now and forever. Sacred Heart of Jesus pray for us. St. Jude worker of miracles pray for us. St. Anthony, protector and wonder worker, pray for us. Say this prayer nine times a day. By the eighth day your prayer will be answered. It has never been known to fail. Publication must be promised. The Blizzard Of 2010: The Beauty

THE 13.5 INCHES of snow that fell in Quincy during the Blizzard of 2010 Sunday and Monday made a pretty postcard scene at City Hall and McIntyre Mall. While Frosty the Snowman looks at home, the snow-covered bronze statue of John Adams (foreground) appears out of place.

Floods Force 30 Evacuations; 13.5 Inches Of Snow Fall; Cost Estimated At $400,000

Blizzard Hits Hard

By JOE REARDON and LAURA GRIFFIN

The Blizzard of 2010 hammered the city earlier this week with 13.5 inches of snow whipped by 50 to 60 mph winds and tidal surge Monday that swept over seawalls onto several major roadways and into coastal homes.

As the ocean surged, the Quincy Fire Department evacuated about 30 persons from Merrymount and Post Island Road between 2 a.m. and 4 a.m. Monday morning.

Fire Department Captain Richard Bryan said the flooding was so severe that

An ambitious project to revive Quincy Center back to the thriving heart and soul of the city it once was, was the story of 2010 and could be in the years to come as the revitalization takes shape.

The $1.3 billion makeover of the center is expected to create 4,000 construction jobs and ultimately provide millions of dollars in tax revenue for the city, returning it to its hey-day when it was known as "Shoppers City U.S.A."

Two big steps in the revitalization took shape when the Quincy Fair Mall was demolished as part of the $8.2 million concourse project that will connect Burgin Parkway with both Quincy Center and Route 3A on the Southern Artery. The cost of the demolition more than doubled in cost from $500,000 to $1.1 million when asbestos was found on the site and had to be removed.

West Quincy residents found themselves at the mercy of the elements when three days of torrential downpours in March led to flooding in many low-lying areas. The state was called in to provide aid for Quincy and several other communities in Norfolk County.

The new Quincy High School was dedicated in August and the new school opened for students on the first day of classes.

History was made in the state election in November when Tackey Chan became the first Asian-American from Quincy to be elected as a state representative.

Sadly, the city said goodbye to two esteemed and passionate journalists when Quincy Sun reporter Tom Henshaw and Patriot Ledger columnist Ray McEachern passed away.

As the year came to a close, Quincy dug out from a major post-Christmas blizzard that saw winds gust to 60 miles per hour and dumped 13.5 inches of snow. The storm resulted in flooding in Merrymount, Adams Shore and Houghs Neck, particularly Sea Street. Coastal flood conditions forced 30 individuals to evacuate their homes.

some individuals were rescued from their homes in Merrymount by backhoe buckets, boats and rope lines.

About six evacuees used the city's emergency shelter at Quincy High School while others sought refuge with family and friends. As they waited, they stayed warm in a T bus.

Flooding also caused temporary road closures of the 600-700 blocks of Sea Street, the Causeway (a portion of East Squantum St.) and Post Island Road.

Roughly 60 water pumps from the DPW helped clear flooded basements, especially Post Island. Officials said more than a dozen homes suffered serious water damage because of the storm, and Capitol Waste – the city's trash and recycling collector – will make additional trips to flooded areas to help neighborhoods clean-up.

A number of sea walls in the same area also suffered damage.

Pubic Works Commissioner Larry Prendeville said Park Department workers reported clearing a substantial number of tree branches and limbs felled by strong winds and several thousand power outages were reported to National Grid.

From Sunday afternoon through Monday, public works crews plowed the heavy wet snowfall, utility workers repaired power lines to 800 homes, and police officers and firefighters responded to several traffic accidents.

The storm also battered the city's $750,000 Snow & Ice budget just as winter begins. The post-Christmas storm costs are estimated at $350,000 to $400,000 or over half of this year's budget, according to Koch's spokesman Chris Walker.

"This was an incredibly tough storm when you consider all the factors taken together – the snow, the wind, and the storm surge," Mayor Thomas Koch said Tuesday in a formal statement. "I am grateful for the job done by our emergency workers throughout the duration of this very dangerous storm.

"That being said," the mayor continued, "we were far from perfect and we have identified a number of problem areas that will require adjustments and improvements going forward operationally."

Police Chief Paul Keenan said his department's response "went smoothly." However, he added, "It was taxing on the emergency unit but everyone managed to step up."

Despite the storm's severity, there were some pluses for cleanup crews as the storm hit late Sunday afternoon . and continued through Monday. Morning traffic was light due to early warning and school vacation was just beginning.

Officials also said that the weather forecasters got it right.

Meteorologists forecast the storm early and accurately in the week before Christmas. That helped all the different agencies, according to Keenan. "It did help us because we were able to pre-plan."

The majority of people played it safe and simply waited the storm out, according to Police Captain John Dougan. "It wasn't too bad because most people did stay off of the roads."

In addition, Dougan said that Governor Deval Patrick asked non-essential employees to stay home Monday and many complied.

"People adhered to what the governor said and stayed off the roads," said Dougan.

By early Tuesday, Bryan said most power lines had been repaired and firefighters were winding up the job of clearing and checking the city 1,800 fire hydrants.

Also on Tuesday, the city's key officials, Koch, Keenan, Fire Chief Joseph Barron, and Prendeville met to review the details of the storm response.

"We try to learn from every one of the storms," said Keenan.

City officials said the clean-up will be on-going for much of the week with crews cleaning snow banks from several areas around the city.

Residents and businesses are asked to shovel their sidewalks, from around fire hydrants and storm drains when possible.

Mayor Koch also reminded residents to check in on elderly or disabled neighbors.

Mayor's 'State Of City' Address At Mid-Term Council Meeting Monday

Mayor Tom Koch will give his "State of the City" address at Monday's City Council Meeting which will be held at 7 p.m. in the Council Chamber of City Hall.

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin is expected to get re-elected to a second one-year term as council president.

Here is the agenda for Monday's meeting:

- Mid-Term Council Meeting called to order by City Clerk Joseph Shea.
- Roll Call members.
- Pledge of Allegiance to Flag by Thomas Stansbury, Veterans' Services director.
- Invocation by Rev. Richard Cannon, pastor, St. John's Church, Quincy.
- Introduction of His Honor, Mayor Thomas P. Koch, for Mid-Term Address.
- Nomination and election of president of City Council.
- Nomination and election of Clerk of Committees.
- Authorize Clerk to have Council Calendar printed.
- Adoption of Amended Council Rules for 2011.
- Benediction by Rev. Dr. Stan Johnson, pastor, First Presbyterian Church, Quincy.

Ask the GEMOLOGIST®

BY JEFFREY M. BERTMAN
GRADUATE GEMOLOGIST

WHICH GARNET?

When garnet, the birthstone for January, is mentioned, most people are likely to think about a red gemstone. This reaction is only natural because the most popular garnet in jewelry is "pyrope," which is always a shade of red. However, the gemstone family "garnet" is composed of more than ten different gemstones that display slight variations in color. Among the most desirable of these is the green variety of andradite garnet known as "demantoid." Its name is derived from the Dutch word for "diamond" ("demant") because its brilliance is greater than that of diamond. As far as color is concerned, at its best, its green hue rivals emerald. Those familiar with demantoid never think of garnet the same way again.

Legend has it that garnets give their wearers guidance in the night and protection from nightmares. Our knowledgeable staff members offer guidance, friendly smiles, and professional advice to ensure our customers' security in knowing that their investment in fine jewelry is wisely spent. Visit us at 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center, and we will Introduce you to the colorful world of garnets and other stunning gemstones, either in loose stones or gorgeous settings. Koch Begins 2nd Mayoral Term, Brown Elected Senator

SECOND TERM – Mayor Thomas P. Koch, the city's 33rd mayor, takes the oath of office for a second two-year term from City Clerk Joseph Shea at inauguration ceremonies in January at North Quincy High School. 2010 The Year In Review

JANUARY

Thomas Koch was sworn in for his second term as the city's 33rd mayor after defeating William Phelan in a heated election in the fall election.

Koch said he expects Quincy's future redevelopment will be a boom to economic growth throughout the region in years to come.

The redevelopment proposals are based on $1 billion in private investment being vetted by a team of lawyers, architects and planners who will protect the city's interest in negotiations.

"Today, we share a great faith in economic opportunity the likes of which our city has never seen," said Koch. "

Anne Mahoney put protecting the city's public schools, restoring resources and to "lay the groundwork for innovation," as the biggest concerns during her speech after being sworn in at inauguration ceremonies at North Quincy High. Mahoney, the top vote-getter in the fall election among all candidates in all races, was voted in for a second term on the school board and was elected the vice chairperson of the board.

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin was administered the oath of office by City Clerk Joseph Shea as the 53rd City Council president. Coughlin pledged to encourage healthy and respectful debate as the council moved forward.

"There should be no question unasked or unanswered," said Coughlin in defining the council's role in protecting Quincy and its citizens. "We must at all times be accountable and transparent be just and fair, make decisions based not on the special interests which often persist in politics, but based on the facts, the law and the common purpose and greater good of our community."

Businessman Dan Quirk was presented with a plaque by Police Chief Paul Keenan after his donation to the $86,000 state-of-the-art 911 and training centers.

"Dan Quirk is a special person in the city of Quincy and continues to step up and make a difference in our city," said Koch.

Quirk regarded his donation to the department as money well spent. "It's a pleasure to help the police department," he said. "They're always there for me. On a scale from 1 to 10, I rate them a 10."

The 911 center has several live-feed screens on the wall of various streets and intersections in the city, as well as an updated computer center for emergency calls. The training center is a model of convenience. It will be used for press conferences and the in-house training of Quincy Police Officers by their colleagues. Certified training can also be done by outside agencies coming into police headquarters.

Trying to build momentum for his run for state governor, State Treasurer Tim Cahill selected former Holliston State Rep. Paul Loscocco as his running mate. Loscocco changed his party affiliation from Republican to unenrolled to complete the independent ticket in this fall's gubernatorial campaign.

Frigid temperatures, snow and icy cold water didn't deter hearty participants from stripping down to their bathing suits for a wintry swim in Wollaston Beach for the 4th Annual John Hancock Birthday Plunge. Rick Doane, the executive director of Interfaith has seen the number of swimmers increase every year. With 350,000 pounds of food distributed last year, Doane wants to see the plunge gather momentum with every year.

Mayor Koch signed the City Council's "Safety Zone" ordinance aimed at restricting Level 3 sex offenders from entering libraries, schools, daycare and elderly housing facilities and loitering at parks.

"This law sends a strong message that our community is willing to do everything in its power to protect its citizens from dangerous predators," said Koch.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Jan. 9, 1768, Englishman Philip Astley stages the first modern circus in London. Astley, a former cavalry sergeant major, found that if he galloped in a tight circle, centrifugal force allowed him to perform seemingly impossible feats on a horse's back. He invited the public to see him wave his sword in the air while he rode with one foot on the saddle and one on the horse's head.

• On Jan. 6, 1838, Samuel Morse's telegraph system is demonstrated for the first time at the Speedwell Iron Works in Morristown, N.J. The telegraph eventually would revolutionize long-distance communication, reaching the height of its popularity in the 1920s and 1930s.

• On Jan. 5, 1933, construction begins on the Golden Gate Bridge, as workers started excavating 3.25 million cubic feet of dirt for the structure's huge anchorages. The Golden Gate Bridge officially opened on May 27, 1937. At 3,000 feet, it was the longest bridge span in the world at the time.

• On Jan. 7, 1927, the Harlem Globetrotters basketball team, formerly known as the Savoy Big Five, travels 48 miles west from Chicago to play its first game, in Hinckley, Ill. The Globetrotters won 101 out of 117 games that first season.

• On Jan. 8, 1946, Elvis Presley receives a $6.95 guitar from the Tupelo Hardware Co. store for his 11th birthday. It's said that what Elvis really wanted for his birthday that year was a rifle or a bicycle.

• On Jan. 4, 1974, President Richard Nixon refuses to hand over tape recordings and documents that had been subpoenaed by the Senate Watergate Committee. Marking the beginning of the end of his presidency, Nixon would resign from office in disgrace eight months later.

• On Jan. 3, 1990, Panama's General Manuel Antonio Noriega, after holing up for 10 days at the Vatican embassy in Panama City, surrenders to U.S. military troops to face charges of drug trafficking. In 1992, the former dictator was convicted of drug trafficking, money laundering and racketeering and sentenced to 40 years in prison.

Keenan Reflects While Looking Forward

KEENAN

Councillor John F. Keenan will be sworn in as the city's next state senator Jan. 5. He's one of two freshman legislators from the city's State House delegation; the other is incoming state representative Tackey Chan.

Keenan, who has served as a city councillor since 2003, defeated two challengers in the November election to succeed Michael Morrissey as state senator in the Norfolk-Plymouth District which includes Quincy. Morrissey, who has served as state senator since 1997, will begin his term as Norfolk County district attorney in January.

Keenan's already made his first decision regarding his new political office - he'll finish out his council term while serving as state senator but will not seek re-election on the council next fall.

As he prepares for his swearing-in Jan. 5, Keenan shared some of his thoughts about his senatorial duties, departure as executive director of the Norfolk County Retirement System, and job creation in Quincy and the Commonwealth.

Here's what Keenan had to say:

Sun: What do you consider the most important issue or issues that is (are) specific to Quincy that you will address first on Beacon Hill after you are sworn in Jan. 5?

Keenan: With the passage of the Land Disposition Agreement by the City Council, the accompanying Home Rule Petition, necessary for financing the redevelopment of Quincy Center, will be filed at the State shortly.

The redevelopment of Quincy Center is a large project, with enormous importance for the future of the entire City. Its short and long term impacts on Quincy and the region include thousands of construction and permanent jobs, new housing, funds for affordable housing, and new retail opportunities. It will be an economic engine for the next decade. I look forward to working with my fellow legislators from Quincy to get the legislation passed and to identify and secure grants to fund the important, early infrastructure work.

Sun: Do you know what the first bill or piece of legislation that you will file on behalf of your constituents?

Keenan: Many people have offered thoughts and suggestions relative to legislation, and I am reviewing each of them. Generally, we have until Jan. 21st to file legislation, although there are provisions for filing after that date as well.

Sun: What committees do you hope to serve on and for what reason?

Keenan: There are several committees that I am interested in serving on, including the Senate Ways and Means Committee. The Ways and Means Committee is responsible for drafting the Senate version of the State Budget, and given the demanding fiscal times, would be very interesting and challenging.

Other interests include the Economic Development and Emerging Technologies Committee, and the Telecommunications, Utilities and Energy Committee. Also, it would be an honor to serve on the Veterans and Federal Affairs Committee.

Sun: Have you had any second thoughts about deciding to fill out your term as a city councillor next year instead of vacating the seat immediately after you are sworn in?

Keenan: No. I was elected to serve for two years. People have been incredibly supportive of my decision, and I consider it an honor and privilege to finish the term.

Sun: You will also be leaving your position as the executive director of the Norfolk County Retirement System. Who will select your successor and what is the most important qualification should the next director have?

Keenan: I have thoroughly enjoyed my nine years as the Executive Director of the Norfolk County Retirement System. I've had the opportunity to serve with a great Retirement Board, and with a great staff. The Chairman of the Retirement Board, Joseph Connolly, with the advice of the Retirement Board, will select the next Director. While it is important for the next Director to have a financial background, municipal experience, and some legal training, easily the most important qualification is the ability to deal with people, especially to understand the emotional aspects of retirement, and to treat people with dignity and respect. I've always used the "my father, my mother" standard, i.e. that I treat every person who comes to the Retirement System as I would want my father and mother to be treated. Over the last decade, the Retirement Board and the staff at the Retirement System have met this standard - it's the accomplishment of which I am most proud.

Sun: What advice as Michael Morrissey, who has held the seat since 1996, given to you about serving as state senator?

Keenan: Senator Morrissey has given me a great deal of advice, from how to hire staff, to suggestions on committee assignments, and to thoughts on handling constituents. He has been a great help the past couple of months. The best advice he has given, and it hasn't been in spoken form but rather through action, has been to be out and about, to be responsive and to be available.

Sun: What are your goals for your first term?

Keenan: My first goal is to provide outstanding constituent service to the residents of the Norfolk and Plymouth Senate district, and to assist the local governments of Abington, Braintree, Holbrook, Rockland and Quincy as they struggle with tight municipal budgets.

Other goals include learning completely the legislative process for the benefit of my constituents, and gaining as thorough an understanding of the State budget and state finances as possible.

Sun: Creating jobs was a popular theme during the fall campaign. What initiatives do you support to help put people back to work?

Keenan: As mentioned, the redevelopment of Quincy Center is an initiative that has the potential to employ thousands. Even as the project continues through the planning and design stages, there will be direct and indirect economic benefits for the region.

Creating jobs also requires making the Commonwealth as business friendly as possible, which in turn requires streamlining regulations where possible, eliminating duplicative agency requirements, and providing incentives for businesses to locate and grow in Massachusetts, particularly in the Norfolk and Plymouth district.

Sun: What is your position regarding new or higher taxes/fees?

Keenan: I am generally opposed to new or higher taxes/fees. Before ever suggesting or voting for a new or higher tax, or for new fees, I will have first completely reviewed the State budget, explored all possible efficiencies, and exhausted all reasonable budget cuts.

Sun: What will you miss most after you wrap up your city council term next year?

Keenan: I'll miss most the interaction with my fellow councilors and with the employees of the City, all of whom are extremely dedicated and work hard for all the citizens of Quincy. I've been fortunate over the last 23 years to work with some great, talented and committed people.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1951 postcard published by Eddie Smith, owner of the old Eddie's Diner that was located at 382 Quincy Avenue in Quincy Point. Smith and his partner, Edgar Eaton, opened the gleaming red-stripped stainless steel diner in 1942. It was situated next to the Southern Artery at the intersection known then as the "Gateway to Cape Cod." The 25-ton, 54-foot-long diner had been prefabricated at the Jerry O'Mahoney Dining Company's factory in Elizabeth, New Jersey and it was shipped on a flatbed truck to Quincy. It came complete with all the interior fixtures including stoves, counters, stools, booths and a jukebox. Later owners changed the diner and by 1960 the exterior had been covered with stucco and wood and the 24-room Eddie's Motor Inn was built next door. Aside from the changes, for over 50 years Eddie's was one of Quincy's most treasured eating spots, and it was one of the Boston area's last 24-hour diners when a disastrous fire closed it in 1993. In the 1950s, there were eight diners in Quincy: The Mayflower on Southern Artery, Devoes, The Wheelhouse and Glovers in North Quincy, United in Wollaston, Pilgrim on Quincy Avenue, The Capeway on Washington Street and Russell's on Adams Street. Local Agencies Join Sheriff's Emergency Alert Network

Norfolk County Sheriff Michael G. Bellotti says he is pleased with the growth of the emergency alert system that he administers in Norfolk County with the cooperation of area police and fire departments.

A total of 19 Norfolk County communities have fully joined the Rapid Alert Notification System (RANS), which is designed to send voice messages directly to the home phones of area residents in the event of a public safety emergency.

"This is a versatile system that directly and quickly alerts residents," Sheriff Bellotti said. "We can make the list of recipients as large or as small as necessary, based on the type of urgent situation, whether it's a hurricane or an MWRA water emergency or a gas leak or anything in between."

Quincy Fire Chief Joseph Barron said, "It's certainly a valuable tool. We're grateful to Sheriff Bellotti for putting this system together."

So far, the communities that have joined RANS include: Avon, Braintree, Brookline, Canton, Dedham, Foxborough, Franklin, Holbrook, Medway, Millis, Milton, Norfolk, Plainville, Quincy, Sharon, Walpole, Westwood, Weymouth and Wrentham.

The Norfolk County Sheriff's Office is continuing to work with other communities to bring them into the system whenever those communities decide to do so.

Sheriff Bellotti noted that RANS, which is funded through Homeland Security grants, works well as a regional tool that crosses municipal boundaries if the situation calls for it.

The Norfolk County Sheriff's Office maps out the area of recipients and issues alerts at the request of public safety officials in participating RANS communities. System administrators currently are investigating the best ways to incorporate residents' cell phones into the system.

Downtown: Koch Picking Up Where McIntyre Left Off

The City of Quincy, known to many as the hub of the South Shore, just approved a $1.3 billion-development plan to remake its shopping district. Quincy was once called "Shopperstown USA," but that was before the malls came.

Quincy officials want to take what is struggling and turn it into an urban destination. Quincy wants to reclaim its downtown area which is something most mid-sized cities have lost over the past half-century.

The developer is StreetWorks LLC of White Plains, New York. This proposal will become the largest construction project in the state. It should create 4,100 construction jobs and 5,700 permanent jobs. Suffolk Construction will manage the project.

Said Quincy Mayor Tom Koch, "This is going to become a commercial district with tremendous vitality. There will be beautiful public spaces, wide sidewalks and café-style seating. It will be a place people will be proud to go."

Back 40 years ago, Mayor James McIntyre opened up Quincy and the South Shore to Boston and changed the way folks thought about life on the other side of the Neponset Bridge. He had a vision of what could be.

Mayor Koch is picking up where McIntyre left off and completing the vision of a city and region all of its own.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Former Mayor Bradford Goes To Office On 75th Birthday

By FRANK McCAULEY

Former Mayor William A. Bradford celebrated his 75th birthday by going to the office as usual. Bradford was a leader for over 50 years in civic, community and business affairs.

A native of Westerly, Rhode Island, Mr. Bradford had lived in Quincy for 53 years and established his own business in Quincy 50 years ago.

His public service in office included membership on the city council for four years (1917-1920) as well as mayor of Quincy (1921-1922). His public service out of office included valuable contributions to the Boy Scout movement, to the Quincy Trade School as a member and chairman of the advisory committee and personal leadership of a long campaign to eliminate pollution from Quincy Bay.

The former mayor was married and the father of two daughters.

SEMI-SINGLESCHOOL SESSION ADOPTED

A temporary single session plan for children living more than half a mile from school will be placed in effect, while the school committee continues to wrestle with the single versus double session problem in hopes of shaping a permanent plan.

This was the decision made by the school committee at a meeting featured by a flare-up in which Harry Earl Lantery, a leading advocate of the single session and School Superintendent Dr. Paul Gossard made counter charges of unfair tactics in the recent poll.

Children who live within a half a mile of the school will continue to go home for noon meals under the plan. Matrons would be hired to supervise the lunch period of the children who remain at school.

COUNCILLORS ELECT NEW LEADER

Election of a council president and the annual message of Mayor Charles A. Ross will be the chief features of the first meeting of the cit council to be held at 10 a.m. Monday in the Council Chambers.

Ward Five Councillor Clifton Baker had been favored to be the next council president but doubts about his election were expressed around city hall when it was reported that one of the four councillors supporting him had reconsidered. It takes four votes plus the Candidate's own to elect a council president.

Girl Scout Troop 74091 Help Keep Children Warm This Winter

The Girl Scouts of Eastern Mass. (GSEM) recently participated in a community service project by collecting donations of new and gently used hats, scarves, mittens, winter coats and snow pants, to support Cradles to Crayons (CtC) third annual gear up for winter campaign.

Cradles to Crayons is an innovative Quincy-based nonprofit organization that equips homeless and in-need children with the basic essentials they need to feel safe, warm, ready to learn and valued.

The Girls Scouts filled a large Thin Mint box three times and will donated more than five bags of winter wear to Cradles to Crayons. Their donation will help keep some of the 15,000 local children Cradles to Crayon serves safe and warm this winter by providing the critical cold weather gear - they need.

The Girl Scouts of Eastern Mass. and Cradles to Crayons have partnered since 2009, with GSEM volunteers and girls participating in onsite volunteering at CtC 3-4 times a year, and individual troops participating in onsite volunteering and organizing drives throughout the year. This past summer, a year long drive for socks and underwear began during GSEM summer camp, with a goal to collect 5,000 pairs of each by next summer.

Boston Harbor Bird Cruise Jan. 15

A bird cruise exploring the winter bird and wildlife in and around Boston Harbor will be held Saturday, Jan. 15.

The cruise will depart from Quincy shipyard at 10:15 a.m. and return at 2:30 p.m. There will also be a cruise departing from Long Wharf in Boston at 11 a.m., returning at 2 p.m.

The cruise will travel to the outer islands and Hingham Harbor with narration provided by park rangers and bird experts.

Learn more about photographing wildlife with the South Shore Camera Club.

Reservations are recommended as space is limited.

Squantum School, Rep. Ayers Partner For Annual Toy Drive

Third graders at the Squantum School recently partnered with state Rep. Bruce Ayers for the school's annual toy drive to support needy families this holiday season.

Squantum's third grade students were led by Teachers AnnMarie Ford and Marianne Salas coordinated this program for the entire school and the response from many families in the school community was incredible.

This Toy Drive is one of the many community service learning programs at the school that not only supports needy families but teaches an invaluable lesson about helping and supporting others.

Next Norfolk DA 'Forever Grateful' For Quincy's Support During 34-Year Legislative Career

After 18 Years, Morrissey Bids Senate Colleagues Farewell

Michael Morrissey, who has represented Quincy as state senator since 1993, recently delivered his farewell address to his Senate colleagues on Beacon Hill.

Morrissey was elected Norfolk County district attorney in last fall's state election and will be sworn in next week.

Many years ago a long time friend and former Mayor told me that politics and election to office was "a short season" and enjoy it.

Well that short season turned into 34 years of service in the Legislature.

It was a humbling experience at the age of 22 to be elected to the House of Representatives by the people of Quincy for which I am forever grateful for their support and the opportunity to serve. In fact I'm the longest serving Legislator on a continuous basis, which as we all know means "nothing", except I know the rules and I know how to get things done. I was fortunate to have a supportive family and friends who started me on my way.

While a number of them have moved or passed away, longtime supporters and their families have continued to help including my first campaign manager Charlie Kane who ran an elderly building for me in Quincy in my recent DA race. Charlie Kane is here today. I also would like to thank my father Arthur, who at 81 has always helped and my wife Joanne of 31 years who at least knew what she was getting into when she married me. I know each of you can appreciate the sacrifices that are made by family members so we can participate in the electoral process. It is something most members of the public will never understand or appreciate.

Many years ago my father gave me some advice that has guided me to this day! It is advice that was good 35 years ago and is still true today. The advice: Remember the same people you see on the way up you'll see on the way down! And treat people as you want to be treated! Those words have stuck with me every day and have served me well.

I've seen a lot in my 34 years and been through a number of changes over the years including the House cut from 240 to 160 members, I've been through 5 re-districtings in the House and Senate. My friend Dick Moore is the last man standing from the Class of 1976. Joe DeNucci and Paul Cellucci have retired, and my good friend and classmate Bill Keating is the new Congressman for the 10th District.

I've served under seven Governors, three Speakers of the House, and four Senate Presidents but only a couple of House and a couple of Senate Clerks; probably the most important people in the building. No one knows more about the Legislative Process and the Rules than the Clerks. While Speakers and Senate Presidents often get favorable rulings, all you have to remember is that if you ask the Clerk the right questions they will give you a fair, honest answer for which I wanted to thank the Clerk and his staff for their help and assistance over the years.

The building has changed and a number of the people in the building have changed. Some of the changes for the better and some for the worse but the sense of desire to serve people as their elected Representative is still a noble profession and still present for most of us. The desire to do a good job, to be fair and honest in our dealings has always been present here on Beacon Hill.

I've learned a lot about the rules from watching and listening especially in the House from people like Tom Colo, Royal Switzler, Andy Card and Phil Johnston. It was a great education at a young age. I think being a member of the House was a great training ground for the Senate. When it comes to the House and Senate I wanted to leave you with an observation that the legislative process should not be an us versus them proposition. We are all in this together and I think it was proven in the last election. We must work together for the betterment of our constituents and the Commonwealth or we will be gone from office.

I also wanted to leave you with a couple of other words of wisdom. Never ask for a Committee Chairmanship of a Committee that begins in "E". In writing and developing joint committee rules there is only one rule that matters. "The House and Senate Chairman shall develop an agenda and agree on bills to be heard or placed on a calendar for executive session." Absent an agreement nothing would happen.

Also it is important to remember that members of the minority party can have good ideas and sometimes they are right so vote and work with them, it will make for a better Commonwealth. I wish to congratulate Senator Tarr on his pending and well deserved election as the new Minority Leader.

I don't know how you decide when it's time to leave the Legislature but you'll know. For me it seemed like the right time and opportunity to help people and pursue a new challenge as the Norfolk County District Attorney seemed the right choice at this time.

I wish the political atmosphere had been different and some of my opponents had something positive to talk about but I'm afraid we're in an era where people who seek office are negative in their approach and criticism and often don't understand the problems. It is too bad because the public deserves more out of people running for office.

I wanted to congratulate and extend my best wishes to my colleagues that are leaving and to those of you who won tough reelection fights.

For those of you that are staying I recognize the still difficult and complicated fiscal picture that awaits you next season. I won't miss some of those decisions and I don't envy the decisions you'll have to make. I'll just be one of the many constituent groups looking for help.

Nothing is better than having people on board who make you look good. I've had some great staff over the years including Janet Coughlin who suffered through 21 years working with me and my good friend and former staff member Tackey Chan who was recently elected to the House from Quincy. I wanted to thank all of you.

Finally, have some fun; take the job serious but not yourself too serious. It served me well and I hope that view will help me as I assume the duties of Norfolk District Attorney. I've made great friends here in the Building which I will miss but I look forward to continuing my work with you next year.

I wanted to thank you for your help and the courtesies many of you have extended me over the years.

I wanted to thank my staff for all their help and assistance, and the legislative staff, the President's office, Minority Leader, administrative and court officers for their help and assistance. You have all contributed much to make this a great place to work.

It has been an honor to serve and I again wanted to thank the people of Quincy and the Norfolk Plymouth District who have supported me over the last 18 elections.

I won't miss a two year term.

I'll see you in the next session.

– MICHAEL MORRISSEY

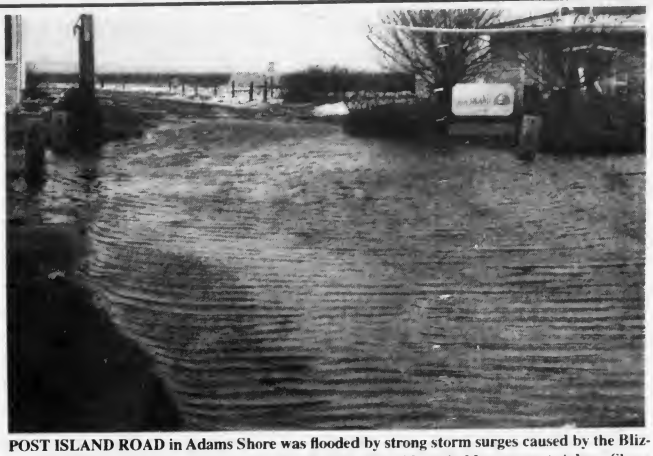
TENOTOMY

When a muscle remains in a shortened position, it can become resistant to stretching. The tendon attaching the muscle to bone can shorten, and the muscle can develop fibrous tissue, preventing it from stretching to its full range of motion. Those changes constitute a "contracture." Contracture commonly occurs with club foot and following stroke, multiple sclerosis, or cerebral palsy. "Tenotomy" is a surgical procedure performed in order to lengthen a muscle that has developed improperly or become shortened and is resistant to stretching. Tenotomy allows the muscle to return to its normal length and the joint to straighten. Tenotomy can also be performed to prevent or correct a dislocation caused by one muscle pulling more strongly than its opposing muscle.



When your feet cause you pain, there are many steps you can take to get relief. The first, and probably most important, is a visit to your podiatrist. When foot problems have got you down, let us do what we do best – accurately diagnose and compassionately treat the problem so you're back on your feet quickly and painlessly. Located at QUINCY MEDICAL CENTER, we are currently accepting new patients for complete podiatric care, from hereditary problems to injury to chronic conditions. Please call us at 781-986-3668 for an appointment. Office hours are also available at 999 North Main St., in the Randolph Medical Building, and Milton Medical Building in Suite 221.

HINT: During a tenotomy, a partial or full cut in the tendon allows the muscle to be stretched.

Interment will be in St. Joseph Cemetery.

QHS Competes In Its Sixth Academic Decathlon

Quincy High was among 18 schools that recently participated in the Massachusetts regional scrimmage in preparation for the 2010 United States Academic Decathlon held at Everett High School.

Local, regional and state competitions can lead to the national finals that will take place next April.

The United States Academic Decathlon was created to provide opportunities for students to experience the challenges of rigorous team and individual competition. Each team competes in ten events—economics, language and literature, art, music, mathematics, social science, science, essay, interview and speech. Each year the science or social science is used as the Super Quiz topic.

A new theme of study is established every year with topics that are relevant, current and challenging. This year's focus is the Great Depression. The science topic is geology.

"The team really appreciates the incentive to study these subjects in depth," Coach Evelyn Ryan said.

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL'S Academic Decathlon team includes Honors players Michaela Walker, Xiuying Sara Chen and Jian Bin Brandon Guo; Scholastic players Krista Ferent, Anthony D'Alto and Samantha Pham; Varisity players Nicholas Dolan and Liang Chen; with alternates Laura Driscoll, Irene Lam, Burak Sezer, Cassandra Sumera, Ying Ge Wang and Gui Yu Jessie Xu.

"The students gain a remarkable amount of knowledge in their daily preparation for competition. There's really no way to lose taking part in an event like this."

In the regional scrimmage, gold, silver, bronze and honorable mention ribbons are awarded for individual events, along with trophies for the three highest scoring teams.

Overall individual winners are recognized, as are champion teams.

"On our team this year, the Coach's Gold goes to Michaela Walker, our undisputed Most Valuable Player for scoring the most points for the team," Ryan said. "Michaela captured three awards: Honorable Mention in Art, Silver in Science and Gold in Literature.

"The entire team did its best and Quincy High School is very proud of all of these young scholars."

Police Drug Awareness Seminar Jan. 6

Quincy Police Lt. Patrick Glynn, the department's Drug Enforcement officer, will present an informational seminar on drug awareness Thursday, Jan. 6 at 7 p.m. at the Quincy Lodge of Elks, 254 Quarry St., Quincy.

The seminar will educate parents and the audience on the hidden drug dangers within their homes and medicine cabinets.

Lt. Glynn and officials from the Norfolk County Sheriff's Department and the District Attorney's Office will be available to answer questions from the audience following the presentation.

Those planning to attend are asked to call the Quincy Elks at 617-472-2223 or e-mail pglynn@quincyma.gov.

Free Screening Of 'The Town' At Library

"The Town," based on Chuck Hogan's Hammett Prize-winning novel Prince of Thieves, will be shown Thursday, Jan. 6 at 6:45 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

The story concerns four thieves who are hunted on the streets of Boston by a determined FBI agent and a woman with the power to bring them all to their knees.

Starring Ben Affleck, Jon Hamm and Rebecca Hall, the 125-minute film is rated R for strong violence, pervasive language, some sexuality and drug use.

The screening is sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Sun Citizen Of The Year Honor Renamed

Friday Last Day For Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Citizenship Award Nominations

Nominations are coming in for The Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. Memorial Citizenship Award – formerly The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year award.

The award – which has been presented annually by The Quincy Sun since 1985 – was renamed in memory of Mr. Bosworth, this newspaper's longtime publisher and founder.

A panel of judges selected Mr. Bosworth to receive the award posthumously last year. He passed away in February, 2009.

Mr. Bosworth was honored for dedicating much of his life to the city he loved and for supporting innumerable community, charitable and civic causes both personally and through the pages of this newspaper for more than 40 years.

Quincy Sun readers are again invited to nominate an individual they believe is most deserving of the award. As in past years, the award recognizes an individual for outstanding community service or a special achievement.

Other past recipients include former Veterans Services Director Henry "Hank" Bradley, Quincy attorney George G. Burke, Quincy businessman Robert Curry, the late Richard J. Koch, Sr., and the late Vincent Moscardelli.

The ballot will be printed in each issue of The Sun until nominations close on Friday, Dec. 31. After Dec. 31, a judging panel will be selected to make the final choice from the nominations submitted.

If you know someone you would like to see recognized with the 2010 award, fill out the ballot and mail it to:

The Quincy Sun
Attn: Henry Bosworth Award
1372 Hancock St.
Quincy, MA 02169

Ballots can also be dropped off at The Sun office at the above address in Quincy Center by Friday.

Those submitting nominations should identify themselves. Those submitting nominations are also encouraged to attach to the ballot a letter detailing the reason for their nomination.

Nominees can be past or present public officials, a member of an appointed board, a clergy member, a teacher or school administrator, a police or firefighter, someone in the business community, a sports figure, or an "unsung" neighbor, friend or community activist who has given freely or his or her time to a worthy project or cause.

Those nominated in the past are eligible to be nominated again. Since this is not a popularity contest, each nominee has an equal chance of being selected regardless of the number of nominations received. Anyone nominated just once has the same chance of being the award recipient.

The name of the winner will be announced in The Quincy Sun early next year.

Adams National Historic Neighborhood Assn. Remembers Past Member Bill Aylward

The Adams National Historic Neighborhood Association (ANHNA) recently remembered one of their past members - Bill Aylward, a Quincy icon and member of ANHNA.

Aylward dedicated his time to the environment and insuring rules and regulations protecting the environment were enforced.

ANHNA has placed a brick honoring Aylward at the World War II memorial at Merrymount Park the home of Black's Creek the body of water Aylward spent hours studying and named his monthly publication.

In keeping Aylward's work ongoing, ANHNA donated 20 books on the environment to the Thomas Crane Children's Library in his name. The books are available for use for children in grades K-8. It is the hope of ANHNA that the future leaders of Quincy will learn from these books to protect and respect our environment just as Bill Aylward lived his life.

ANHNA Committee members Maureen Linnane, Ellen Milgram and Jack Milgram presented the books to Julie Rines of the Thomas Crane Library's Children's room.

Concourse Named For Former Mayor Hannon represents a first step in limiting sex offenders access to the city's most vulnerable residents, senior citizens and children, according to the ordinance sponsors City Council President Kevin Coughlin and Ward 5 Councillor Douglas Gutro.

"Councilors Coughlin and Gutro deserve great credit for their efforts to ensure that our parks, libraries and other public areas are safe and welcoming for all of our residents," said Koch.

Quincy Sun founder, Henry Bosworth, was selected the Sun's Citizen of the Year posthumously. The beloved longtime community leader was the 26th recipient of the award, established by Bosworth and the late Sen. Paul Harold. The award recognizes an individual for outstanding community services. Bosworth died suddenly in February of 2009.

Mayor Tom Koch recommended that the cross-town Quincy Center Concourse be named the "Walter J. Hannon Jr. Parkway." Hannon served as mayor of Quincy from 1972 to 1975 and was credited by Koch with envisioning the first master plan for downtown Quincy that eventually became a proposed $1 billion plan to rehabilitate the downtown center.

"Walter did good work as mayor," said former Mayor Frank McCauley. "He was business oriented. He was a strong advocate of downtown business."

State Sen. Scott Brown took 20 of the city's 30 precincts to defeat Martha Coakley 53.29 to 45.51 percent, a margin that mirrored the statewide results. Brown will fill out the balance of the late Ted Kennedy's senate term that ends Jan. 3, 2013.

Jay Cashman announced the New England Aquarium would be leasing the 23,000 square-foot Warehouse No. 1 at the Quincy Shipyard to be used as an off-site holding area for sea mammals and fish. They will be quarantine for any sickness or disease before they are reacquainted with sea life at the aquarium.

The facility will include between 20-30 tanks, the largest being 30-feet in diameter and 6-feet deep. It will also include loading and work zones and exam rooms.

City Council President Kevin Coughlin asked fellow councilors to support a Home Role petition banning texting while driving in the city. Violators would be prohibited from sending, reading or writing a text message while operating a motor vehicle.

Violators would be fined from $100, $200 to $300 for first, second and third offenses. The fines, Coughlin said, were minimal compared to federal fines for the same offenses. The federal ban was announced just 12 hours after Coughlin submitted his petition to city council.

FEBRUARY

In an effort to lay out public finances in easy-to-read detail for the public, the Koch administration looked to create a detailed financial report to provide "the most precise picture possible." Koch said the move goes beyond the traditional budget process.

Quincy Police arrested Ivaylo Hristov of Thornhill, Ont., for withdrawing money from a Quincy man's ATM account using high tech equipment. Hristov installed an illegal skimmer device to steal account information from the magnetic strip on the back of the card and a tiny pinhole camera to record PIN numbers as the user entered them.

Former Mayor Frank McCauley was honored by the Quincy Lions for his 50 years of membership in the prestigious club at the Neighborhood Club. McCauley was the first member to reach the 50-year mark.

The new Quincy Chamber of Commerce was launched with over 300 people gathering at the Boston Marriot Quincy for the celebration. "It is Quincy's time to have its own chamber of commerce," said Ed Keohane, chairman of the Quincy Chamber. "It makes sense to channel all of our efforts and energies under one name to provide better services and programs to the merchants and tourists. It's important to have everyone working in unison, with one collective voice, as we embark on the exciting downtown redevelopment initiative put forward by the City of Quincy's administration."

Mildred Wiley Dee, a 1918 graduate of Quincy High School, was inducted posthumously into the Massachusetts State Track Coaches Association's Hall of Fame at the Reggie Lewis Center. Dee was the premier high jumper in the U.S. during her era. She captured the bronze medal in the event at the 1928 Olympic Games in Amsterdam.

A Quincy North student was shot in the leg in what police called an "isolated incident." The school was put in lockdown and the suspects fled to a house on East Squantum St., Police surrounded the home and four suspects, including the alleged gunman, were captured and arrested. Leon Perry, 19, of Dorchester, was charged with assault with attempt to murder, assault and battery with a dangerous weapon and unlawful possession of a firearm.

A community meeting drew 200 concerned citizens was held to address the shooting. School Superintendent Richard DeCristofaro, Police Chief Paul Keenan and Mayor Thomas Koch all believed the shooting was an isolated incident, not part of a rash of events.

Mayor Thomas Koch and the city's team of negotiators say complex discussions on a $1 billion Quincy Center redevelopment plan continue to move forward gradually with the mayor cautioning that the historic scope of the ambitious undertaking calls for "the most extensive and painstaking due diligence for any project in memory."

Both Mayor Thomas Koch and School Committee Vice-Chairman Anne Mahoney expressed their disappointment that the teachers' union, the Quincy Education Association (QEA) rejected President Obama's "Race to the Top" program. The program would have brought the city schools $1 million over a four-year period.

"I'm disappointed and I made my disappointment known directly to the union president," Koch said.

Mahoney said Quincy was lone city of the top-10 largest in Massachusetts not to be participating. "We won't have a seat at the table and Quincy misses an opportunity to participate in the planning," Mahoney said.

CONG. WILLIAM DELAHUNT announced in March he would not seek an eighth term to the U.S. House of Representatives. Legendary Quincy High School hockey coach Bob Sylvia retired after 44 years behind the bench for the Presidents. Sylvia had been inducted into the Massachusetts Hockey High School Hall of Fame only a few months before.

Failure of the state to provide adequate reimbursement for Medicaid patients forced Quincy Medical Center to eliminate 14 jobs and ask its 1,200 workers to take a pay cut of 3%, as well as pay more health insurance by March 1. The aim was to save $4.5 million by the end of 2010.

"We used to get a significant contribution," said Dr. Gary Gibbons, the CEO of QMC. "We were reimbursed a percentage of the cost. For six or seven years there has been a shortfall. Reimbursement has lagged. There is no way out. We have to stay alive."

Independent gubernatorial candidate Tim Cahill predicted a victory come November as several hundred supporters chanted "Tim in 10" at the opening of his campaign headquarters in Wollaston.

"The message of fiscal responsibility, of independence of taking care of the middle class and focusing on the people is going to resonate," said the former Quincy city councillor and two-term state treasurer.

On the one-month anniversary of the 7.0 earthquake in Haiti, Broad Meadows Middle School students and staff presented a $1,500 check to the St. Boniface Haiti Foundation and another $1,500 check to Partners in Health, culminating a month's worth of fundraising.

The National Golf Course Owners Association (NGCOA) recognized Granite Links Golf Club as its winner of the "2010 Course of the Year" for the New England region at its annual meeting in San Diego, CA.

Mayor Thomas Koch told The Sun that the city budget, in the process of being developed, is likely to be "the most difficult amid the most difficult of times" as the city continues to fight through a historic recession.

"We are prepared, we are going to work through it, and we will ultimately emerge a stronger community," said Koch. "But make no mistake, this going to be a historically challenging year. Nothing is off the table at this point."

MARCH

Mayor Thomas Koch issued an executive order guaranteeing that all city workers who are called to active duty in the military receive full benefits while serving overseas. City employees called overseas will be compensated by the city for any difference between their regular salary and military pay.

U.S. Rep. Bill Delahunt and Mayor Thomas Koch presented a $1 million check in federal funding for the Head Start Early Learning Center at the Saint Joseph's School in Quincy Point. The center will have 30,0000 square feet of early childhood space, including 16 classrooms for up to 240 toddlers and preschoolers. The school will serve Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth, Milton and Hull.

Ted Riordan was named 2009 Attorney Of The Year by Massachusetts Lawyer's Weekly.

City councillors said that the Park Department's "Share The Pier" agreements with Thayer Academy will short-change the city in the long run. The agreements focus on a waterfront portion of the 2.5-acre city-owned parcel off Southern Artery located between CVS and the Quirk car dealership. The entire parcel includes the Souther Tide Mill and docks for lobster fishermen. The property previously housed Quincy Lumber Co.

The bid for the final construction phase of the Quincy Center Concourse was awarded to a Brockton contractor, setting the stage for spring groundbreaking of the vital parkway crossing Quincy Center. J. Derenzo Company submitted the low bid of just more than $5 million for the key section of the project that will cut a road through Hancock Street in downtown where the Quincy Fair Mall currently stands and ultimately connect Burgin Parkway to Southern Artery.

Congressman William Delahunt announced he would not seek an eighth term at a meeting with supporters at City Hall. Delahunt, who began his political career nearly 40 years as a Quincy city councillor was introduced by Mayor Thomas Koch. Delahunt credited Koch's father, the late Richard Koch Sr., with helping him wage his first successful run for public office when he was elected Ward 5 councillor in 1971.

A spring storm brought with it nearly eight inches of rain and wind gusts of 67 miles an hour over a three-day period. The Department of Public Works had 50 pumps up and running around the clock and nearly 100 people were evacuated from their homes, especially in West Quincy where flooding hit the hardest.

Emphasizing the need for a new Central Middle School, officials outlined plans for a new facility on the lot where the Presidents City Inn, The Egg & I and Hancock Street Car Wash are situated. The overall cost of the project is expected to run from $40-50 million for acquisition and construction. The state will cover 68-percent of the cost with the city taking on the remaining 32 percent to be financed over 30 years.

The city established an emergency housing program to help homeowners who cannot move back into their homes for an extended period because of damages caused by the flooding.

Exhausted and frustrated from the aftermath of the relentless rain and flooding, Quincy residents looked to secure disaster area funds. Kurt Schwartz of MEMA (Massachusetts Emergency Management Association) said Governor Deval Patrick had been keeping tabs on the flooding that affected 60 cities and towns in the commonwealth.

Preliminary Disaster Assessment Teams were in Quincy and Norfolk County visiting the areas hit hardest by the nearly eight inches of rain that pounded the state. The first goal was to gather all the necessary information to present to Patrick, who then would request the city be declared a disaster area.

"We are working to build a case for the city and individuals," said Koch.

Mayor Thomas Koch announced he would use $270,000 in fees paid by Comcast to complete a major overhaul of technology systems at North Quincy High School, including more than 110 new computers, new computer labs and other state of the art equipment.

Granite Links Golf Course executives looked into the feasibility of shutting down Milton's plans to erect a 450-foot high wind turbine that would tower over its manicured greens.

City Clerk Joe Shea administered the oath of office in promoting two police officers. Edward Lusser was promoted to the rank of lieutenant and Ralph Willard moved up to sergeant. Mayor Thomas Koch presided over the promotion ceremony, held in the council chambers of old city hall.

Henry Bosworth, who founded The Quincy Sun in 1968, was honored posthumously as the Sun's 2009 Citizen Of The Year at a reception at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center. The reception was attended by more than 150 family, clergy, past and present public officials, friends and longtime business associates and colleagues.

Mr. Bosworth was lauded for his outstanding community service as the founder of Quincy's community newspaper.

City councillors expressed outrage over the "Big Box" look of the new B.J.'s Warehouse constructed at the entrance to Crown Colony Office Park.

"That building does not look like what was shown to us," said Councillor John Keenan, who laid into the structure that is located at "the city's premier office park."

Due to the ongoing economic downturn and a year-end budget shortfall, the Board of Trustees of the Thomas Crane Public Library voted to suspend Sunday hours beginning in April.

Father Bill's and Main Spring, a non-profit organization dedicated to ending homelessness on the South Shore was awarded $5,600 by Quincy's Neighborhood Club in support of its work with veterans experiencing homelessness.

According to Public Works Commissioner Larry Prendeville, the cleanup of the March floods cost an estimated $1 million. Three mid-month 100-year rainstorms battered much of Massachusetts, causing a state of emergency to be declared.

Quincy and North Weymouth citizens told Mass Department of Transportation officials they don't want a repeat of the constant noise they endured during construction at the Fore River Basin when work on the new bridge begins sometime in late 2011.

An assistant city solicitor, rummaging through old documents in the basement of city hall, came across a letter dated September 8, 1826 from John Quincy Adams to Thomas Greenleaf, Josiah Quincy, Thomas Boylston Adams, Edward Miller and George W. Beale. The letter from Adams requested that a vault or tomb be constructed under United First Parish Church to hold the remains of his father, John Adams, and his mother Abigail.

The Thomas Crane Public Library registered 846,000 visits in 2009 according to director Ann McLaughlin who reported an increase of 41,408 visitors over the 2007 count.

Street intersections of their home neighborhoods were named after Army SPP4 Richard S. Davis Jr. of West Quincy, Marine Lance Cpl. John W. Granahan of Germantown and Marine Pfc Gary J. Webb of Wollaston.

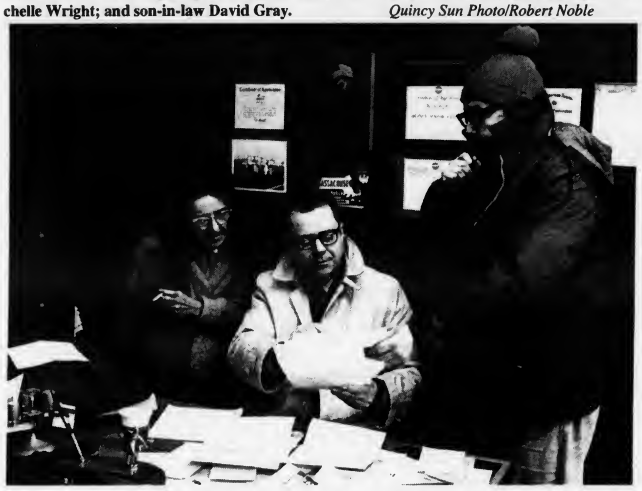
Legendary Morrisette Legion baseball coach Raymond Cattaneo was honored at a packed reception in the Tirrell Room of the Quincy Lodge of Elks. Former players and local politicians turned out for the banquet for Cattaneo, known as "Quincy's Mr. Baseball." Cattaneo's first game as manager was on June 14, 1970, an 11-5 win over Franklin American Legion.

Longtime Quincy Sun reporter Tom Henshaw died on April 21 after a long illness. The local newspaper icon was 85 years old.

"Tom's one of the best writers to come out of Quincy," said the late Quincy Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth in 1985. "He can take the most difficult story and make it easy, interesting reading.

"He can write under pressure. Deadlines don't faze him. He gets his facts straight and doesn't let his personal feelings get in the way."

Joe McConville, the longtime skating instructor at the Quincy Ice Arena, hung up his skates after 40 years of teaching hundreds of local youngsters to excel on the ice.



MSPCA investigators scoured a North Quincy neighborhood to track down the culprit in the torture of a cat. A 4-year-old black cat named Gemini died after being doused in gasoline.

The cat had scratch marks on her, indicating that she escaped her tormenter before he or she could light a match and ignite her.

QUINCY SUN FOUNDER Henry W. Bosworth was honored posthumously with The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year Award at a reception in the spring at the Quincy Sons of Italy. The reception was attended by more than 150 guests, including family, staff, local clergy, past and present elected officials, friends and colleagues. Accepting the award are members of Mr. Bosworth's family. From left: his son, Robert Bosworth, Quincy Sun publisher; his granddaughter, Amy Vickery; daughter-in-law Amy Bosworth; daughter Donna Gray, Quincy Sun business manager; his niece Leslie Douglas; granddaughter Kimberly Gray; Jason Vickery; granddaughter Michelle Wright; and son-in-law David Gray. Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Noble

MAY

A steady stream of residents continued to utilize the Disaster Recovery Center at the Richard J. Koch, Sr. Park and Recreation Complex more than a month after relentless rain and flooding devastated neighborhoods throughout the city and Norfolk County.

As of May 2, 327 residents had utilized the center, many looking for assistance in filling out the paper work for Small Business Administration (SBA) loans.

Nearly 100 people gathered to place yellow ribbons on one of the trees at City Hall Plaza to honor National Guard soldiers serving in Afghanistan.

Mayor Thomas Koch presented a bare bones 2011 budget of $229.8 million to City Council after describing three to ten percent cuts in most city departments and eliminating at least two dozen positions citywide. Koch expects layoffs in the police and fire departments and staff cuts in a majority of other city departments.

Quincy Public Schools took an even more proactive and aggressive approach in the battle against students being bullied in the hallways and cyberspace.

Governor Patrick signed anti-bullying legislation at a State House ceremony that was attended by numerous representatives from numerous fields, including education leaders, public safety, health and human services and law enforcement. The comprehensive anti-bullying policy of the Quincy Public Schools already covered several aspects of the bill signed by the Governor.

City Council will consider a proposal for a 2.5% meals tax that would be added to restaurant dining in the city if approved by the council. Not all restaurant owners are welcoming the proposal, which will increase the total meals tax to 7.5%. Currently, the state imposes a 5% tax on restaurant meals.

The Massachusetts School Building Authority, working with the Central Middle School Building Committee, selected the firm Ai3, LLC to design the new Central Middle School in a major step forward for the project.

The Boston-based firm has designed dozens of school projects in Massachusetts and other parts of the country, including in Whitman, Lynnfield and Hull.

Officials at the city's retirement fund posted an 18.8% increase in the fund investment balance in 2009 in contrast to a major hit in 2008. According to city records, the fund balance increased from approximately $224 million in December 2008 to $252 million in December 2009.

Planning Director Dennis Harrington announced that demolition crews would begin razing the Quincy Fair Mall on Hancock Street by the end of the month and complete the job by late June. The demolition of the mall represented a major and near final step toward completion of the Quincy Concourse.

Officials at the city's retirement fund posted an 18.8 percent increase in the fund investment balance in 2009 in contrast to a major hit in 2008.

According to city records, the fund balance increased from approximately $224 million in December 2008 to $252 million in December 2009.

The Norfolk County Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) at the Richard J. Koch Recreational Center closed. The center became necessary in the wake of serious flooding across the state after rainstorms in March.

Hundreds packed city council chambers as the school committee opened their meeting and hearings on the 2011 school budget. The audience applauded as citizen speakers, 61 in all, offered opinions on everything from graduation ceremonies to potential budget cuts of favored programs, athletics, and school personnel.

Quincy teachers voted overwhelmingly to defer next year's wage hike at Monday's meeting of the Quincy Education Association (QEA).

QEA President Paul Phillips said the motion from the floor was approved by 74 percent of those present more than meeting the required two-thirds vote.

The Community Preservation Committee (CPC) recently voted to allocate over a half a million dollars to fund eight historic preservation projects across the city.

Topping the list was a $200,000 allotment to repair the 72-year-old stonewall that encircles Faxon Park and a $100,000 award for the stabilization of Lyons Turning Mill.

More than 100 residents, the majority from Squantum neighborhoods, gathered to hear the proposal for a 398-foot, $4.5 million turbine to be constructed on Boston-owned Moon Island.

Erecting the turbine would require minimal traffic to Moon Island according to Jim Hunt, the chief for environmental and energy services for the city of Boston. The structure pieces would be transported on 8-10 trucks in one day. During the construction, there would be an average of 4-5 vehicles daily.

JUNE

Quincy developer Sean Galvin looked to secure permits for construction on the 1-1/2 acres of land adjacent to the Sons of Italy. The property, where Galvin was hoping to build a 14,000-square-foot, two-story office building with 140 parking spaces, was purchased in March for $825,000.

City Councillors challenged Chief Paul Keenan's plan for the city's harbormaster, suggesting the savings might just be penny-wise and pound-foolish. In addition, councillors offered their regrets to the Library Director Ann McLaughlin whose department budget was cut nine percent.

Police Chief Keenan told councillors that his officers have reviewed the records regarding the changes in the building and landscaping of the new BJ's Warehouse at Crown Colony and turned the information over to the district attorney's office.

Councillors sought a review of the project April 20 after they determined that the developers hadn't adhered to plans discussed at council or planning board meetings. The wholesale retailer had a temporary occupancy permit contingent on their improving the aesthetics of the exterior of the building and landscaping which lies at the entrance to Crown Colony Park.

Several school supporters proposed a hike in property taxes to cover shortfalls in the school budget while others, including city councillors, pitched ideas for new revenues and new approaches to the over $7 million in overdue taxes as well as collection of parking fines and new fees.

Construction of the new Quincy High School was close to completion after moving along faster than expected. The $126 million project, which broke ground in 2007, is about three weeks ahead of schedule and under budget according to principal Frank Santoro. "We've done everything we can to stay under that figure," said Santoro.

Quincy will be joining Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti's Reverse 911 system, which will give residents early telephone notice on everything from catastrophes to Amber Alerts to local options, such as H1N1 flu vaccine clinics.

Fire Chief Joseph Barron forecasted potential brownouts at Wollaston and Germantown fire stations, layoffs looming for as many as nine firefighters and alarm response time mounting to 4-1/2 minutes from three minutes as his department grapples with the 3.7% cut in his 2011 budget. The news appalled city councillors who fear for firefighter and residents' safety and the firefighters' union chief Ernie Arienti who warned of a "decimated" department endangered by 20 years of cuts.

Former Quincy mayor and two-term Massachusetts state representative James Sheets announced his candidacy for Congress in the 10th District Tuesday, running for a seat in the U.S. House of Representatives as an in Independent.

City council approved nearly $700,000 in community preservation and open space grants for 2010 as recommended by Mayor Thomas Koch and the Community Preservation Committee (CPC).

The Quincy College Board of Governors voted to appoint Dr. Philip Conroy Jr., as the next president of the college, succeeding Martha Sue Harris who is retiring. Dr. Conroy, vice president for Enrollment Management and Marketing at Mount Ida College, Newton, was one of four finalists selected earlier in the month.

City Council voted 8-0 to approved a fiscal year 2011 budget of $229,884,084 as recommended by the finances Committee. The budget is effective July 1, through June 30, 2011. That sum is roughly 1% or just over $1 million lower than the current operating budget that included $4.3 million federal stimulus funds.

The final schematic plan for the Adams Green – a project that would expand public space along Hancock Street in front of City Hall and United First Parish Church as well as alter the traffic pattern through the heart of downtown Quincy – was unveiled at a public presentation at the Crane Public Library.

JULY

Mayor Thomas Koch said that he is "feeling confident" that an agreement can be reached to purchase the St. Ann's School as part of the site for a new Central Middle School in a move that could save millions of dollars in land costs for the long-planned school.

Koch met quietly with Parish leaders and those meetings resulted in a renewed interest by the Church to sell the school property. Koch said he remains adamant that the sale will only go forward if the Church agrees to it, and there will not be an eminent domain taking.

A 184-year-old letter penned by John Quincy Adams two months after his father's death and discovered in the basement of City Hall in April was back in Quincy after a trip to a Vermont-based preservationist, prompting officials to begin planning for full public display of the historic document this summer.

"This letter is an invaluable part of our history as a City and as a community, and it is reassuring to know that it is now fully preserved and protected for future generations," said Mayor Thomas Koch. "We are brainstorming ideas now on the most appropriate public display."

Quincy District Court will be on the cutting edge of the latest news reporting technology starting in September, thanks to John Davidow, Executive Editor of WBUR.org. Davidow's project, "Order in the Court 2.0" is aimed at bringing digital reporting systems to courthouses was recently awarded a $250,000 Knight News Challenge grant. The goal is to open court proceedings to the public and create a technology model for all courts.

Destruction crews struck the first blow to the exterior of Quincy Fair Mall when a Happy Nappy crane removed the overhead walkway between the Ross Parking Garage and the rear of the building. The mall demolition project is on schedule and should be completed by Aug. 15. The property is located at 1563-1597 Hancock St.

Quincy ranked 16th among the worst cities for pedestrian and bicycle accidents in the state, according to a six-year study cited by Cathy Buckley of the Boston Region Metropolitan Planning Organization (MPO).

Mayor Thomas Koch announced a sweeping $7 million, two-year project to replace every residential water meter in Quincy in a move that will end estimated charges, fluctuating bills, and unmetered water usage.

Monies for a full-time city energy manager, an energy-efficient traffic light system and the distribution of large recycling bins to residents were just part of the ambitious $881,000 program spelled out at City Hall.

CRANE REMOVES the walkway from Ross Parking Garage to the Quincy Fair Mall building around 3 a.m. on a Tuesday morning in mid-July. The materials were loaded onto flatbed trailers and all but one cement column were removed from the site shortly thereafter. City Clerk Joseph Shea said the era of 'postcard posting' was over for city commissions and committees who skirted the state's Open Meeting Law by sending skimpy notice of meeting agendas. The Attorney General's office will enforce the state's regulations requiring full public disclosure of agendas 48 hours before the meeting of every public body, as well as detailed minutes of every meeting.

Local and state dignitaries were on hand at the United Fire Parish Church as the presidential wreath was laid on John Quincy Adams' tomb honoring the 243rd birthday anniversary of the sixth president of the United States. Senator Scott Brown, making his first public appearance in Quincy since being elected to fill the void left by Ted Kennedy's passing, told the nearly 400 people who packed the pews that he was "humbled" to be elected to the same position that Adams held before becoming president in 1825.

Congressman William Delahunt called the groundbreaking at Squantum Point Pier the first "baby step" toward the vision of commuter transit and tourist ferry service from that pier along the Cultural Coast to and from Boston, Salem and Provincetown.

Bob and Gerry Barker prepared to close their Quincy Typewriter Service on Maple Street after 78 years in Quincy Center. The father and son team boxed up ink typewriter ribbons of all brands and adding machine ribbons.

Mayor Thomas Koch and Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi attended the grand-opening ceremony at Fore River Fishing, a landmark bait and tackle shop on Washington Street. In February, water pipes burst and flooded the retail outlet, forcing the owner to close and refurbish the store.

Jake Tavakoli completed his 1,717-mile biking trek from Sarasota, FL, to Quincy. The 2004 Quincy High graduate rode to raise money for Shelter Box, a non-profit organization dedicated to providing shelter to survivors of natural disasters worldwide.

Six pedestrian traveling streets in the Wollaston-Montclair areas were robbed in separate incidents , according to police reports that included an attack on a 65-year-old man on Beale Street shortly after midnight on July 26.

Planning Director Dennis E. Harrington, Community Development Director Nancy Callanan, and Principal Planner Sean Glennon from the city's Department of Planning and Community Development recently won the 2010 Hometown Video Award under the category of "Community Events" from the Alliance for Community Media (AGM).

AUGUST

Demolition contractors working to tear down the Quincy Fair Mall building discovered additional asbestos in the interior of the building that will slow down the project for two weeks while the material is removed safely.

Mayor Thomas Koch and Police Chief Paul Keenan announced they would host a community meeting on a recent rash of unarmed robberies apparently targeting MBTA commuters walking home.

Six similar incidents have been reported to police in the last six weeks, all involving an unarmed robber who has made off with purses, wallets and cell phones after confronting people walking from the Wollaston MBTA Station between 11 p.m. and 12:30 a.m.

Local legislators expressed their disappointment in Gov. Deval Patrick's decision not to support the gaming bill that would provide between 12,000-15,000 new jobs and bring in approximately $400 million to the Commonwealth annually. The bill was overwhelmingly approved by the legislature and endorsed by nearly three quarters of Massachusetts's lawmakers.

Mayor Thomas Koch said he expects decisions will be made in the next month or two on two school buildings: the site for a new Central Middle School and the future of the former Quincy High School Building.

Church leaders and parishioners of St. Ann's Church of Wollaston must first decide whether the city can buy the former St. Ann's School, which could then be used for a new Central Middle School.

Father Bill's 16th Annual Food Fest raised $275,000 for sheltering the homeless. More than 1,100 people attended the event to sample food and beverages from 36 restaurants and beverage vendors, primarily from the South Shore.

Roadblocks to secure a state tax credit will not stop Boston Scientific from a $55 million expansion of its North Quincy headquarters or the local incentives used to secure the firm's long-term commitment to Quincy, Mayor Thomas Koch said.

Koch and the Quincy City Council reached an agreement in June that will slow the rate of property tax increases at Boston Scientific's 800,000-square foot waterfront facility in return for the company's $30 million investment in its building and $25 million for new robotic technology.

Groundbreaking was held at the Manet Community Health Center for expansion that will allow taking on 1,200 more additional patients a year. Manet was awarded $719,140 in federal funding for the North Quincy practice site through the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act and $194,060 from the city of Quincy, Community Development Block Grant, and US Dept. of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) Programs. The total cost exceeds $1 million. Manet will be offering Naming Opportunities in the fall to help close the gap of $250,000 needed to complete the project.

City officials said it will be a painstaking process to remove asbestos-bearing material in the Quincy Fair Mall and it will set back demolition of the building by more than a month, but it will not delay the construction of Quincy Center Concourse.

City Councillors blasted utility company contractors who recently disfigured and denuded countless trees across the city without regard to the local landscape or health of the trees.

The city entered into a specific three-year contract with its fire chief that Mayor Thomas Koch says will provide a new measure of "transparency and accountability."

The contract will see Fire Chief Joseph Barron earn a salary of $151,000 that eliminates all roll-ins and other pay bumps that have traditionally been part of the packages earned by fire chiefs. The salary is about $10,000 less than what the chief would have been paid had he remained a deputy chief.

The suspected "Craiglist" killer, Philip Markoff, who lived in Quincy's Highpoint apartments, committed suicide in his cell at Boston's Nashua Street jail.

City Solicitor James Timmins said that he and the Quincy College attorneys would announce their decision on the legality of the current Board of Governors and their June 14 vote for president.

The 11-member board has been trying unsuccessfully to move forward since that vote, which has been challenged by three members who have cited the college's charter requirements for residency.

Quincy businessman Mark Bertman resigned from the Quincy College Board of Governors through a letter citing the dissension and the current impasse immobilizing the board.

Faxon Park will officially cover some 80 acres of open space in the near future as the city is about to purchase the 2.9-acre lot linking the original 57-acre Faxon Park to the city's 13-acre Avalon estates parcel and adjoining open space of some 15 acres, according to City Solicitor Jim Timmons.

A crowd of 675 was on hand for the much anticipated, ribbon-cutting ceremony and dedication of the $126 million, 330,000-square-foot Quincy High School. Among those who took place in the ribbon cutting were Mayor Thomas Koch, State Treasurer Tim Cahill, School Superintendent Dr. Richard DeCristofaro, School Committee Chairwoman Anne Mahoney, Massachusetts School Building Authority Executive Director Katherine Craven, State Rep. Ron Mariano, City Council President Kevin Coughlin and QHS Principal Frank Santoro.

SEPTEMBER

Quincy College's 4,000 students began classes unaffected by sweeping changes underway at the top. For the students, President Sue Harris was still at the helm, their classes were running smoothly and changes on the nameplates at the Board of Governors didn't affect them.

Health Commissioner Drew Scheele said that the city's beaches offered clean water until last week's four-day rainfall but that wasn't the case at Wollaston Beach. "This has been a fantastic summer," said Scheele of bacteria counts at the city's 13 beaches where only Rhoda Beach in Houghs Neck was closed.

In his annual back to school message, School Superintendent Dr. Richard DeCristofaro said the public schools summer learning and enrichment program were a huge success, serving nearly 1,200 students. He also expressed excitement over the new, 330,000-square-foot Quincy High School. "As we are proud of this beautiful building, we are also thankful for the support from Mayor Koch the school committee, the city council, the Quincy High School Building Committee, the Massachusetts School Building Authority and many city departmental staff," said DeCristofaro.

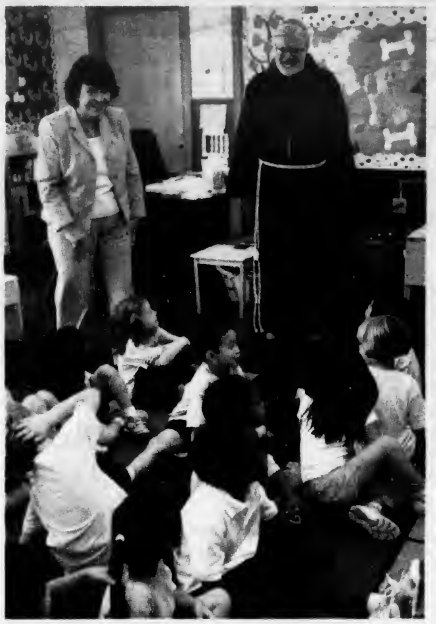
The Quincy City Schools implemented a transportation fee for the first time. The Transportation User Fee is applicable for Grades K-5 and has been used by several local cities and towns for a number of years.

Hurricane Earl didn't conjure up fierce images of Mother Nature's rage and fury. Earl, whose winds had reached speeds of 145 miles per hour moving up the eastern seaboard, was downgraded to a tropical storm with little more than rain when it blew in.

Parishioners at Star of the Sea Church were shocked when the Archdiocese's Boston Regional Bishop John Dooher announced the church would be closed. However, the Friends of Star of the Sea said their campaign to keep the church open is far from over with options at the Vatican and in civil court still available.

Quincy College Presidential choice Philip Conroy Jr., withdrew as a candidate for president after enduring weeks of controversy by board members over his election as top choice. In his letter, Conroy cited his love of Quincy where he grew up as well as his sadness and disappointment in declining the position.

Quincy joined the more than 44 municipalities in the state, which adopted stringent energy regulations for builders called the "Stretch Code." City Council voted 6-3 on the issue recommended by Mayor Thomas Koch. Through that vote, the city also became eligible for a cut of an $8 million incentive offered to cities and towns earning the "green community" label.



In the Democratic state primary, Senator Michael Morrissey secured the Democratic nomination for Norfolk County District Attorney. Morrissey defeated State Rep. Joseph Driscoll of Braintree and Milton attorney Michael Chinman.

City Councillor John Keenan defeated State Rep. Arthur Stephen Tobin for the Democratic nomination for State Senate.

In the Democratic contest for State Representative, Tackey Chan secured his party's nomination. The election turnout in Quincy was lighter than expected with only 28.43 percent of the city's 54,519 registered voters going to the polls.

A field of 842 runners competed in the 3rd Annual Officer Jamie Cochrane 10K/5K Memorial Road Race. Ashley Jordan of Hanover captured her third division title in the 20-29 group with her time of 45:05.

Library Director Ann McLaughlin announced she would retire at the end of January after serving 40 years in the city's library system. During her 17 years leading the Thomas Crane Public Library, McLaughlin oversaw the renovation and expansion of the architectural marvel.

WELCOME TO QUINCY – Principal Catherine Cameron and Cardinal Sean O'Malley visit the pre-school class of teacher Joan Dunn at the Quincy Catholic Academy, the city's newest parochial school. O'Malley celebrated the new academy's first Mass on Sept. 15 at the Sacred Heart Church and visited a number of the classrooms afterward.

The city's two hotels and one motel experienced more business this year, according to City Auditor Susan O'Connor. O'Connor told city councillors that hotel managers reported occupancy increases ranging from four percent to 12% so far this year over last year's occupancy.

A Quincy institution, O'Brien's Bakery, relocated to 11 Vernon St. in South Quincy in a building that once served as a dry cleaner. Owner Brian Jackle spent two years searching for a new location.

With more potential to serve senior citizens over the years than from its smaller location on Adams Street in Quincy, the William B. Rice Eventide home will be expanding its services at the SouthField on the former South Weymouth Naval Air Station sometime in 2013.

Cardinal Sean O'Malley celebrated the first Mass of the year at the new Quincy Catholic Academy. More than 400 students and members of the faculty were on-hand for the historic event.

Houghs Neck Congregational Church bid a fond farewell to its former longtime minister Rev. M. Alicia Corea. Corea, who along with her husband, the late Rev. Peter Corea, served as the church's co-ministers for more than 50 years.

PASTOR JOHN CASTRICUM presents Rev. M. Alicia Corea with a plaque dedicating the church's hall as "Rev. M. Alicia Corea Fellowship Hall" at a ceremony in September.

Demolition work at the Quincy Fair Mall resumed and asbestos-bearing material was removed. The remainder of the building was expected to be torn down to make way for the Quincy Center Concourse within the next two months.

The Quincy College Board elected a new chairman, reviewed finances, enrollment, staff, accrediting and safety issues and discussed a strategy and timetable for selecting a new president or an interim president. The board members elected as chairman William Grindlay of Quincy who has served nine years as a governor.

OCTOBER

Mayor Thomas Koch sought city council approval of a billion dollar overhaul of Quincy Center through a private-public partnership that he said will revitalize the heart of the city, boost the tax base by millions, employ 4,000 construction workers, offer over 1,000 permanent jobs, construct some 750 lofts and condominiums, enhance the lives of all residents and overhaul the city's aging infrastructure.

Department of Public Works Commissioner Lawrence Prendeville told city councilors that asbestos found during the demolition of the Quincy Fair Mall was monitored daily and shipped to Ohio. The demolition phase of the project was expected to be completed somewhere around Nov. 1.

A resolution that would require notification to licensed, early education and after-school programs of public school lockdowns was introduced to the city council. The resolution was drafted in the wake of a February incident near North Quincy High School where a 17-year-old boy was shot by a Dorchester teen on Hunt Street. There are three day-care programs in the area where the shooting took place.

City councillors voted unanimously to request city department heads to "present a strategy" for addressing those abandoned properties in Quincy that were ineligible or not considered for the Commonwealth's Abandoned Housing Initiative (AHI). The request, introduced by Ward 5 City Councillor Doug Gutro, requested the Director of Inspectional Service, Health Director and Fire Chief to appear before the Ordinance Committee of the Quincy City Council within 45 days to provide an update on properties considered for the Abandoned Property Initiatives, as well as providing a timetable for action on the properties.

Tim Cahill wasted little time in reassuring his supporters that he was still very much in the Gubernatorial race, just hours after running mate Paul Loscocco ended his bid for lieutenant governor to instead back Republican candidate Charlie Baker.

Mayor Thomas Koch said the legal and financial team hired by the city to write a $1.3 billion Quincy Center development agreement is "quite literally the best in the business and very much looking forward to answering every and any questions" when the city council begins its deliberations on the deal.

The Quincy Fair Mall was torn down to make way for the final phase of the Quincy Center Concourse, and contractors expected the remaining demolition work to be completed by the end of this month.

Crews from Vinagro Corp. worked an overnight shift to tear down the Hancock Street façade and four large front-facing towers of the building, a job that was delayed this summer after previously undiscovered asbestos-containing material was found in portions of the building.

Over 200 people gathered for ceremonies marking the rededication of a park in South Quincy, formerly a playground that had been named for Lance/Cpl Paul Vincent Grasso in 1972. The Paul Vincent Grasso Memorial Park is located at Taber and Columbia Streets.

Mayor Thomas Koch authorized funding for the city council to hire independent experts to review the proposed $1.3 billion Quincy Center revitalization project.

After 32 plus years of service in the Quincy Fire Department, including the past 16 years in Fire Prevention, Captain Tom Lyons announced he will officially retire from department duties on October 31.

School Superintendent Richard DeCristofaro said the Lynnfield Middle School would work as a solid prototype for the new Central Middle School. DeCristofaro praised the building design that includes "wonderful spaces, a tremendous auditorium and gymnasium" and the school offers ideal space for team teaching. "We think it's a great model for our school," DeCristofaro said.

Muslims, Jews, Christians Buddhists and a host of other faiths stood with civic and business leaders and prayed for their community at Quincy's first Prayer Breakfast. Sponsored by Quincy Mayor Thomas Koch, the event featured a medley of uplifting songs and prayers from over a dozen local houses of worship. The proceeds from the Prayer Breakfast benefited the programs of Interfaith Social Services.

City and state officials reversed their ban on Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi's participation in the review and votes on the Quincy Center Revitalization project. Raymond said he planned to appeal the remaining ban prohibiting him from reviewing and voting on renewal plans for Town Brook.

The Quincy High volleyball team battled back from a 2-0 deficit to North Quincy and reeled off three straight victories to defeat the Red Raiders 3-2 in the first sporting event held in the new Quincy High gymnasium.

NOVEMBER

Three Quincy political veterans and one first-time candidate were big local winners in the state election as Democratic candidates pulled off impressive victories for open local legislative seats and for two offices in county government. The winners were Michael Morrissey, Norfolk County district attorney; Michael Bellotti, Norfolk County sheriff; John Keenan, State Senate – Norfolk/Plymouth District and Tackey Chan, state representative, 2nd Norfolk District.

Independent Tim Cahill, a former city councillor and current state treasurer, finished a distant third in the race for governor. The election was also history making in Quincy, as Democrat Tackey Chan became the first Asian American in Quincy to be elected to public office.

In one of his final public appearances as congressman, William Delahunt told an audience of more than 500, on hand for the Presidential Wreath-Laying Ceremony on the occasion of John Adams' 275th Birthday Anniversary at the United First Parish Church, that both of the city's first sons had a "profound " influence on his career in public service.

"His legacy is more than just the achievements he made to American democracy," Delahunt said. "Adams gave the Declaration of Independence its voice."

Supporters of the landmark Wollaston Theater still hoped for a miracle on Beale Street, but that hope appeared dim as the key players officially withdrew from the revival project in recent weeks.

Both Mayor Thomas Koch and Jeffrey Levien, Senior Director for Street-Works Development, LLC, cited multi-million dollar estimates for repairs and renovations in official statements dooming their plans.

Street-Works officials outlined a plan that would redirect sections of Town Brook underground so it runs parallel to the Concourse and it "daylights" 100 feet of the brook near the current site of the American Legion Post #95 at 27 Revere Road. Daylighting sections of Town Brook through Quincy Center has been considered an attractive feature of the Quincy Center Revitalization project.

Ward 1 City Counillor Margaret LaForest expressed worries the abutting neighbors had concerning possible flooding at the location of the long-awaited track for the city. The track was designated by Mayor Thomas Koch to be built on the grounds of the new high school where Coddington Street intersects the Southern Artery. The track was on schedule to be completed sometime next spring.

Joseph C. Jackson, Jr., was promoted as a Deputy Fire Chief by Mayor Thomas Koch, a position his father held in the department for 14 years. "There's been a Joseph Jackson protecting the citizens of Quincy as a firefighter for the last 60 years, and both built reputations of leadership, respect among their peers, and a deep commitment to the City," said Mayor Koch. "Deputy Jackson will be an invaluable asset to Chief Barron's leadership team."

THE NORTH QUINCY RED RAIDERS made it two wins in a row over Quincy High School in the 78th annual City Football Championship on Thanksgiving Day. North Quincy, behind two touchdowns and an interception by senior Mike Curran, defeated Quincy, 13-6.

JAMIE COCHRANE Road Race float was the grand prize winner in the non-commercial float category in the 58th annual Quincy Christmas Festival Parade held Nov. 28. The float received the grand prize: the Fr. Thomas Tierney Trophy and a cash award of $1,500.

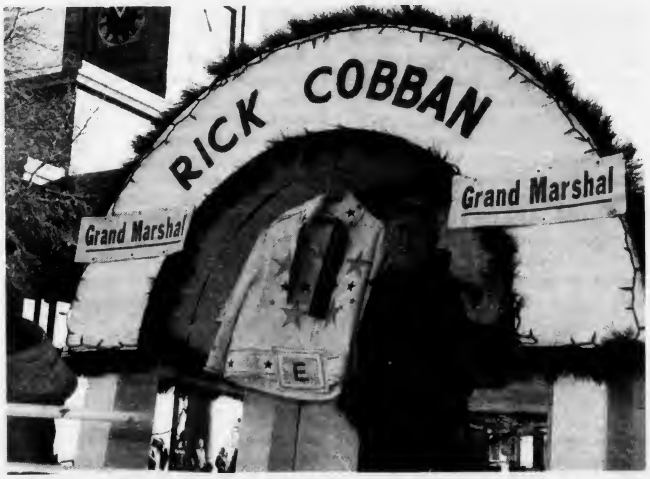
The North Quincy Red Raiders captured the MIAA Central-East Division 1 sectional volleyball title with a 3-2 match victory over Quincy High School before a frenzied crowd.

Despite a rebuff by the state's Department of Environmental Protection (DEP), Mayor Thomas Koch said that the city would double up efforts to develop the waterfront parcel at Town River abutting the Souther Tide Mill for both commercial and recreational use.

Bonnethead Sharks, Cownose Rays and Kemp's-Ridley Sea Turtles thrived at the $3.7 million, state-of-the-art holding area at the Fore River Shipyard. The facility includes high tech filters, pumps and water tanks that can hold dozens of various types of sea life.

The groundbreaking ceremony was held for a 14,000-square foot, two-story medical facility, adjacent to the Son's Of Italy, on Quarry Street.

The guest speaker at the city's Veterans Day Ceremony, Erik Joseph Filipe, a member of the 747th Military Police Company of the Massachusetts Army National Guard, stressed the importance of the sacrifices of all veterans. "Remember and honor today, today's veterans that are out there serving," said Filipe. "They serve so you can be safe here and have your own freedom to come here today."



City councillors discussed stricter protections for the city and oversight by the council to be written into the Land Disposition Agreement or LDA that spells out the contract between the city and the redeveloper.

North Quincy's state championship dreams were dashed when the Red Raiders fell to a tough Lincoln-Sudbury team 3-1 in the Div. 1 state semifinals.

Quincy native Rick Cobban, the longtime stilt man in the Quincy Christmas Festival Parade, rode on the back of a float honoring him as this year's grand marshal. Cobban retired from walking the three-mile route on stilts after 25 years.

Mike Curran rushed for 102 yards on seven carries to pace North Quincy to a 13-6 victory over Quincy in the 78th annual Thanksgiving Day showdown. Curran intercepted a Jalen Green pass attempt with 13 seconds remaining to thwart a Presidents' drive downfield.

RICK COBBAN, a Quincy native and longtime stilt man in the Quincy Christmas Festival Parade, was honored as the grand marshal of this year's parade. Cobban rode the 3-mile parade route in style (and comfort) instead of 6-foot stilts Sunday: on the back of a float. Cobban retired from walking the route on stilts – as he had for 25 years – after the 2009 parade.

NFPA Offers Reminders For Keeping Fire-Safe

The National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) offers reminders to keep folks fire-safe as they wind down the holiday season. Roughly one-third of home fires and home fire deaths occur in December, January and February, according to Quincy-based NFPA.

Although Christmas tree fires are uncommon, when they do occur, they are often serious; one out of every 21 reported Christmas tree fires results in a fatality. One-third of Christmas tree fires occurred in January.

"The longer Christmas trees are in the home, the more they dry out and increasingly become fire hazards," says Lorraine Carli, NFPA's vice president of communications. "Removing the tree from your home and properly disposing of it as soon as possible will minimize the risk of a treasured holiday season becoming a tragic one."

Audio available (http://traffic.libsyn.com/nfpa/winter_safety_holiday_decorations_final.mp3).

Dried-out trees should not be left in the home or garage, or placed outside against the home. Carli recommends checking with your local community to find a recycling program. Also, remove outdoor holiday lights.

As you unplug and store electric holiday decorations, remember that that practicing safety now can keep decorations in working condition and prevent potential hazards from occurring next year. Following are safety tips that can be used when putting away seasonal decorations:

• To unplug electric decorations, use the gripping area provided on the plugs. Never pull the cord to unplug a device from electrical outlets. Doing so can harm the cord's wire and insulation and even lead to an electrical shock or fire.

• As you're putting away electrical light strings, take time to inspect each for damage. Throw out light sets if they have loose connections, broken sockets or cracked or bare wires.

• Do not place a damaged set of lights back into the storage box for next year's use.

• Wrap each set of lights and put them in individual plastic bags, or wrap the lights around a piece of cardboard.

• Store electrical decorations in a dry place where they cannot be damaged by water or dampness. Also, keep them away from children and pets.

More than half of U.S. home heating fires happen in December, January and February, according to NFPA. Heating equipment was involved in an estimated 66,100 reported home structure fires in 2008, causing 480 civilian deaths, 1,660 civilian injuries, and $1.1 billion in direct property damage. Learn more about heating safety at http://www.nfpa.org/heating.

NFPA and the U.S. Fire Administration (USFA) are working together to remind everyone that home fires are more prevalent in winter than in any other season.

For more information about the organizations' joint safety campaign, "Put a Freeze on Winter Fires", visit http://www.nfpa.org/winter.

NFPA is a worldwide leader in providing fire, electrical, building, and life safety to the public since 1896.The mission of the international nonprofit organization is to reduce the worldwide burden of fire and other hazards on the quality of life by providing and advocating consensus codes and standards, research, training, and education. Darren Griffin New Jack Conway Quincy Agent

DARREN GRIFFIN

Darren Griffin, a former auditor for State Street Bank, recently returned to the Jack Conway Real Estate Company as an agent in the firm's Quincy office.

Griffin had worked for the company's Quincy office from 2000-2004 before moving to Somerville with his wife Jean, a nurse at Beth Israel Deaconess Hospital.

"Darren's keen knowledge of finances and real estate will be a huge asset to our office," said Conway Quincy Manager Helen Shiner. "He is motivated, energetic and eager to be successful for himself and his customers,"

Griffin attended Archbishop Williams High School in Braintree and Bridgewater State College where he earned a bachelor's degree in business management. He began his career as an auditor at State Street Corp. and then decided to enter real estate and join the ranks of Conway Country.

For more information or to contact Griffin, call 617-479-1500.

Thank You from FLAVIN & FLAVIN

Since 1925, citizens of Quincy and the surrounding cities and towns have been familiar with the Flavin & Flavin Real Estate and Insurance Company and its distinctive golden yellow real estate signs. For three generations, Flavin & Flavin has been a family-owned and family-run business.

As Flavin & Flavin celebrates its 85th holiday season, the owners and staff send a heartfelt thank you to all who have appreciated the company's attention to real estate and insurance detail and have been loyal customers and clients for many years. Flavin & Flavin looks forward to continuing long-term relationships, to serving new home sellers and buyers, and to meeting new insurance needs in the coming year.

The Flavin & Flavin Company wears two hats: real estate and insurance. Experienced, full-time Realtors take great pride in guiding home sellers and buyers through a transaction to a successful closing. On the insurance side, a knowledgeable staff has the experience and training to meet a variety of insurance needs and offers competitive discounts.

Business success is evidenced in the numerous referrals received by Flavin & Flavin from satisfied home sellers and buyers, and insurance clients. These referrals are greatly appreciated as a vote of confidence.

As 2010 comes to a close, Flavin & Flavin owners and staff are looking forward to a new year filled with good will for all. Best Wishes for a very Happy Holiday Season.

THINK BEFORE YOU DRINK
- FEES and INCARCERATION

The holiday season is in full swing and there are many occasions to consume alcoholic beverages. The consequences for drunk driving can be extraordinary. Consider the estimated costs for a drunk driving conviction:

- Towing - $100 • Car storage per day - $30
- Bail fee – $40 (min) • Defense attorney fee – $5,000
- Minimum fine – $500 • Victim's Trust Fund – $50
- Loss of two days work – $250
- Victim's witness fee – $35
- License reinstatement – $300
- Head injury surcharge - $125
- Driver alcohol education – $600
- Insurance increase (3 years) – $5,000
- Court Costs - $250 • Probation fee – $360
- Personal embarrassment – priceless
- Public humiliation – priceless

TOTAL: minimum $13,000

There is also the possibility of being incarcerated for "not more than 2 1/2 years House of Correction," for the first offense. There are significant increases for each additional offense. Your licensed will be suspected for 180 days for failure to take the Breathalyzer test. This can be added to the one-year license suspension for the conviction. There are circumstances that would bring the cost considerably higher.

Remember, these numbers reflect the basic drunk driving charge. If there is an accident where someone is injured or killed, the penalties are much stiffer.

A Job Well Done

On Monday, Dec. 20, at approximately 6 p.m., Officers Dan Francis and William Lanergan were dispatched to Holmes Street after a caller reported that he had people in his apartment who were "going to hurt him." The officers met with the caller down the street from his apartment.

LT. DAN MINTON

The caller, who was with the 53-yaer-old male victim, said he called the police on behalf of his friend/victim because there were two males causing problems for the victim. The victim, who was visibly upset and shaking, was reluctant to speak, then gradually told his story.

He said that approximately two weeks ago (later determined to be Dec. 8 at 3:30 p.m.) he heard a knock on his door. He opened the door and observed two males known to him. The victim said the suspects forced their way into his apartment and immediately began to punch and kick him. After the victim suffered bruises and cuts, the suspects then informed the victim that they were going to "be staying in the apartment for a while."

The victim was told that he was not to contact the police or anyone else that they were staying in his apartment or they would kill him. The suspects took his wallet, cellphone and room keys. The victim appeared to be very frightened and when asked why he did not go to the police sooner, he stated he was afraid the two suspects would kill him.

The victim said he confidentially went to his friend seeking advice, and he called the police. The victim then added that the suspects kicked and punched him at least 15 different times over the course of the two weeks, telling him "at least 100 times that they would kill me if I called the police."

Sgt. James McNeil arrived on scene and after conferring with the officers, they went to the apartment door and could hear people talking and moving inside the room. Officer Lanergan knocked on the door and stated, "Quincy Police" several times but did not get a response. At one point, the officers heard people laughing inside and a can of carbonized beverage open.

Sgt. McNeil advised whoever was inside that if the door were not opened in the next minute, it would be forced open. Other than silence, there was no response. The victim was unsure if the two suspects were armed. Sgt. McNeil then kicked in the door and the officers entered the unit. With weapons drawn, the two males were ordered to the ground. Both suspects were immediately handcuffed, given their Miranda rights and questioned.

Suspect #1 stated he was allowed to stay in the apartment by a "friend named Mike," adding that he had the keys to the apartment on his key ring. Both suspects claimed they were in the shower and did not hear multiple knocks on the door or the officers yelling. Both suspects were transported to the station and charged with burglary – armed assault on a occupant (striking the victim with a dangerous weapon, shod foot), assault and battery with a dangerous weapon (shod foot), intimidation of a witness, and armed assault with intent to rob.

Suspect #1, a 29-year-old Brockton resident, is on probation and has 17 charges on his record, including drug, larceny and assault and battery offenses. In addition to the previously mentioned charges, suspect #2 has two outstanding default warrants from Quincy District Court and Brighton District Court.

Suspect #2, a 23-year-old Hanover resident, has six criminal offenses on his record, including larceny and drug charges. The victim said that on numerous occasions he heard both suspects talking on the phone and arranging to sell cocaine.

North Played Milton Wed. Night In Championship Game; Quincy Played King Philip Tuesday

Red Raiders Ice Presidents, 4-3, In The Danny Sullivan Memorial Tournament

By SEAN BRENNAN

It may have been cold outside of the Quincy Youth Arena Monday night, but inside, the North Quincy Red Raiders and the Quincy Presidents were heating things up on the ice.

The second semifinal game of the first annual Danny Sullivan Memorial Tournament pitted North Quincy and Quincy against each other in the first of three games this season between the two high schools.

The Red Raiders, behind two goals from senior captain Brendan Glynn (five goals in four games), raced out to a commanding 4-1 third period lead only to watch as Quincy sophomore Shawn Grady plotted two tallies minutes apart in the final four minutes of the third period. North Quincy hung on despite a late-game breakaway attempt from Quincy senior captain Derek Murphy, a shot that was blocked away by Red Raider goaltender James Dunn (21 saves).

"The whole team is contributing right now," said NQHS head coach Matt Gibbons on Tuesday. "We are getting better and better every day. The team has been playing well through the first four games and that is a testament to these kids. They come to practice ready to work and it is paying off in games."

The Red Raiders played Milton High School last night (Wednesday) in the championship game. The Wildcats rolled over King Philip HS, 7-1, in the first semifinal game held Monday.

North Quincy (3-0-1) came into the holiday tournament streaking. The team had opened the season with a 2-1 Patriot League win over Hanover HS on Dec. 15, followed with a 0-0 tie against league foe Pembroke HS on Dec. 18 and a 5-1 non-league victory over Everett HS on Dec. 22.

The team's hot start carried over against rival Quincy.

Just two minutes into the opening period, North Quincy junior Michael Adduci, a defenseman, scored on a slap shot that found its way by Quincy goalie Robby Lawton giving the Red Raiders a 1-0 advantage early.

"Our offense starts with our defense," Gibbons added. "When teams want to leave our defensemen open they have the opportunity to shoot the puck through traffic and that allows our forwards the chance to collect rebounds. Mike just made a great shot and it found the back of the net."

The Presidents (1-1-2) recovered quickly from the Adduci strike with a goal of their own minutes later. Senior forward and team captain Derek Murphy snapped off a beautiful shot from the high slot beating North's James Dunn (21 saves) to even the game at 1-1 just six minutes into the first period.

With the contest tied at 1-1, it was a fresh face that gave the Red Raiders its lead back. At 6:45 of the first period, North Quincy freshman forward Robbie Cameron retrieved the puck, raced up the left side of the ice and snuck a goal past Lawton, giving his team a 2-1 lead.

"Robbie played great against Quincy," said Gibbons about his freshman forward. "He was sick all week but really came through for us. We can't rely on our top line all the time and he provided us with a spark there. He is a hard worker."

Four minutes later it was Brendan Glynn time, once again. The super senior, after a face-off win, found the rubber on his stick blade and rifled it past Lawton for his only goal of the period. After the first period, the Red Raiders led the Presidents, 3-1.

Up 3-1, Glynn added to his team's advantage in the second period. He forced a Quincy turnover in the neutral zone, and maneuvered around a President defender before putting the puck past Quincy's Justin Keenan (29 saves) to put North Quincy up 4-1; Glynn's second goal proved to be the game-winner.

"Brendan has really stepped up to the task this season," said Gibbons. "We can't count on him to carry us every game, but we do. This season he is controlling his emotions better. He is just an excitable kid but he has done a real good job so far.

"He knows most teams key on him. He seems to win every face-off, he is doing a good job back-checking and he is impressing the coaching staff with his play."

Seemingly in control the Red Raiders maintained its three-goal lead deep into the third period. But Quincy would not go quietly. With just less than four minutes left in regulation, sophomore forward Shawn Grady cut the deficit to 4-2 with a full-strength goal. Grady silenced the North Quincy supporters and fired up the Quincy crowd with a power play tally with 1:30 left on the game clock.

Trailing 4-3, the Presidents mounted one final scoring opportunity in the final seconds. Murphy forced a turnover and raced down the ice all alone with just Dunn to beat. His shot was initially deflected by the North Quincy net minder before clanking off the post and into the far corner.

"At the five minute mark and up 4-1, the team seemed to be set that the game was over," stated Gibbons. "That falls on the coaching staff. We need to close out games better, but behind the play of James Dunn we got it done.

"That was a great save he made on Derek Murphy. Murphy is a special player, it was a huge save on a breakaway."

The victory assured North Quincy of a spot in the tournament's championship game Wednesday night against Milton. Quincy played in the consolation game on Tuesday evening versus King Philip.

The Red Raiders play next on Jan. 5 against Silver Lake HS (at Pembroke) before hosting Scituate HS at the QYA on Jan. 8 at 7:50 p.m.

"After the Milton game we will take some time to prepare for these league games," said Gibbons. "The season is just getting started, but we thought we would have a special season this year. The kids are practicing and playing hard and there have been no issues outside of the ice."

Notes: The Presidents open 2011 with consecutive home games versus Natick HS (Jan. 1, 6:40 p.m.) and against Whitman-Hanson HS on Jan. 5 (7 p.m.). Quincy is scheduled to travel to Triton Regional HS on Jan. 8 before playing at Oliver Ames HS on Jan. 10... North Quincy defeated Hanover, 2-1, on Dec. 15 behind goals from sophomore Rudy Tryon and Brendan Glynn (shorthanded). Assists on Tryon's goal went to Mike Nelson and Joe Kowlski while Tim Marks and Jimmy Scribi earned helpers on Glynn's tally. Goalie James Dunn earned the shutout in North's 0-0 tie with Pembroke on Dec. 22.

THE RED RAIDERS celebrate an early goal versus Quincy. North Quincy improved to 3-0-1 following their 4-3 victory over Quincy on Monday night at the QYA. More photos on page 26.

Kendra Johnston Sets Two School Records In Loss To Norwell High School

Senior captain Kendra Johnston established two new program records but it was not enough as the Quincy/North Quincy girls swimming and diving team came up short, 90-86, to visiting Norwell on Tuesday, Dec. 21 at the Lincoln Hancock Pool.

The loss leveled Q/NQ's record to 1-1 overall; the team upset Hingham on Dec. 16 by a count of 90-85.

Johnston's event-winning times of 2:24.44 in the 200-yard individual medley and 1:06.40 in the 100-yard butterfly were new program standards. The latter time undercut Johnston's 2009 swims in the same event (100-yard butterfly) by nearly seven seconds.

Q/NQ touched the wall first in the opening 200-yard medley relay and expanded its lead to as many as ten points before Norwell's first, third, and fourth places in the meet seventh's event, the 100-yard freestyle, knotted the meet at 50-50. After the 200-yard freestyle relay, Norwell built a 12-point advantage, 71-59, which would not be eclipsed despite Q/NQ's victories in the meet's final three events.

Freshman McKayla Johnston captured two individual wins, swimming the 200-yard freestyle (2:11.34) and the 500-yard freestyle (5:46.97).

Junior Jessica O'Donovan took first in the 100-yard breaststroke with a time of 1:24.93 while senior Hillary Wong did the same in the 100-yard backstroke (1:14.78); junior captain Taryn Urbanus recorded the win with an accumulation of 248.25 in the one-meter dive.

Quincy/North Quincy will visit Randolph HS, Tuesday, Jan. 4 at 3:30 p.m.

Boys Swimming and Diving

The boys' team fell to visiting Norwell, 88-54, at the Lincoln Hancock Pool.

Senior captain James Lee finished strong for a third-place finish in the 50-yard freestyle (28.66). In twice the distance, Lee notched another bronze finish, swimming 1:04.72 in the 100-yard freestyle.

Freshman Elio Daci disrupted Norwell's one-two bid by clocking 2:49.35 in the 200-yard Individual Medley for second place. He was third in the 500-yard freestyle with a time of 6:22.75.

Future Meets

The combined Quincy-North Quincy swimming and diving team travel to Randolph HS on Jan. 4 before hosting Hanover HS on Jan. 7 at 3:30 p.m.

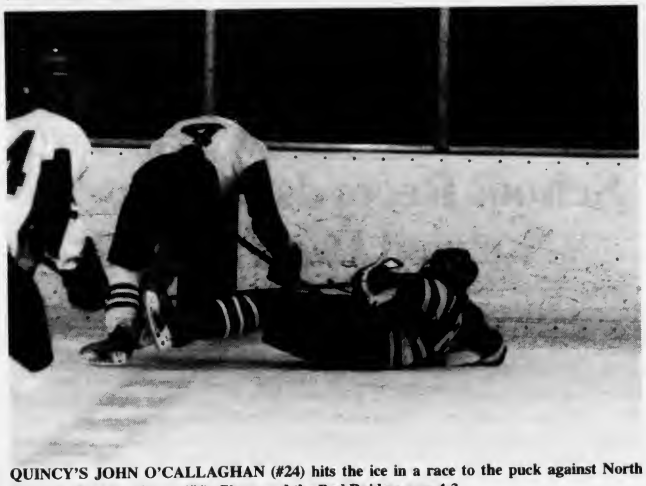
BRENDAN GLYNN battles for puck possession with QHS goalie Robby Lawton. Glynn and the Red Raiders won 4-3 over the Presidents in the semifinals of the Danny Sullivan Memorial Tournament at the Quincy Youth Arena. North Quincy faced Milton HS Wednesday night at 9 p.m. in the championship game.



SENIOR FORWARD Brendan Glynn (#4) gets ready to celebrate one of his two goals during Monday night's game between North Quincy and Quincy. The Red Raiders hung on to win, 4-3, despite a late third period rally from the Presidents.

QUINCY'S DEREK MURPHY (goal) has his breakaway attempt blocked by North Quincy's James Dunn in the waning seconds of regulation. Defenseman Michael Adduci (#19) gives chase from behind.

BRENDAN GLYNN (#4) watches his shot. Glynn led the Raiders with two goals, helping North Quincy to a 4-3 win over Quincy.

QUINCY'S JOHN O'CALLAGHAN (#24) hits the ice in a race to the puck against North Quincy's Brendan Glynn (#4). Glynn and the Red Raiders won 4-3.

QUINCY'S NICK SCIBILIO gets sandwiched between two Red Raiders during Monday night's game. The Presidents played in the Danny Sullivan Memorial Tournament's consolation game on Tuesday night.

QRD Announcements

Ice Skating Registration

The Quincy Recreation Department announced last week that they will conduct their popular low-cost nine-week program of Ice Skating Lessons with two classes on Wednesday afternoons at the Quincy Youth Arena.

This traditional Learn-to-Skate Program has for more than 30 years offered boys and girls age six through 14 the opportunity to learn the fundamentals of skating in a low-cost program with quality instruction.

Walk-in registration will take place at the main office of the QRD, One Merrymount Parkway, as long as openings exist. Online registration may be done on QuincyRec.com.

According to Barry J. Welch, Director of Recreation, the program will have two separate classes beginning at 3:10 and 4:05 p.m. on Wednesdays starting Jan.5, 2011. Instruction will, again, be under the supervision of Mrs. Anne Eagles, a United States Figure Skating Association Professional, and will utilize the basic program of instruction designed by the USFA. Both classes offer the same levels of instruction and run for eight weeks.

The cost of the program is $76 for the nine-week session, which includes instruction and ice time; participants need to provide their own skates, which may be figure, or hockey skates with one blade.

Registration is done on a first-come-first-serve basis. Additional information may be obtained by calling the QRD at 617-376-1394 or online at QuincyRec.com.

Ski and Snowboard Lessons

The Quincy Recreation Department and Barry J. Welch, Director of Recreation, announced this month that the QRD would conduct a program of ski or snowboard instruction to be conducted at the Blue Hill Ski Area (BHSA).

Registration may also be done online at QuincyRec.com and will continue at the QRD as long as openings exist; there is limited enrollment for this activity.

This program is open to Quincy youngsters age eight through high school and features a one-hour and thirty minute lesson for beginners to advanced use of the ski tow and transportation to and from the ski area.

The staff of the QRD supervises the transportation and the lesson instruction is provided by certified instructors of the Blue Hill Ski School.

This program will be conducted on Tuesdays, beginning Jan. 4, 2011 and will continue for five weekly sessions. The basic cost of this program is $170 and is payable at the time of the registration.

The Blue Hill Ski Area can provide rental equipment at an additional cost and arrangements for rental equipment will be done by the QRD at the time of registration. Five-week rental of ski/snowboards, boots and poles is $75; helmets can also be rented for $25.

The program leaves from the QRD office, One Merrymount Parkway, at 3:15 p.m. and returns at 6:30 p.m.

The BHSA is opening this year with increased snowmaking output and upgrades to its lighting systems; the always popular program should be even better with the Division of Recreation and Conservation committed to making the unique facility into a first-class ski center for the metropolitan area.

For more information, call the QRD at 617-376-1394.

Gym and Swim Program

The Quincy Recreation Department announced this month that they will host and supervise a Gym and Swim Recreation Program on Monday, Jan. 3, 2011, utilizing the facilities of the Lincoln Hancock Community School Gym and Pool.

The co-ed program for boys and girls in Grades 2-5 will be offered in two separate sessions. According to Barry J. Welch, Director of Recreation, "A.M." Gym and Swim will be conducted from 9 a.m. until 12 noon, while "P.M." Gym and Swim will be offered from 12 noon until 3 p.m.

Gym and Swim is a part of the department's Sports and More Programming. The participants will take part in supervised gym activities and organized games and will also have the optional opportunity to take part in recreational swimming that will be supervised by American Red Cross Lifeguards, who are members of the QRD staff.

The cost of the program is $15 for either session. The "A.M." and "P.M." sessions will offer the same program of activities. In order to plan for appropriate staffing levels, advanced registration is required and there will be limited enrollment.

Welch noted:

"This date is the last day of the school vacation period and we think that the timing is ideal for working parents and those who may have exhausted vacation week activities."

Registration began Friday, Dec.17, 2010 and can be done online at QuincyRec.com or in person at the main office of the QRD, One Merrymount Parkway, from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. on weekdays.

For additional information, call the QRD at 617-376-1394.

Lady Raiders Searching For First Victory Of The Season

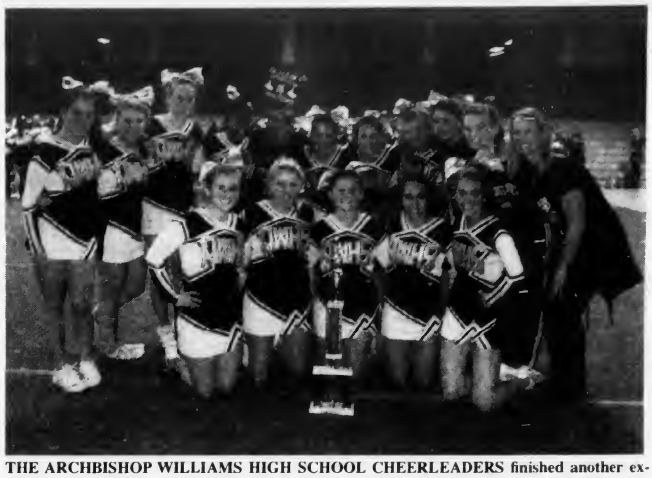
This week's Abigail Adams Basketball Tournament, which was played at Weymouth High School on Tuesday and Wednesday evening, and included North Quincy, Quincy, Weymouth and Braintree, presented the Red Raiders with a chance to pick up their first victory of the season.

Tournament results will be published in next week's Quincy Sun along with photos of games played.

North Quincy (0-3 overall) has come up short in its first three games of 2010-2011. A season-opening loss to Quincy HS on Dec. 10 was proceeded by home losses to Patriot League opponents Hingham HS and Whitman-Hanson HS.

The Red Raiders, on Dec. 21, fell to 0-2 in the Patriot League following a 50-45 defeat to Whitman-Hanson.

Led by senior tri-captain Emily Gray's 19 points, six rebounds, four steals) led North Quincy on offense.



North gave the Panthers all the could handle before falling by five points. The team's strong effort made for a thrilling game. Team captain Montana McBirney chipped in with nine points and seven rebounds.

Earlier this month on Dec. 17, North Quincy hosted Hingham. The Raiders lost 47-31. In the home opener against the Harborwomen, Gray (eight points) and McBirney (nine points,

Senior Kelsey Powers is the team's third captain and senior Karla Fernandes will also play a major leadership role on this year's team.

The junior class is headed by Taylor McKay (guard), Courtney Timmins (forward), Julia Murphy (center) and Erin Renken (center). Annie Dow (guard), Caitlin Bulger (guard) and Samantha McNally (forward) represent the sophomore class this season.

Following the holiday break, North Quincy plays three road games to open 2011. The program will make its way to Silver Lake Regional HS on Jan. 4, to Duxbury HS on Jan. 7, and to Brockton HS on Jan. 11.

THE ARCHBISHOP WILLIAMS HIGH SCHOOL CHEERLEADERS finished another exciting season. The team won a third straight Catholic Central League championship as the squad competed against all Massachusetts Catholic Schools in all divisions. EMILY MILONE, of Quincy and a 2008 graduate of North Quincy High School, just finished her third season with Mercer University Women's Soccer team in Macon, Georgia. Emily is a starter on the team and plays offensive center midfield and center forward. Mercer just wrapped up a successful season; advancing for the first-time into the NCAA Division I soccer tournament. Mercer clinched the Atlantic Sun Conference after defeating Jacksonville State, 1-0. In the tournament, the Bears drew the University of Florida, a team ranked sixth in the nation; Mercer lost, but Milone played 80 of the 90 minutes demonstrating an outstanding performance. She is majoring in Journalism/Communications/Media and is set to graduate in May of 2012.

HEALTH and FITNESS

A COMFORTABLE indoor humidity level is between 40 and 60 percent.

Humidifiers: A Must-Have For Cold Weather Comfort

(NAPSA)-Cold outdoor air doesn't have to mean uncomfortable indoor air that can leave you feeling dry, itchy and congested. Using a humidifier is an easy way to help counteract the effects of dry harsh air by adding essential moisture to any room.

As cold temperatures set in, humidity levels drop, leading to dry indoor air. Humidifiers raise indoor humidity levels and help keep indoor air moist for more comfortable living.

A comfortable humidity level should be between 40 and 60 percent. This helps provide temporary relief from dry-air discomforts as well as temporarily relieve congestion and cough. According to a published study in Environmental Health, keeping indoor air at a relative humidity level between 40 and 60 percent reduces the survival of flu viruses on surfaces and in the air when compared to relative humidity levels that are lower. It also indicates that when used as directed, a humidifier can achieve and maintain this 40-60 percent relative humidity level.

Now it's easier than ever to make your home more comfortable during the dry winter months with Honeywell Easy to Care and Germ Free Humidification products.

Easy to Care Humidifiers were developed to make it simple to add moisture to your room without adding hassle to your busy day and clutter to your home. The breakthrough design incorporates the top-fill feature-making them as easy to fill as watering a plant. Filling can be a snap, with no more heavy tanks to lug back and forth to the sink. Simply pour water into the humidifier as you pass by. These humidifiers have dishwasher-safe components and easy-wipe surfaces that eliminate struggling to clean grooves, crevices and tough-to-reach places. Flowing water lets you know it's working and easy-to-operate controls make it as easy as the flick of a wrist to set.

Select humidifier models with germ-free humidification are equipped with UV technology, which, based on independent laboratory testing, kills up to 99.9 percent of bacteria, molds, fungi and viruses in the tap water used in your humidifier. This provides the assurance that the moisture the humidifier emits is virtually free of germs. The new unit with Germ- Free Humidification also incorporates features to make operating simple, such as self-regulating evaporative technology, which maintains optimal room humidity levels, dishwasher-safe parts and a break-resistant water tank.

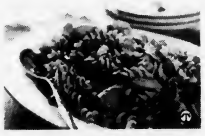
Humidifiers can help you enjoy your day, breathe better and sleep more comfortably at night.

Taking Charge Of Your Own Health

(NAPSA)-Making small changes in the way you eat can make a big difference in your overall health and well-being.

As more Americans reach an unhealthy weight, the need for change becomes more important. Over the last two decades, obesity rates have doubled in adults and tripled in children and adolescents, with higher rates of obesity leading to a rise in such disabling diseases as diabetes, heart disease and cancer.

Having a reliable resource can help you take charge of your own health.



Whole Foods Market's Health Starts Here program provides a commonsense approach to eating that can be modified for every lifestyle. It's not a diet, but a sustainable approach to wellness based on four core principles:

1. Whole Food

• Choose foods that are whole, fresh, natural and organic. Avoid refined, highly processed foods, artificial ingredients and hydrogenated fats. For example, choose whole grains and whole wheat pastas rather than refined varieties-like brown rice instead of white rice.

2. Plant Strong

• Reconfigure your plate: Eat mostly fruits, vegetables, beans, whole grains, nuts and seeds. Choose a colorful variety no matter what diet you follow.

WHOLE WHEAT pasta with mushrooms, white beans and arugula is a delicious dish packed with nutrients and deep earthy flavors.

• If your diet contains animal products, reduce your consumption by using meats, dairy and eggs as small sides or subingredients, not the main item on your plate. Simply put, up your fruits and veggies.

3. Nutrient Dense

• Build your meals around foods that have a higher proportion of micronutrients compared to their total caloric content to make every bite count. For example, when selecting greens, choose darker greens over iceberg lettuce, which has fewer nutrients.

4. Healthy Fats

• Get your healthy fats directly from whole food plant sources such as avocados, nuts and seeds.

Even small changes, such as eating a big salad with a healthy light dressing or a favorite vinegar for one meal each day, can make a difference in improving health.

Statins Aren't Only Way to Lower Cholesterol

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My doctor prescribed statin drugs to control my LDL cholesterol. First I took lovastatin (Mevacor) and then simvastatin (Zocor), but I had muscle pain and weakness with them. I am reluctant to start the pravastatin (Pravachol) that he now has prescribed. Are there alternatives? How about Endur-acin? CoQ10 has been suggested. – D.L.

ANSWER: Statins are the most potent cholesterol-lowering drugs, including lowering LDL cholesterol – bad cholesterol, the kind that clings to artery walls. They've been around for 20 years, and their safety record has been good. Some people develop muscle pain. Those people can try a different statin. You did. However, you might be reacting a bit too fast in rejecting pravastatin (Pravachol). It is the statin that most infrequently is involved with muscle complaints.

I don't know any herb on the list of herbs you included (in an edited part of the letter) that compare with medicines for cholesterol control. However, there are things you can do to lower cholesterol, including reducing your saturated fat and cholesterol intake. Saturated fats are the fats found in many meats, whole-fat dairy products and many other commercially prepared foods. You have to look on the label. Omega-3 fatty acids lower cholesterol. They're found in fish. If you cannot stand fish, take the omega-3s in pill form.

Questran, Colestid, Welchol and Zetia are cholesterol-lowering drugs that are unrelated to statins.

Niacin can increase HDL cholesterol (good cholesterol) and lower triglycerides, fats that also figure into artery clogging. Endur-acin is a slow-release preparation of niacin. Slow-release preparations were introduced to lessen flushing, one of the side effects of niacin.

Coenzyme Q10, or CoQ10, is an antioxidant made by the body and also is available in pill form. Antioxidants counter the damaging byproducts coming from cell chemistry. I don't see any references mentioning that it lowers cholesterol.

The cholesterol booklet gives an in-depth treatment of cholesterol. Readers can order a copy by writing: Dr. Donohue – No. 201W, Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Enclose a check or money order (no cash) for $4.75 U.S./$6 Canada with the recipient's printed name and address. Please allow four weeks for delivery.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am an 80-year-old male. I work out on a Cybex weight machine and also on a treadmill. I was diagnosed as having an umbilical hernia. Please discuss it. Is surgery recommended at my age? Will working out aggravate it? – C.R.

ANSWER: All hernias are protrusions of internal organs or tissues through a defect in the wall that's supposed to hold them in place. In your case, the defect is the umbilicus – the navel, the bellybutton. With age, the scar that closes the umbilicus (the site where the umbilical cord from the placenta attaches to the fetus) weakens, and a hernia can form.

If the hernia isn't large, isn't bothering you and doesn't put a crimp in your lifestyle, nothing has to be done.

When you work out, does the hernia bulge larger? If it does, you should limit the amount of weight you lift. If it doesn't, then you can continue as you are, so long as your doctor concurs.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him or request an order form of available health newsletters at P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

YOU KNOW THE DRILL! OR DO YOU?

Many patients think that drilling away decay and filling cavities in teeth is an all-or-nothing matter. Those patients who hold this view may be surprised to learn that they have it in their power to reverse some instances of dental decay and avoid the drill entirely. The key point is to remember that regular dental checkups enable the dentist to identify tooth decay in its earliest stages. At this point, when the acid produced by bacteria-laden plaque has only partially penetrated the outer enamel surface, the damage can be reversed with better adherence to home oral care (brushing and flossing) and applications of fluoride that encourage calcium and phosphates in the saliva to "remineralize" the tooth surface.

Preventive dentistry is our goal for every patient. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where preventive dentistry may not be where we start with every patient, but it's where we would like to finish. It involves daily care, good nutrition, and periodic check-ups and cleanings that remain good dental health already achieved. Oral health is a long-term commitment we share with each patient. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. A drill-less procedure recently introduced to the United States from Germany, called Icon, treats "intermediate" cavities with a clear resin that prevents the cavity from progressing.

VOICE FOR HEALTH

by Dr. Gabrielle Freedman
Chiropractor

MOVE IT!

The last thing many people with back pain want to do is move. However, without movement, circulation slows, muscles tighten, and pain-inducing chemicals continue to collect in muscles. Even though sudden movements may cause muscles to spasm and pain to heighten, people with "garden-variety" back pain are encouraged to find movements they can perform without pain. Motions that do not cause pain will probably help. In an effort to expand the number of movements that back-pain sufferers may be able to conduct without experiencing pain, the chiropractor can provide in-office treatments that extend joints' range of motion and release the grip that tightened muscles have on body structure. Over time, it is possible to get moving again without motion-inhibiting pain.

We promote a drugless, non-invasive form of health care that addresses your lifestyle and physical issues affecting your joints and spine through procedures such as custom exercise routines. If you are experiencing backaches contact us at the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC. Our office and our friendly staff will work you one-on-one to find the root of the problem. For safe and gentle chiropractic care, we invite you to call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy, where we are currently accepting new patients. We offer computerized spinal scans. We are able to adjust patients sitting, standing, or lying down to accommodate any level of discomfort. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. Instead of "playing through pain," patients are strongly encouraged to pay close attention to pain as a signal from the body to stop performing the activity causing the pain.

Oh, Holy Night...The Stars were Shining Brightly ...

By MAUREEN MAZRIMAS and SEAN GLENNON

A star filled night was the backdrop as members of the suppressed parish of Star of the Sea gathered at the First Church in Squantum for the Christmas eve Celebration in the Absence of a Priest.

On Dec. 8, the Friends of Star of the Sea wrote to Cardinal Sean requesting a Christmas Eve Mass in accordance with Canon 213 of the Roman Catholic Code of Canon Law. It states: "The Christian faithful have the right to receive assistance from the sacred pastors. . . , especially the word of God and the sacraments."

In that letter, we reminded his Eminence that in 2004 – the year we were suppressed – many in the community were unable to attend Christmas Mass, and others simply chose to show their displeasure with the Church by not attending Mass that Christmas or since.

The suppression of Star of the Sea did not just close the church; it also fractured the community. We suggested that this was the perfect opportunity to "welcome your children home for Christmas" as part of the Catholics Come Home initiative. Sadly, on Dec. 17, we received a letter denying our request.

On less than a week's notice, we created a liturgy that was beautiful, dignified, and perfect – and in keeping with the approved guidelines and procedures for the Celebrations in the Absence of a Priest prescribed by the Congregation for Divine Worship.

The Celebration included a communion service with Eucharist provided by sympathetic priests in good standing within the Archdiocese.

The standing room only congregation of about 200 raised their voices in song and prayer, grateful for the opportunity to be together on Christmas eve. The love of church and community was palpable. In the end, neighbors – many of whom walked to church – embraced one another and exchanged Christmas greetings.

One "senior" member of Star of the Sea had not been to church for well over a year and said she felt moved to come out for this special Christmas liturgy.

We are most grateful to, and for, our neighbors at the First Church of Squantum who opened their doors and their hearts to share their spiritual home with us. We thank the Revs. Michael and Emily Robertson for sharing the message of Christ with us "to love one another." We thank all those who participated in the liturgy – not only our greeters, ushers, lectors and Eucharistic ministers, but our cantor, Brenna McGoff and assistant organist, Keith Ciccone, and the children of the parish in leading us in Silent Night.

The parish and community came together as one on Christmas Eve and we are most grateful not only for their attendance at this beautiful liturgy, but also for their very generous donations.

Merry Christmas and a Blessed and Happy New Year.

OBITUARIES

Sandra L. Rougvie, 66
Former North Quincy High School Teacher

SANDRA L. ROUGVIE

A funeral Mass for Sandra L. (Colletti) Rougvie, 66, of Quincy, a former Social Studies teacher at North Quincy High School, was celebrated Wednesday in Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy.

Mrs. Rougvie died suddenly Dec. 21 following a recent series of medical complications.

A graduate of Suffolk University, she spent 32 years as a Social Studies teacher for the Quincy Public Schools, for the most part teaching U.S. History at her alma mater North Quincy High School.

At North, she coached the girls' basketball team, was advisor to the docent program at the MFA, and mentored many student teachers who were inspired by her engaging teaching methods and the atmosphere of mutual respect so evident in her classroom.

Her interests were extensive and varied. She had skied, sailed, and played tennis and was currently developing her golf game. She loved watching sports, and was legendary for her knowledge of college and professional sports teams and her insights into the intricacies of the games.

Movies were another passion. She prided herself on seeing movies as soon as they were released and in spite of her intolerance for slow-moving films, she was the go-to movie critic among her friends.

Her life-long interest in travel began after college graduation with a cross country camping trip sharing a pup tent with a high school friend. She bicycled and camped in Scandinavia, sailed in the Caribbean, and visited numerous countries in Europe as well as Mexico, Guatemala, Thailand and Egypt. She safaried in Africa two years ago and most recently completed her second barge trip in France with a group of college friends.

Closer to home she loved summers at the beach, be it occasional weeks on Cape Cod or daily trips to Nantasket where she seemed to know everyone sitting within a 100 foot radius.

She is survived by her aunt and uncle, Dolly and Bert Nogler, of Quincy and the Nogler, Vignoni and DeGrassie cousins. She was loved and will be missed by many dear friends.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the Sandra Rougvie Scholarship Fund at North Quincy High School, 316 Hancock St., N. Quincy, MA 02171.

Joseph F. Lyons, 83
Veteran

JOSEPH F. LYONS

A Mass of Christian Burial for Joseph F. Lyons, 83, of Quincy, was celebrated Dec. 22 in St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Mr. Lyons died Dec. 19.

Born in Boston, he worked for many years as a pipefitter with the Boston Naval Shipyard, retiring in 1973. He later worked in the maintenance department at New England Deaconess Hospital and at the former Shuster Laboratories in Quincy before finally retiring in 2002.

Mr. Lyons served his country during World War II and Korea in the United States Navy, where he was a proud member of the Sea-Bees.

Husband of Rosemary (McMenamin) Lyons; father of Maureen E. Lyons of Quincy, Rita M. Calio and her husband Vincent of Foxboro, Joseph W. Lyons of ME and Daniel T. Lyons of Quincy; brother of Ruth T. and Rita A. Lyons, both of Quincy and the late Mary DeLorey, Elizabeth Webster, Helen Ciardi and William, John, Edward, Richard and Leonard Lyons; grandfather of William, Michael, Caitlyn, and Elizabeth Lyons and Christopher Calio; great-grandfather of Bailey and William Lyons; friend of Deanna Lyons of Carver and Susan Peguero of Quincy; son of the late William and Elizabeth (Meany) Lyons.

He is also survived by many nieces, nephews and extended family and friends.

Interment with Military Honors was in Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Hamel, Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home, Quincy Center.

Memorial donations may be made to the American Heart Association, 20 Speen St., Framingham, MA 01701.

Antonia M. Ruocco, 90
Worked for Modern Curtin, Spinning Wheel

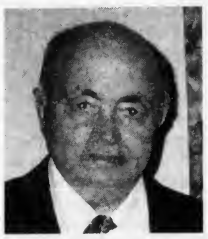
A Mass of Christian Burial for Antonia M. (Cassese) Ruocco, 90, of Quincy, was celebrated Monday in St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Ruocco died Dec. 19 at the Duxbury House.

Born in Boston, she attended Boston schools. She worked for the Modern Curtain Company in Boston for 29 years and retired from The Spinning Wheel after ten years.

She loved making homemade pasta and sharing it with friends and family. She also crocheted afghans and loved traveling and doing puzzles.

Wife of the late Joseph Ruocco; mother of Olivia Woods and her husband John of Plymouth; grandmother of John Woods of Wareham and Michael Woods and his wife Donna of Pembroke; great-grandmother of Allie Olivia Woods of Pembroke; sister of Josephine Esposito of Melrose and the late Pasquale Cassese, Fr. John-Marie Cassese, Anthony Cassese, Lucy Scola, Catherine Ballerino and Mary Messina; daughter of the late Michele and Domenica (Capuane) Cassese.



She is also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Interment was in Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Hamel, Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home, Quincy Center.

Memorial donations may be made to the Alzheimer's Association, MA Chapter, 311 Arsenal St., Watertown, MA 02472.

Constanzo G. Ranalli, 84
Construction Worker

CONSTANZO G. RANALLI

A funeral Mass for Costanzo G. Ranalli, 84, of Quincy, was held Tuesday in Saint John the Baptist Church, Quincy Center.

Mr. Ranalli died Dec. 22 at the Tufts Medical Center in Boston surrounded by his loving family.

Born, raised and educated in Anversa, Province of Abruzzi, Italy, he had lived in Quincy since immigrating to the United States in 1966.

He was employed as a construction worker for the DiCenso Corporation in Wilmington for more than 25 years. He also worked part-time for his sons's company, Concrete Solutions Plus, Inc., in Braintree.

Mr. Ranalli enjoyed playing cards as well as spending time with his family, especially his grandchildren.

Beloved husband for 56 years of Francesca (Poillucci) Ranalli, he was the devoted father of twin sons, Serafino "Steve" Ranalli and his wife Rita of Quincy and Massimo Mike Ranalli and his wife Marsha of Braintree.

Loving grandfather of Cynthia, Brandon, Adriana and Robert Ranalli.

Brother of Antonio Ranalli of Italy, the late Rina DiPasqua and the late Vera DiGiusto.

He is also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Interment was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Memorial donations may be made to the Alzheimer's Association, 311 Arsenal St., Watertown, MA 02472 or to the Parkinson Disease Association, 720 Harrison Ave., Boston, MA 02218.

Robert E. Sullivan, 82
Linotype Operator For Boston Globe; Veteran

ROBERT E. SULLIVAN

Mr. Sullivan died Dec. 19.

Raised and educated in Dorchester, he lived most of his life in Quincy and the last 15 years in Braintree. He worked as a linotype operator for 40 years at the Boston Globe and was also a member of the Quincy Lodge of Elks, Braintree Golf Club, Morrissette Post and was a parishioner of St. Mary's Church in West Quincy.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

HAPPY NEW YEAR . . . What kind of year will it be? We at the Deware Funeral Home hope that the coming year will be well-endowed with supplies of faith, courage and determination – a sufficient supply for everyone – for private citizens as well as public officials . . . Without faith, not only in God but in the abilities of our leaders at all levels and in ourselves, accomplishments will be few.

All of us must develop the type of courage it takes to speak out when a wrong needs righting. Too many sit back and hope that somebody else will make the first move or speak the first word . . . Too many "don't want to get involve" – a decision that can feed the fires of greed, incompetence and dishonesty. . . And finally, we must acquire determination of assure that those things which have become involved through use of our courage reach fruition.

Without these three – faith in the future, the courage of our convictions, and determination in our efforts – the coming year will not be a good year. . . But with these three, we can do much to shape a better community, state, nation and world.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A hectic period begins to wind down. Take time to draw some deep breaths and relax before getting into your next project. A long-absent family member makes contact.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You're eager to move forward with a new challenge that suddenly dropped in your lap. But you'd be wise to take this one step at a time to allow new developments to come through.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You're almost ready to make a commitment. A lingering doubt or two, however, should be resolved before you move ahead. An associate could provide important answers.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Caution is still the watchword as you move closer toward a decision about a new situation. If you act too fast, you might miss some vital warning signs. Go slowly and stay alert.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Your new goal looks promising, and your golden touch does much to enhance its prospects for success. In your private life, Cupid does his best to make your new relationship special.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) That impatient side of yours is looking to goad you into moving before you're ready to take that big step. Stay calm and cool. Let things fall into place before you act.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A legal matter you hoped could finally be settled could be a pesky problem for a while, until all the parties agree to stop disagreeing with each other. Be patient.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Partnerships -- personal or professional -- which began before the new year take on new importance. They also reveal some previously hidden risks. So be warned.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your associates are firmly on your side, and that persistent problem that has caused you to delay some activities should soon be resolved to your satisfaction.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Favorable changes continue to dominate, and you should be responding positively as they emerge. Someone wants to become more involved in what you're doing.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A friend wants to share a secret that could answer some questions you've wondered about for a long time. Meanwhile, travel aspects continue to be strong.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Stay on your new course despite so-called well-meaning efforts to discourage you. Rely on your deep sense of self-awareness to guide you to do what's right for you.

YOU BORN THIS WEEK: You have the capacity to meet challenges that others might find overwhelming, and turn them into successful ventures.

35 Shawmut Road
Canton, MA 02021
In the Interests of:
Blanche Geekie
RESPONDENT
Incapacitated Person/ Protected Person

To the named Respondent and all other interested persons, a petition has been filed by DAVID PARKER, JR. of HANOVER, MA in the above captioned matter requesting that the court:

Expand the powers of a Guardian.

The petition asks the court to make a determination that the powers of the Guardian and/or Conservator should be expanded, modified, or limited since the time of the appointment. The original petition is on file with the court.

You have the right to object to this proceeding. If you wish to do so, you or your attorney must file a written appearance at this court on or before 10:00 A.M. on the return date of 01/12/2011. This day is NOT a hearing date, but a deadline date by which you have to file the written appearance if you object to the petition. If you fail to file the written appearance by the return date, action may be taken in this matter without further notice to you. In addition to filing the written appearance, you or your attorney must file a written affidavit stating the specific facts and grounds of your objection within 30 days after the return date.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

The outcome of this proceeding may limit or completely take away the above-named person's right to make decisions about personal affairs or financial affairs or both. The above-named person has the right to ask for a lawyer. Anyone may make this request on behalf of the above-named person. If the above-named person cannot afford a lawyer, one may be appointed at State expense.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC MEETING

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
MASSACHUSETTS DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION-HIGHWAY DIVISION

Quincy-Weymouth: Proposed Fore River Bridge Replacement
Project File No. 604382

A Public Meeting will be held by MassDOT-Highway Division to receive public comments on the Environmental Assessment for the proposed Fore River Bridge Replacement Project. The project is located in Quincy and Weymouth, Massachusetts.

WHERE: Fore River Club House
16 Nevada Road
Quincy, MA 02169

WHEN: Thursday, January 13, 2011 @ 6:30 PM

PURPOSE: The purpose of this meeting is to present the Environmental Assessment (EA) for the Fore River Bridge Replacement Project, Quincy-Weymouth made available for public review on December 13, 2010. The EA was prepared to evaluate a range of alternatives and impacts for the permanent replacement of the 1936 Fore River Bridge, which was demolished in 2004 and temporarily replaced with the existing movable lift bridge. The EA was made available to the community through a range of outlets, including the project website (www.mass.gov/massdot/foreriverbridge) and local public libraries. Comments on the EA are due by January 26, 2011 and should be sent to:

Richard Marquis,
Acting Division Administrator
Federal Highway Administration
Massachusetts Division
55 Broadway, 10th Floor
Cambridge, Massachusetts 02142
Attn: Damaris Santiago

and to

Frank A. Tramontozzi, P.E.,
Chief Engineer
MassDOT Highway Division
10 Park Plaza, Room 4260
Boston, Massachusetts 02116
Attn: Michael Furlong

Comments will also be accepted verbally and in writing during the public meeting on January 13, 2011. Following a brief presentation, MassDOT staff will lead a discussion to gather comments and answer questions.

PROPOSAL: The replacement of the Fore River Bridge, which carries Route 3A over the Fore River between Quincy and Weymouth, is being conducted under the Commonwealth's Accelerated Bridge Program (ABP). This is one of the largest projects being undertaken by MassDOT under the ABP and when completed, will create a permanent, movable bridge to replace the current temporary span.

The purpose of the proposed action is to replace the existing temporary bridge carrying Route 3A over the Fore River between Quincy and Weymouth with a permanent movable bridge that would be on the same alignment and have the same vehicular capacity as the 1936 bridge, while maximizing the vertical channel clearance to reduce opening frequency and duration, and widening the horizontal channel clearance to meet marine navigational needs. The alternatives considered in the EA include the No Build, a bascule bridge and a vertical lift bridge. The EA identifies a Preferred Alternative of a Vertical Lift Bridge with a 250-foot horizontal channel clearance and a vertical clearance of 58.5 feet above mean high water as the only alternative that meets the project's purpose and need. The proposed Fore River Bridge structure will have two travel lanes, a bicycle accommodating shoulder, and a sidewalk in each direction. The EA identifies impacts of the preferred alternative and proposes mitigation.

Print copies of the EA and Appendices are available at the Weymouth, Quincy, and Braintree Public Libraries. Compact disks and/or print copies may be obtained by contacting Michael Furlong at the Massachusetts Department of Transportation, 10 Park Plaza, Room 4260, Boston, MA 02116. Mike can also be reached at 617-973-8067 or Michael.Furlong@state.ma.us.

The community has declared that this facility is accessible to all in compliance with the ADA / Title II. However, persons in need of ADA / Title II accommodations should contact Angela Rudikoff by phone at (617) 973-7005 or email to angela.rudikoff@state.ma.us. Requests must be made at least 10 days prior to the date of the public meeting.

$1.3 Billion Downtown Plan Approved; Council Honors Cong. Delahunt, Staff

DECEMBER

Applause filled City Council chambers after Councillors unanimously approved the fifth and final motion authorizing the proposed $1.3 billion revitalization of Quincy Center.

Planners have visions of a bustling future for Quincy as massive redevelopment spurs new growth and prospects for the city's center. At least one 20-story building will offer 735 new housing units in a renewed Quincy Center that will be enhanced by a million square feet of new office space, a hotel, at least one major retailer, and a cinema.

The plans produced by the redeveloper, StreetWorks of White Plains, NY, featured massive amounts of green space with hundreds of new trees, sidewalk cafes, small retailers, mid-level and luxury condominiums and apartments, along with hundreds of jobs pre- and post-construction.

"This is a bold initiative. This is a defining moment in the history of our city," said City Council President Kevin Coughlin before members approved the measures aimed at jump-starting the center's revitalization project.

Koch was the driving force behind laying the groundwork for the project, which included construction of the Concourse, prior land-takings, zoning changes, and the development of design guidelines.

After a heated debate, the Library Trustees voted to appoint Brockton's Library Director Harry Williams, 3rd, as the 12th Library Director for the Quincy Public Library system

School Superintendent Dr. Richard DeCristofaro was given a new three-year contract, approved by the school committee, for $226,000 per year. The new contract removes compensation items such as a travel allowance and an annuity program that were budgeted separately in previous superintendent contracts, and simply records those dollar amounts as part of his salary, school committee members said.

Quincy furthered its anti-bullying prevention with several new initiatives that were put into motion on the heels of Governor Deval Patrick's new Anti-Bullying Law that passed in May.

Quincy High rededicated the Munroe MacLean Gymnasium after the legendary Quincy athlete and coach, and opened the new George Burke Fitness Center. The dedication ceremony was held between the Quincy/North Quincy boys and girls basketball doubleheader, the first time the teams played each other in the new facility.

City councillors approved Mayor Thomas Koch's tax levy recommendations that should insure a level 2011 tax bill for owners of the average single family home, now valued at $325,800. Koch recommended that the owner of the average single family home would pay $4,372. That sum is one dollar lower than this year's bill for the average single family home, which was valued at $330,800 last year.

Seven-term Congressman William Delahunt was honored at the city council meeting, sitting in the same chair where he was sworn in as a councillor on January 5, 1972, kicking off a remarkable 40-year career in public service. Delahunt is Quincy's only elected official to hold elective office at four levels of government. He announced in March he would not be seeking an eighth term as congressman.

Peter Tsaffaras was appointed president of Quincy College. A former member of Quincy College's Board of Governors, Tsaffaras comes to the college from Massachusetts Board of Higher Education. He will begin his term as president on Monday, Jan. 3.
